GIBSON JURY COULD NOT AGREE

After Deliberating for Fourteen Hours Jury Reported and Was Discharged

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 26.—After deliberating for more than 14 hours, the jury in the case of Burton W. Gibson, charged with the murder of his client, Mrs. Rosa Menshik Szabo, reported to Justice Tompkins shortly after one o'clock this morning that they could not agree on a verdict. They were accordingly discharged.

The difficulty the jurors encountered in making up their minds was disclosed early this morning when they filed into the courtroom and told Justice Tompkins that they could not agree.

"You will retire, gentlemen," directed the court, "and make another attempt to find a verdict."

Gibson slouched down in his seat when Foreman Hicks announced a disagreement. Mrs. Gibson buried her face in her hands and wept long after the juryroom door had closed on the 12 men.

During their stay in the courtroom one juror wanted to know if they had to find that Mrs. Szabo was strangled to death in order to return a verdict of conviction. He was told yes. Another wanted the Szabo testimony. It was given him. A third wanted the letters the defendant had sent to her home in Austria, and these were given.

Mr. Elder Gibson's lawyer, was granted permission to make a motion. "I request the court to charge the jury," he said, "that they must find from all the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that this defendant strangled Mrs. Szabo to death before they can convict him of any crime."

"I have already so charged the jury," Justice Tompkins said.

Gibson returned to his cell.

As the night waned the discussion in the juryroom became more heated. Angry words floated out in the corridor. One was overheard to declare that he would hold out for an acquittal indefinitely. Others were equally insistent for a verdict of guilty.

The Three Defendants Thank the Court for Impartial Conduct of Trial—A Big Demonstration in Their Honor in Lawrence is Planned for Thursday

SALEM, Nov. 26.—"Not guilty" is the verdict of the jury in the case of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso for the murder of Anna Lopizzo, who was killed in a Lawrence textile strike riot last winter.

When the three men had heard the words freeing them from the charge they embraced and kissed each other in the prisoners' cage. Giovannitti then sprang to his feet and said:

"Gentlemen of the jury"—his face beaming with joy—"in the name of justice, truth and civilization I thank you."

As he sat down the court interpreter, Alfred Sacco, rose for Caruso and said: "Mr. Caruso desires me to say that he wants to thank you all and now that he is free he says that he was innocent of the crime."

"May it please the court, I thank you not only for myself but in the name of my companions. I also feel compelled to thank the court for the fair manner in which this trial has been conducted. The thanks we offer is not only ours but thanks in the name of the working class."

The jury entered the courtroom at 8.20. Immediately thereafter the prisoners, each wearing a red carnation, were brought to the cage in the center of the room. All were smiling, even Caruso. At this hour the courtroom was not half crowded. Judge Quinn ascended the bench at 8.24 and asked if the jury had agreed upon a verdict.

Verdict Announced

"We have," Foreman Robert S. Tillman replied as he handed it to the court clerk.

"Joseph Caruso, stand," commanded Clerk George.

As Caruso obeyed the clerk called: "Caruso, face the jury; Jurymen look at the prisoner. Gentlemen of the jury, is Joseph Caruso guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty" was the unanimous response.

Ettor and Giovannitti were likewise commanded to rise and the jurors chorused a verdict of "not guilty" for each defendant. The jury which for more than six weeks had listened to the evidence in the now historic trial was then excused from further service with the thanks of the court. The jurymen were cheered by the crowds of mill-workers in the streets.

Other Indictments

When the jurors had left the court announced to Joseph Caruso that there was another indictment against him charging him with carrying a deadly weapon with intent to kill and that the court would release him on his own recognizance. When the happy prisoner had taken oath to appear in court when summoned he was released from the cage. His wife, waiting at the rail behind the prisoners' cage, fell into his arms and a dozen of his male companions rushed forward and kissed him.

Ettor and Giovannitti were also held on another indictment charging them together with W. D. Haywood of the Industrial Workers of the World and others with conspiracy to instigate riots during the Lawrence strike. They were released in bonds of $500 each which were furnished by Helen S. Dudley of Boston. The Lawrence strike leaders were then freed from the prisoners' cage and beset by a crowd of men and women in the court room. For several minutes they were the recipients of kisses from the men and congratulations from the women. The defendants and their attorneys held a jubilation meeting in the court room when the court was adjourned and a few minutes later followed by a cheering throng of mill-workers who marched through the streets from the courthouse to the local office of the Industrial Workers of the World, where they remained for some time in jubilation.

"I have no immediate plans," said Ettor to the representative of the Associated Press, "but I am going as soon as possible to my home in Tacoma, Washington, where I have a father. He has been suffering from paralysis since my arrest. I am not going to my home in Brooklyn for a day or two," said Giovannitti. "I have so far met only the police and detectives of Massachusetts and now I hope to get acquainted with its gentlemen."

Giovannitti said he expected to visit friends in Boston and vicinity. Both declared they did not have words to express their joy. Caruso and his wife who had been sitting near him outside the cage for many weeks, danced about like children and rushed away with the crowd to the Industrial Workers' headquarters. They expect to return to their home in Lawrence at once.

Songs and Speeches

Workers' offices went to Salvation Army hall in Church street, where they made the echoes ring with Italian songs and speeches. Ettor and Giovannitti spoke in their native tongue and even Caruso, who never had made a speech in his life, was forced to say a few words. At this meeting it was planned that all should go to Lawrence later in the day, where a big demonstration was to be held. Attorneys for the defendants were overjoyed at the verdict. James H. Pisk, counsel for Caruso, was the recipient of a resounding smack from his client, as he left the court room. Attorney Moore as soon as he could get an opportunity sent a telegram announcing the verdict to William D. Haywood at Rochester, N. Y.

LAWRENCE OPERATIVES ARE TO HOLD CELEBRATION IN HONOR OF THE THREE MEN

LAWRENCE, Nov. 26.—The news of the acquittal of Ettor, Giovannitti and Caruso on charges of murder was received with delight by the thousands of foreign operatives in the big Lawrence textile mills. No early morning demonstration occurred as practically all of the members of the Industrial Workers of the World were at their place in the factories. Several of the leaders of the organization announced that the men exonerated at Salem would come to Lawrence.

The leaders further stated that there would be a celebration in honor of the three and that probably an indoor mass meeting or a street parade would be held on Thanksgiving day. Thursday was regarded as a particularly appropriate day for jubilation especially as the operatives would be idle.

William Yates, secretary and treasurer of the Industrial Workers, in an interview said: "We have had no fear of the outcome at any time since the leaders were arrested. The acquittal of the three men is a vindication of the Industrial Workers of the World. The Workers will continue their task of organizing labor for more pay and shorter hours until the time shall come when they will receive the full product of their toil. We ask the three men to come here Thanksgiving day and will obtain a permit for a parade if we can."

Mr. Yates states that probably Ettor and Giovannitti would go into seclusion for a day or two in order to recover from the strain of their imprisonment and trial.

The news of the verdict spread rapidly through the city and among the mill operatives at work. Within a few minutes every person in Lawrence interested in the case had learned of the outcome of the trial.

Arrangements for two mass meetings tonight were made today by the officials of the Industrial Workers when they were informed that Ettor, Giovannitti and Caruso were coming to the city this afternoon. It was planned to have the meetings informal and preliminary to the proposed demonstration.

NUMEROUS EXPRESSIONS OF LOVE

Contained in Letters Read at the Revel-Vien Case on Trial in Superior Court Today

The case of Laurent Revel against Mrs. Cordelia Vien, which was opened before Judge Pratt in the jury waived session of the superior court yesterday, was resumed this morning. Mr. Revel is seeking to recover on seven promissory notes, for money which he claims to have loaned Mrs. Vien at different times.

Mr. Revel was on the witness stand during the entire morning and was put through a rigid cross-examination by Lawyer John J. Hogan. Several letters written by the plaintiff to the defendant when he was in Paris in 1907 were read.

In answer to questions asked by Lawyer Hogan witness said: "On Dec. 22, 1912, I was making preparations to go to Paris. Prior to that I had purchased 40 shares of stock in La Protection Co. of Canada, an insurance company. The stock was listed at $35 per share. I paid $350 down and on Dec. 22, 1910, I gave $400 additional security on the stock. A check for $300 was given me by Mrs. Vien, for money I had loaned to her; I had the other $100 myself."

"Did Mrs. Vien on that same day give you $200 cash in addition to the check?" asked Mr. Hogan.

"No, sir."

"Did she let you have any cash that day?"

"No, sir."

Witness said that as a general rule Mrs. Vien gave him a promissory note whenever he loaned her money.

Relative to the payment of $400 on the stock in La Protection Co., witness said he knew that he would have to make a payment before the 31st of the month. He admitted when he came to Lowell from Canada he had $3000 in cash in a money belt and when asked why he did not pay some of the money on the stock when he was in Canada instead of asking Mrs. Vien for money, he said: "I had lost enough of money on stocks and wanted to investigate La Protection before putting in any more cash."

Mr. Revel testified to giving Mrs. Vien $1100 on Dec. 22, 1910, and gave her $300 a few days previous.

"When did you leave for Paris?" asked Mr. Hogan.

"On the evening of Dec. 22, 1910," answered the witness.

"Did you carry any money over with you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much?"

"About $1100."

"Was that money in bills?"

"Yes, sir."

"You also carried over two checks for $200 each?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long did you stay in Europe?"

"Four and one-half months."

"While you were in Europe was there another payment due La Protection?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you wrote Mrs. Vien a letter while in Paris asking her to pay $300?"

"I wrote to her not to let the date go by without paying what was due."

At this point Lawyer Hogan read two letters written by Mr. Revel to Mrs. Vien when the plaintiff was in Paris. Both letters contained many expressions of his love for her and how he longed to be with her again referring to her as "thee," "thou" and "darling." He was glad that she had not forsaken him and that she loved him.

"I would be furious if you had handed me," wrote the plaintiff. "I will prove to thee that I have a heart for thee. After a dark night the light is bright and our happiness will soon be complete. The day is near when I shall press you against my breast. In another letter he said that it would not be long before he would rejoin her and then he would be satisfied to remain with her forever and would be happy to see no one else but her."

Witness admitted that Mrs. Vien wrote a letter to him in which she said she owed him $2000. He said she owed him $1100 at that time.

Mr. Revel testified that he gave Mrs. Vien $1500 in cash on May 22, 1911, and a week or two later she gave him a check acknowledging the amount.

THE ITALIAN PRESS PRAISES THE IMPARTIALITY OF JUDGE QUINN

ROME, Nov. 26.—The majority of the Italian press commenting on the trial at Salem, Mass., of Joseph Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso for the murder of Anna Lopizzo praises the impartiality of the summing up of Judge Joseph Quinn.

The agitation here in connection with the trial and the threats to declare a general strike are condemned generally, the newspapers remarking that they are indications of an attempt to substitute the people or the mob of one country for a legally empaneled jury in another.

A HAPPY CHILD IN A FEW HOURS

When cross, sick, feverish, tongue coated or bilious give "Syrup of Figs"

Look at this tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's insides, the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged up with purifying waste matter, and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will exude more or less of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you surely will have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of delicious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Syrup Co. This is the delicious, reliable, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

THE LATE MICHEL DUBREUIL, O. M. I.

he was the first pastor in the new parish. It was mainly through his efforts and his hard work that Notre Dame de Lourdes parish was established and made such notable progress, for the reverend gentleman was an indefatigable worker.

Rev. Michel Dubreuil, O. M. I., was born at Lyons, France, in 1853, and received his early education in his native city. He was ordained a secular priest at Lyons in the year 1876, and officiated in that capacity until 1880 when he entered the Oblate order, taking the perpetual vow of the order the following year.

His first duties as an Oblate missionary were at Ceylon, India, where during his stay, he was a victim of the dreaded malaria or yellow fever which was assigned to St. Joseph's parish, this city.

In September, 1903 when Notre Dame de Lourdes parish was established, Fr. Dubreuil was appointed pastor and remained there for one year during which time he exerted himself in the parish work and was forced to leave for the western states where he expected he would recover his health. He first settled at Duck Creek, Wis., doing mission work and about 18 months ago he went to Campbell, Neb., where he joined Rev. Arthur Berniche, O. M. I., formerly of this city.

Some time ago his condition grew worse and he was removed to a hospital in Omaha, Neb., where he remained until a few days ago at which time he undertook the trip to this city, arriving here Sunday evening. His death occurred last night shortly after eight o'clock.

The body was removed to the Oblate novitiate in Tewksbury, where the funeral services will take place Thursday morning.

Three Young Men Were Fined for Assault—Large Docket in Police Court

The police court session this morning was unusually long and tiresome for there was a large array of offenders present to greet the judge.

The chief case was that of Joseph Joseph, Eben Brennan and John Studer who were arraigned on a charge of assaulting Harold Toddinson, floor manager of the Bowldway skating rink.

Brennan it was claimed, was ordered from the skating rink by the manager, he remonstrated quite forcibly against the procedure, expressing verbally his unwillingness to comply with the official's request. It was shortly after 9 o'clock one night about during what is known as the "second session" of the skating rink. Afterwards, said the charge, the three defendants waited for the manager of the rink and a fight ensued in which Brennan was a prominent figure. The attorneys for the defendants were J. Joseph O'Connor and Daniel J. Donahue. Mr. Murphy appeared for the government.

The police officer who is stationed at the rink first took the stand and said first that Brennan had called the manager a vile name.

Afterward when cross examined by Lawyer Donahue, he said that he did not hear what the name was exactly, but that he heard some name called. It was alleged that Brennan uttered threats to the manager when he was ejected from the floor.

Mr. Donahue got right after Edward Caldwell, who said he worked at the rink as skate mechanic. The witness said that Brennan had threatened to knock the plaintiff's head off. Mr. Donahue asked numerous questions, and the while a broad smile overspread his countenance. The face of the witness, on the other hand, gradually took on a flushed appearance as he replied to the poses of the lawyer.

Joseph Joseph was next placed on the stand and he furnished the court with the information that he is a prize fighter, or at least a boxer. He said that he did not strike the defendant, but admitted holding Studer's watch on that night just before the occurrence. He also said that he was going to "make a punk" at the complainant but was stopped by the warning of Seavigny boy, according to Mr. Brennan's testimony, was the one who

As a consequence of this interference, Joseph did not get in his "puck."

The next witness was John Studer and he did not have a great deal to say. He gave as a reason for letting Joseph hold his watch, the fact that the manager of the rink was accompanied by a "big fellow" and that as he, Studer, had been a lifelong friend and companion of said Brennan, he did not care to see the latter become the victim of unfair play. Consequently he stood ready to interfere in case things went not well with Mr. Brennan. Studer is 19 years of age and is employed as a woodworker in the carpenter shop of the Lowell Machine Co.

Brennan when placed on the stand furnished the information that the manager had put him off the rink floor for skating too fast and that the same manager had told him to go down stairs and he would meet him there. Brennan said that he went down and bowed and hung around until shortly after 11 o'clock. Brennan said that Studer or Joseph did not strike the manager and that he was the principal of the fight.

Contrary to the accounts of these three witnesses, the court felt satisfied that there was prearrangement of the matter and that the three young men had planned to assault the plaintiff. He imposed a fine of ten dollars each, which was paid on the spot.

Case Was Discharged

George Tremblay, who was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery on a young lad named Lodione Seavigny was discharged after being found not guilty by Judge Bright. Mr. Tremblay works for his father, he said, as a teamster, and has occasion now and then to drive over Marshall street and in that vicinity. He said that some youngsters had thrown stones at him on that street, one of which hit a wheel of the wagon and the other the horse causing the animal to jump and break a portion of the harness. The Seavigny boy, according to Mr. Tremblay's testimony, was the one who threw the missile that struck the horse.

The young lad when on the stand denied throwing the stone but admitted cursing and using vile language at Mr. Tremblay. Mr. Tremblay told the other lad's mother, who administered her offender a "licking." The Seavigny boy on the stand testified that Tremblay had struck him on the side of the face. A woman who saw the occurrence testified in a manner which defined this statement, as did the statements of Mr. Tremblay himself.

Afterwards another stone was thrown, which struck the elder Mr. Tremblay on the hand, causing that member to swell up and become very painful. The Seavigny boy's father followed Mr. Tremblay's team, it was said, and attacked the man, after making threats to do so. The case was discharged and the judge forbade the clerk to pay the witnesses any fees.

Some Drunks

Martin Prybyla had not gotten over the effects of what must have been a big event for him and he had to be escorted downstairs to rest up and recuperate.

William J. Carney was held until Saturday, when, said the judge, he will be placed on probation if his wife is willing. It was a charge of drunkenness and his wife claimed through the officer that the man did not support her.

Martin Callahan and James J. O'Neill were each fined $5 for second offenses of drunkenness. Adam Goley was badly battered up. Adam said that his wife, who by the way, was not Ewe, had "licked" him. This was in reply to a statement by herself on the witness stand that he had "licked" her. He made several unsuccessful attempts to engage her in conversation after she had left the stand. He was sent to the state farm. Patrick Mc-Carthy was up for the fifth time in a year and he was sent to the state farm. There were several contributions of two dollars each from first offenders.

TO OBSERVE THANKSGIVING DAY

All Mills and Stores Will Close—
Athletic Games and Other
Amusements Scheduled

Thanksgiving day will certainly be a day of rest this year for the working people. Practically everything will be closed up tight with the exception of the drug stores and amusement places.

All of the mills will shut down for the day and practically all of them will reopen Friday morning. The stores and offices will all observe the holiday. The public schools will close Wednesday and remain closed until Monday. The Textile school will close on Tuesday, giving the students one more day than they have been accustomed to having. The Normal school is to close Wednesday afternoon and reopen Monday morning. There will be only one delivery at the postoffice and that will be made Thanksgiving morning.

Proper observance of the day is to be made in all of the churches.

However, the day will be a gay one and practically everything in the amusement line will be running full blast. The Highland, York, Elks and Vesper clubs are to keep open house throughout the day. Many of the orders and lodges are to do the same thing. At the armory a program of sports has been arranged and the company drills suspended for the day. Bowling, rifle shooting and basketball will be among the sports that will be enjoyed by the members of the M. V. M.

The Bunting team is to play a game at the grounds in South Lowell and the High school alumni and school teams are to have a game at Washington park. Many other minor football games are to be played. The Opera House, Keith's Playhouse, Academy of Music, Merrimack Square and Voyons are all staging vaudeville, moving pictures or plays.

THE FIRE DAMAGE IS $1,000,000

Fire Started in Sulphur Plant in Brooklyn—15 Persons Were Taken to Hospitals

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Brooklyn's East river water front, was the scene yesterday of the most serious explosion and fire which that section has known for years. Fifteen men were taken to hospitals suffering from burns and injuries from which a number may die, and several persons on the scene at the time were missing last night. Late reports, however, discredited earlier beliefs that several lives had been lost.

The area of three blocks was swept and a loss of almost $1,000,000 caused, notwithstanding that the Brooklyn firemen were aided by New York fire boats and apparatus sent across the bridges from Manhattan.

The fire started with a series of explosions of chemicals on the ground floor of the five-story building of the Union Sulphur company, South 10th street, and Kent avenue, in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn.

Of 70 men at work in the building, a dozen on the main floor were buried in every direction, suffering terrible burns, bruises and broken bones.

A series of four other explosions followed in quick order and the building was soon enveloped in the weird blue flames of burning sulphur.

Workers who had escaped from other

floors, some by jumping, sought to fight their way through the billows of sulphur fumes to the rescue of their comrades and were themselves overcome, but although late last night half a dozen employees had not been accounted for, it was regarded doubtful that any had been left in the building. The explosions occurred with such force that eight firemen holding a hose upon the flames were thrown in the East river. They were picked up by a police department launch, five of them suffering severe burns from the explosion.

The flames swept down a large hay and grain warehouse of the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal company. At times the wall of flame which the wind drove before it was 200 feet square and it lashed so close to the plants of the Brooklyn Gas company and the Pratt and Standard Oil companies that a series of terrible explosions was momentarily feared.

While the heat blistered the gas tanks and oil tanks and firemen were turning tons of water upon them to keep them cool, employees hurriedly set to work drawing off the great storage of gas, oil and gasoline through pipes which connected with other plants in Long Island City and Green Point.

ball games are to be played. The Opera House, Keith's Playhouse, Academy of Music, Merrimack Square and Voyons are all staging vaudeville, moving pictures or plays. There is to be a bowling tournament at the Crescent alleys and roller skating at the Hurd street rink and the Casino. Several dances are to be run during the evening.

It can easily be seen that Thanksgiving will be a day of rest for those who desire it so and a day of festivity and amusement for those who prefer this to the rest.

THE TURKEY DINNER

Not So Costly as Was Predicted

The report was spread that the middle classes and the poor would have to go without turkey this year as they were so scarce and the price so high that they would be obtainable only by the rich. This report has been vigorously denied by the farmers and poultry raisers and judging from the supply on hand among the local dealers and the price of turkey, this report is not so. The Vermont turkeys are considered of the best quality and there is a great demand for them. The price of turkeys is from 25 to 35 cents a pound averaging about thirty cents a pound. Ducks, geese and chickens are 25 cents a pound, fowl are about 24 cents a pound. Cranberries are 10 cents a quart, celery is 15 cents a bunch, lettuce 5 cents a head. Squash, pumpkins and turnips are 2 cents a pound, onions 25 cents a peck. Oranges are 25 cents a dozen and lemons 30 cents; grape fruit, 5 to 10 cents apiece. Malaga grapes, 13 cents a pound. Concord 13 cents a basket, and apples 30 cents a peck.

C. E. UNION MEETING

Held Last Night and It Was Decided to Have Three Vice Presidents Instead of One

A meeting of the Lowell Christian Endeavor Union was held last night at the First Trinitarian Congregational church, and it included the monthly business meeting and social. The attendance numbered about 150, representing more than 20 societies.

The supper was served in the vestry room of the church.

The business meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock. At the latter it was decided that the constitution be amended to allow the election of three vice presidents instead of one and that these take charge of the work which will be divided into three sections.

It was voted to contribute $15 to the State Union for the purpose of hiring a traveling secretary to inspect and address the various town and city unions and aid in their progress.

The treasurer of the society, Alexander Sample, handed in his resignation and asked that a treasurer be appointed to hold office in his place, until the regular election of officers should be held. Walter Chase was appointed treasurer pro tem.

It was announced that the annual election of officers would be held at the next meeting, at which time the three new vice presidents would be elected and the union divided into three divisions, over each of which one of the vice presidents will have supervision. It was also announced that the monthly Junior Christian Endeavor rally will be held at the First Baptist church next Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

At the close of the business meeting there were interesting reports by Frank J. Spooner, Miss Ella M. Penn, Miss Bernice Frisbee, the delegates of the society to the state convention held at Brockton, on the work accomplished by the society, and an inspiring missionary address by Rev. W. H. McLean of the Highland Methodist Episcopal church, on the subject, "The Unavoidable World Policies of Jesus."

Deer Hunters Enjoyed Banquet of Venison Sentence of Woman Who Shot Another

The football game which was supposed to have been played last Saturday between the Indians and the Belmonts of Lowell was not played, as the Belmonts did not arrive at any time during the afternoon. The Indians were quite indignant.

The Chelmsford High school will close Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. as well as a few of the grammar school grades. The grades not getting the required per cent, will be dismissed at 3:30 and will not return until Monday morning.

Many of the Chelmsford hunters and farmers report that pheasants are all together too destructive and thick in this section of the country. Twenty pheasants were counted in one farmer's back yard recently.

Miss Curry, recently of Bedford, now residing in the cottage vacated by Mr. Giles, is about to start her school career in Chelmsford.

Mr. Brady, the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad crossing tender, who for the past week has been unable to attend his duties, will soon return. Mr. Gallagher of Lowell has been acting as his substitute.

Mr. William O. Tucker of the West village is entertaining Mr. William Wilton of Maine, who will stay over Thanksgiving at a little longer.

Master McKay of the East village, is ill at his home.

An enjoyable evening was spent by the 50 members of the South Chelmsford Gun club who attended their venison banquet held at Liberty hall, South Chelmsford. The venison was furnished by some of the hunters and one of them, although shooting a monstrous buck, was not quick enough for the banquet. The supper was in charge of the South Chelmsford Christian Endeavor society, assisted by seven other citizens. The committee was Messrs. Ralph Ryan, Charles Robinson and Charles Griffin. After the banquet a very enjoyable musical and literary entertainment was held. The evening broke up with each member before moving on to his home, with each member over South village banquets.

In Chittenden county court was taken up with the statements of the prosecution and the defense. In the review of the case by the attorneys the sordid conditions existing in the neighborhood of Fort Ethan Allen were touched upon by counsel for both the state and the defendant, on one side to show that the case called for the maximum penalty, and on the other to establish a plea for leniency upon the grounds that Margaret Carter was the victim of heredity, environment and misfortune.

Her plea, guilty of murder in the second degree, was entered in court last week.

CAPTAIN DEVORE OF WEST POINT TEAM

Heroics are out of fashion in football these days. The intelligent cooperation between coaches and trainers, the demands for instant if not always long sustained efficiency under the new rules and the tendency toward a cleaner game have combined to put an end to the old time displays of what was called pluck and really was foolhardiness. When men are injured nowadays they are taken out of the game, and the player is encouraged to report the slightest hurt to coach and trainer to the end that the same may be promptly attended to in the hope that the player may be saved from a long siege in the hospital. One of the best coaches in the east tells his players before the practice, as well as before the game, "When you are hurt, I want you to quit and to come in and tell me about it. You don't have to limp, and you don't have to groan, nor do you have to be so badly hurt that you fall down several times in the attempt to get back into the lineup."

Under the modern system the men who are close to football can see nothing that approaches pluck in playing the game to a finish when the player is afflicted with a floating rib that may punch a hole in his lung at any instant. Time was when the men who played on uncomplainingly when they could hardly stand or see even in for more than their share of applause and the man who staggered about the field, only at last to reel back into the lineup, was applauded from the stands and made as much of as the man who went through the game without injury and played his best.

The injured man is a useless factor in the present day team work, and no first class eleven has any room for him. The time has gone by when a man could wear an aluminum plate over his ribs or play while suffering agonies from an ulcerated tooth, for was the case with "Bucky" Vail of Pennsylvania when the Quakers de-

Players are no longer expected to emulate Morris Ely of Yale and Sowell, the Navy quarterback, who played in their big games with fractured ribs. Both of these men probably would have been taken out at once had there been any indication in their play that they were so seriously hurt.

In these days the injured man walks uncomplainingly to the side lines, where he finds coach and trainer waiting for him, and says simply, "My knee," "My ankle" or "My neck." His hurt is dressed at once, and he has a chance to rest and recuperate, for any trainer worthy the name has a horror of the university hospital. Too often when the man goes to the hospital he is immediately put to bed, is compelled to go on a diet not calculated to maintain his strength and is kept there long after the active trainer would have had him out on the field again in good shape.

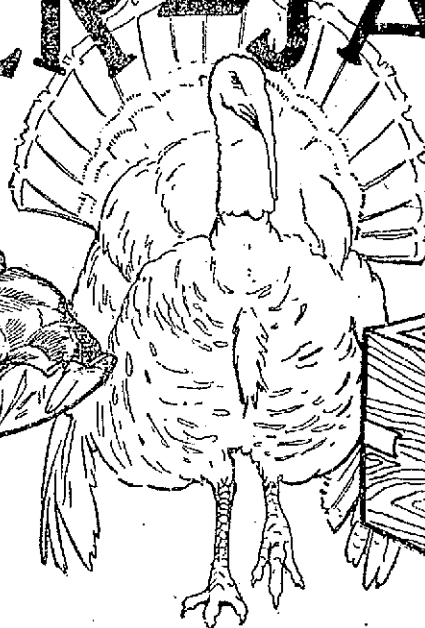

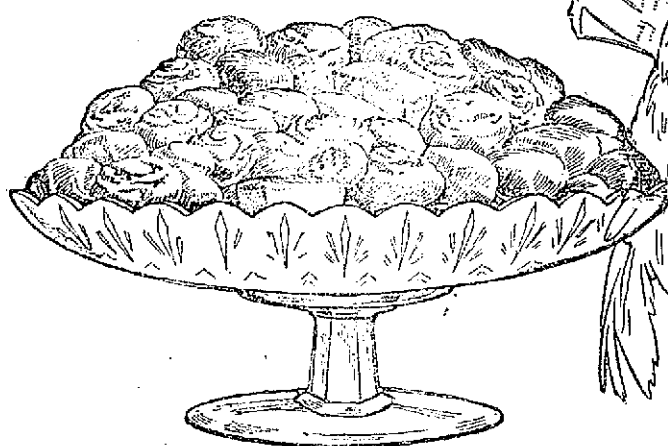

Little by little men like Mike Murphy of Pennsylvania, Johnny Mankley of Cornell, Keene Fitzpatrick of Princeton, "Toots" Donovan at Harvard and Mack of Yale have edged their way into the football councils to the extent that their reports on the condition of players have been accepted as final. There are men on the side lines at every football game these days, big or little, who under the old regime would have been on the field and in every scrimmage. The trainers are masters of the art of first aid to the injured, and they will pull a man out of the game, no matter what the score or how great the apparent need of his presence, and it is an intelligent coach who leaves this matter to the expert who has made an exhaustive study of the condition of the men and often knows more of their temperaments than the coach himself.

Time was when the trainer's chief function was to bandage injured men and send them back into the game while the play was under way or to devise intricate and complicated protective armor specially designed to cover a weak spot. Nowadays the trainer sends even the whole player into the game well protected by expert bandaging, and back trainer and coach insist upon properly placed padding that usually has to pass inspection. In the nineties a man supervised his own bandaging and his own padding, too often with unfortunate results. The injury to Felton, the tall and left footed kicker of the Harvard eleven last season is a case in point. In some way the big crimson punter passed muster with a badly arranged and insufficient hip pad and sustained an injury that kept him out of the Princeton game.

It is this matter of protective bandaging that does not include the heavy armor of five years ago that makes the work of the football trainer far more difficult than that of the man who has to look after the league baseball players. Harry Tutbill, for years with the New York National baseball club and later with the Detroit Tigers, is one of the baseball trainers who have found football work to their liking and have mastered the theory and practice of protective bandaging. He is at present conditioning the West Point eleven and has achieved results. The condition of the men between the halves of the Army-Yale game was a fair sample of his work. It used to be the theory that the cadet life was about all the conditioning a man needed. Yet in the old days it was no uncommon thing to find the cadet eleven without the services of a trainer, exhausted and gasping for breath between the halves. Against the heavy armor of five years ago was conspicuous by its absence. The players between the halves were almost as fresh as they were when the opening whistle sounded, and they sat up and talked about the game, what they had done in their first half and what they would do in the second.

Tutbill had a simple test for the man who thinks he is in condition for a fast game of football. He suggests that the would be player run about half a mile and then try to whistle. It is infallible. West Point had just season a better conditioned eleven than in many years, and the proof of the pudding already has been found in the eating.

The trainer is often better able to find the "quitters" or lazy men in the squad than the coach. The player is apt to be less on his guard when he is being ruled down and bandaged. Often a man who does not like the hard work of football is attracted by the gauds of the game—the uniform and the training table. He will do a little work as possible consistent with remaining on the squad through the season. It is this sort of man that is given to magnifying the slightest injury. Too often the coach cannot see through the sham, but the trainer is far more difficult to fool. It is no uncommon thing to hear a trainer say of a player, "Oh, he is only foxing out of it." The good trainer will refuse to patch up the lazy man, preferring to send him to the hospital, where he will be kept in bed and starved on milk and toast. This is an excellent cure for laziness. There are players, too, who, although always in the thick of the play in the practice scrimmage, are "game shy." They play brilliant football when they are facing men they know, but seem to have a deeply rooted fear of the strange teams. These men will re-fire from a game on the slightest pretext. It is the trainer's duty to single them out and report to the coach. The next process is to send the men to the third or fourth eleven in the hope of shaming him into regularizing his courage under fire. Winning teams and winning coaches lead to more victories. A trainer with a winning record seems to be equally indispensable. Princeton's rapid advance in track and field athletics last year was due, of course, to a large extent, to the excellent coaching of Keene Fitzpatrick, but Fitzpatrick had a long record of successes behind him when he went to Princeton, and this, too, was a potent factor in the defeat of Yale in the annual game. A successful trainer cannot make a successful football team when the coaching is poor, but he can and does help mightily. Trainers watch their men in action so closely that they soon pick up an excellent knowledge of the game, and many of them would make good coaches. Both Fitzpatrick and Murphy are excellent judges of football and either could coach a team without assistance. It sometimes happens that a man is lost through failure to heed the advice of the trainer, and it is the fashion nowadays to give him a voice in the coaching council.

FIRST REUNION OF SUITE

That Accompanied Cardinal to Rome

WILL BE HELD IN BOSTON THIS EVENING

Mrs. O'Brien, P. R. of St. Patrick's and Mrs. Donohue of Lowell to Attend

The members of the suite who accompanied His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, to Rome upon the occasion of his elevation to the Sacred College of Cardinals, will meet at the distinguished prelate's home in Boston this evening, when the first reunion of the guests will be held. It was suggested on the boat while returning from Rome, that the party meet annually and the cardinal has taken the initiative and invited all those who were present on that notable occasion to assemble at his home this evening.

Monsignor William O'Brien, P. R. of St. Patrick's church and Mrs. J. T. Donohue, of this city were members of the suite, and both will assist at the reunion ceremonies this evening. Mrs. Donohue is a sister of Rev. John Gilroy, of Lowell, and Rev. James Giddy of Marblehead, both formerly of Lowell, and they, too, were with the party, and will be in attendance this evening.

Joseph O'Connell and Mary O'Connell, both formerly of Lowell, but now residing in Boston, will be present at the meeting, both having accompanied His Eminence on his trip to Rome.

One member of the suite has passed away during the year, but it is expected that all others will be in attendance. There will be lunch, addresses and an informal program carried out.

St. Peter's Parochial School Nearing Completion--- Will Have All Modern Requisites and Improvements

THE NEW ST. PETER'S PAROCHIAL SCHOOL FROM A DRAWING BY ARCHITECT ROURKE

The new St. Peter's parochial school in Gorham street when completed will be one of the prettiest of its kind in this city and will reflect much credit on the pastor, Rev. Dr. D. J. Keleher, the architect, Henry L. Bourke, and the contractor, Edward A. Twohey.

The building is being erected on the site of the temporary church and meeting hall which were sold and removed some time ago, and sits on the east side of Gorham street at the corner of Union street. It will be a beautiful edifice, three stories high with all modern improvements. The building is not yet finished and may not be for some time, although work is being pushed rapidly but it will be ready for occupancy next September.

The outside of the school house presents a fine appearance as it is finished with mottled white face brick surmounted by a large copper cornice, while the basement above the ground is of the finest of granite. The outside of the structure is finished with the exception of the cornice which is about half done, and also of the taking down of the stappings.

The structure will contain 15 class rooms which is deemed sufficient for the present to accommodate both the boys and the girls of the parish. On the first floor will be situated five class rooms, the dimensions of which will be 28 by 32 feet. There will also be an office, 15 by 24 feet, a study room, 12 by 24 feet, as well as four large wardrobes, 5 to 25 feet.

On the second floor will be six class rooms and four wardrobes, all of the same dimensions as on the first floor, while the third floor will contain four more class rooms, four wardrobes and a large assembly hall, 68 by 37 feet, these dimensions including a stage or platform 13 by 37 feet.

All the inside finish on the first,

HENRY L. ROURKE Architect

second and third floors will be of North Carolina pine with transoms bars over door, which will greatly help in the ventilation of the class rooms. The class rooms which will be sheathed with No. Carolina pine two ft. and six inches high, while the sheathing in the corridors and wardrobes will be five feet in height. The sanitary sheathing will be put up to a height of seven feet, while the walls of the vestibule front will be artistically finished in North Carolina pine.

The chalk trays, blackboards and picture moldings are also to be installed by the contractors and will be of the usual kind used in such buildings.

The basement which is spacious and constructed in a very sanitary manner, will contain a boiler room and a coal pocket. On one side of the building will be the boys' toilet room as well as a large play room, while a small portion of this part of the building will also be devoted to storage purposes. The other half of the basement will be devoted to the girls and will contain a toilet room and a large play room, all well equipped with the latest improvements in sanitary fixtures.

As above stated the outside of the building is finished with the exception of the installing the cornices and also the windows, while the interior of the edifice has reached the stage of plastering, a shift of men now being busily engaged in it, although there is very little of that to be done, as the building is being put up by the fireproof method, most of the plaster being put on the brick walls.

The building is large and roomy and has two entrances, one in Gorham street and another in Union street. Architect Henry L. Bourke drew the plans for the building and is now supervising the work, while the general contract was awarded Contractor E. J. Twohey. The sub-contractors were given as follows: Joseph J. Albert, mason; Matthias Connor, plasterer; Carroll Bros., cornice and ventilation and heating. The H. R. Barker Co., plumbing.

EXPLOSION WRECKS BIG PLANT

It is Thought That 12 Persons Are Dead and That 27 Were Injured

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Nov. 26.—An explosion which wrecked the dry starch house of the Corn Products company's plant yesterday afternoon killed between three and twelve workmen, injured 27 others, several of whom will die, and caused about $100,000 property damages.

Uncertainty as to the number of dead was caused by inability of firemen to search the burning ruins because of continued mineral explosions.

Edward Conrad, deputy in the Lake County coroner's office, was authority for the statement that 12 men at least had been trapped in the wrecked building.

Charles Ebert, superintendent of the Corn Products company's Waukegan plant, said that only three men had been killed and 27 injured by the explosion.

"Only 30 men had business in the starch house at the time of the explosion," said Mr. Ebert. "We have 27 of these at the hospital and three bodies have been recovered. That checks the list and I think this will be found to be absolutely correct."

Mr. Ebert admitted it was possible that additional workmen not employed in the starch house, might have been caught in the explosion, but said this was improbable.

Nearly all of the workmen killed or injured were Polish, Lithuanian or Austrian and they were on the company's payroll by numbers and not by names. This further increased the difficulties met by the coroner in his efforts to arrive at a correct death list.

The explosion tore the two-story frame top house from the five-story building and scattered bits of it for 50 yards in all directions. The body of one man was blown across the Chicago & Northwestern railroad's right of way on to a hillside in Oakwood cemetery.

All of the injured were coated with starch which had to be washed off before surgeons could treat their injuries. Private automobiles were pressed into service to carry the injured to the hospital.

Firemen from North Chicago, the National Envelopes plant and the American Steel and Wire company's plant aided the Waukegan department in preventing spread of the fire to other portions of the big corn products plant.

FINE DISPLAY OF MOTOR CARS

An attractive showroom is one of the principal features of the automobile business and much attention has been paid to this phase of the industry by the Lowell Automobile Corporation in Appleton street. Manager Emerson, whose long experience in the trade has made him familiar with the proper background for the display of cars, has evolved a scheme of decoration which is particularly handsome and is a striking object for the painting and finish of the Buick, Oakland and Little Four, which have been on exhibition in the spacious showrooms for the past week.

The annual automobile show at the Lowell Automobile Corporation was opened one week ago yesterday and was to have come to a close Saturday night, but while hundreds of automobile enthusiasts attended during the week there were others who were either unable to be present or else the attendance was so large that these who were desirous of learning the good qualities of the cars did not have the opportunity. Therefore, Manager Emerson has decided to continue the show during the remainder of the week and he and his salesmen, Messrs. Hale and O'Neil, will be present every day between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 10 o'clock at night to explain the details of the different cars as well as to give demonstrations.

Since the opening of the show many people have signed contracts for new cars, while there are others who undoubtedly will purchase cars for delivery in the spring.

The public is cordially invited to attend the show and inspect the different models on exhibition.

Not only in the designing is the manufacturer catering to the woman. Some concerns are now employing women to sell. While there are but very few women who have had training in this line, if there are any today who feel that they have special ability in that line they need only convince one of the leading manufacturers of that ability and a position is open.

Various models of the Rambler are now on exhibition at the Moody Bridge garage in this city.

George Jessop, the well known racing pilot, who is now demonstrating the Oakland cars, was in Lowell last week with an Oakland Greyhound 6-50 seven passenger car, and gave demonstrations to a score of Lowell people. Artistically, the car is a beauty. The body is of a graceful design, roomy and is sure to meet the approval of the careful buyer. Being equipped with an electric lighting and ignition system and other good qualities, it contains every necessity for the fullest enjoyment of motoring. The ten-inch upholstery makes the car luxurious for extended touring.

George A. Mevis, of this city, formerly with the Knox Automobile Co. of Springfield, but now with the Packard Co., with headquarters at Hartford, Conn., visited his parents in this city Saturday night and Sunday, but returned to Hartford yesterday. George, who has made a careful study of automobile trucks, stated to the writer that the year 1913 is going to be a red letter year for trucks and he is very enthusiastic over the commercial cars being turned out by the Packard Co.

If every man who drives his car during the winter knew it, he would save himself possible bother by changing to a lighter grade of oil when the weather becomes colder.

Some motors are supposed to have a heavy grade of oil, and if the heavy grade is used, there will be some difficulty because the cold having made the oil thicker, it will not feed through the pipes as readily as when it is warm and thinner.

If the oiling system is such that all the oil is poured directly into the crank case, or if the reservoir is right on the motor where it will be kept warm, no change is required. In the case of a motor using an oil pump and leads to the various parts, the lighter grades should be used; and the leads cleaned well when the change is made. It will be found that the motor starts more easily, too, after standing in the cold for several hours.

It's a good plan to clean out the old grease and oil in the clutch, gear box, rear axle and wheels and put in a thinner grade. This cleaning won't hurt the car, after a summer's work, even though it is not considered necessary to change the lubricants.

The larceny of Contractor Edwin A. Shipman's Lenox touring car from Dutton street Sunday should be a warning to automobile owners who have been in the habit of leaving their machines unattended for any length of time in the public streets for despite the efforts of the police to protect the owners it is very easy for a thief, who understands the operation of a car, to steal one. Any person passing through Middle Market, Paige or John streets during the day can see scores of automobiles unattended and unless the passerby was very familiar with the various cars owners a thief might crank the engine, enter a car and drive away without the passerby knowing that a larceny was being committed. Automobile thieves have been operating in New York, Boston and other large cities but it is very rarely that cars have been stolen in Lowell. Some machines are equipped with magnets that are locked by a key while others have various appliances to protect the owner and it would seem very advisable for

ABOUT SPECIFICATIONS

"SPECIFICATIONS" are the misleading things in automobile advertising. It is just about as fair to compare two cars having the same motor dimensions, wheel base and other identical details, as it is to compare two men wearing the same size hats—you cannot judge their efficiency by similarity of looks or size. Two motors can be alike in bore and stroke, and still differ materially in the power and efficiency. The question naturally arises: "What makes the difference?" and the answer is "The method of manufacturing and the materials used." As an example, the quality of the motor depends on the way the pistons are ground, the style of bearings used, type of gears, carburation and the method of lubrication. What is true of the motor is true of every other component part.

Within 20 minutes after the project was explained by Mr. Fisher at a banquet in Indianapolis recently, a sum of over $10,000 had been pledged by the automobile manufacturers and dealers of the Hoosier capital alone. Those connected with the automobile industry in other cities and states have not been slow in responding, and the temporary committee, composed by Carl G. Fisher and James A. Allison, which is now in charge of the business details of the project, reports that there is no apparent reason why the enterprise should not be carried to a successful completion. Bonded trust companies will be appointed to receive pledge payments as they come in, and not a dollar of this money is to be spent until the entire fund of $10,000,000 or more is guaranteed.

Suggestions To the Home Dressmaker

IT IS almost twenty-five years since draperies ruled in fashion's domain. In those days—back in the late eighties—every modish skirt had an overskirt, the overskirt being caught up in some manner of drapery or other, and the skirt itself having a pleated or plain lower portion set on a "sham" which was made of some cotton lining material or—if the wearer could afford it—of silk. In the early eighties the "sham" was built out at the top over a bustle; at the end of this decade "reeds" or long flexible half-hoops run through casings, distended the "sham" beneath the overskirt drapery. Those who can remember as far back as this period recall how the tapes that tied the ends of the "reeds" were forever tearing away, the flattening out of the skirt at the back causing one much mortification. Now draperies are back in high favor but instead of being built out over whalebone distended foundations, they are drawn as softly and limply around the limbs as narrow skirt measurements and silky-soft fabrics will admit. With the entrance of draperies have come new worsted and new silk and satin materials softer and simpler than ever these materials were woven before, and everything, from chiffon to velvet brocade is obtainable in double width—which means that draped effects are much simplified for the dressmakers.

Metallic Chiffons Touch the Luxury Climax.

Of course these wide velvets, silks, brocaded crepes and metallic chiffons are ruinously expensive. Some of the prices, by the yard, are fairly staggering, but the draped gowns are so enchantingly lovely and so becoming into the bargain that one would not return to the era of straight, limp Empire lines if one could. Damask crepe de chine is a new silken stuff that is gaining favor every day and another figured material that is soft and graceful in texture as well as splendid in coloring, is metallic chiffon—which is simply double width chiffon in new, wonderful colorings splashed over with great Oriental figures in dull silver or gold. One of the draped costumes illustrated today shows this splendid metallic chiffon in combination with plain chambrase. The costume is a long sleeved and high-necked model, intended for afternoon wear and is built of chambrase in a new shade of tangerine yellow or rust color. The chiffon is in the same warm tone with a bold pattern in dull gold and this metallic chiffon is draped most gracefully over the lower part of the skirt on one side of the costume, the drapery being carried upward in long lines at the other side and falling away in a cascade effect at the hip. The metallic chiffon also crosses the bodice in a surplice drapery at back and front, the long, shirred sleeve being of the plain chambrase. Amber pins are worn in the hair with this gown, and the ear-rings are gold with topaz drops.

Brick Red and Sulphur Immensely Fashionable.

Flame and sulphur, called suggestively "colors de l'Inferno" are the hues, far excellence of the new season in Paris. A close second to these warm tones are Besnard, a new brick red much favored by Callot Soeurs, geranium and tomato. But that there is a decided "feeling" for flame-suggesting hues, is evidenced by the preference for sulphur, amber and a reddish orange called Capucine. Sometimes flame and sulphur are used together, or Besnard and amber, a gown of this type being pictured on the seated figure. This gown is a Worth model and its conservatism of line is rather belied by the almost crude coloring. The amber colored satin gown is veiled with Besnard chiffon, sewn with an embroidery of small dull gilt beads. Over this beaded tulle are panels of satin in the brick red color, each panel being weighted with gilt bead fringe. The décolletage is filled in with very pale pink tulle and the collar ornament—a very important feature of the modern evening toilette—is of pink tulle drawn under a bandeau of amber beads, a choux of the tulle from which rises a paradise aigrette being placed at one side of the bandeau. This gorgeous costume is completed by boots of amber colored satin with faceted amber buttons.

Draperies Caught with Brooches.

Still another evening gown shows a simple and very graceful chiffon drapery over lace, the drapery being caught at girdle and knee with large, old fashioned cameo brooches. The colors in the gown repeat the soft pink and white camos tints, the tulle being of palest pink chiffon, draped over deeper pink satin veiled with white lace. The bodice of lace over pink satin is draped with pink and white chiffon and a delicate fringe of pink and crystal beads edges the bodice and the loose sleeves. This lovely pink and white costume was designed for a debutante of this season who will wear the cameo gown at one of the early cotillions in December.

The new draped effects are a veritable boon to the woman who must economize, for notwithstanding the costliness of the new fabrics many a passing evening gown will be able to hold up its head through another season, discreetly draped with a yard or two of chiffon, lace or novelty material. This hopeful possibility of economy is augmented by the fashion for one sided bodice effects. Given a partly worn white satin evening gown, there is no reason in the world why half of it—the worst half should not be covered up with a winding drapery of lovely bordered chiffon, or of stately brocaded velvet which will fall away in folds from the best half of the satin foundation. Or, if the inventory of last year's left-overs discloses only a usable skirt, the bodice being gone past redemption, a new bodice of lace may be constructed and skirt and lace bodice be married into united felicity by a long scarf-like winding drapery of fringe-edged chiffon.

Still another way to build over the last year's gown will be to veil it with a fur bordered chiffon tunic which will drop above a flounce of lace; tulle and lace flounce completely hiding the skirt of the passé gown. The bodice of lace draped over with chiffon like the tunic will complete a deliciously pretty new dancing gown the only expense for which will have been the new chiffon tunic, lace flounce and a little all-over lace to make the bodice.

Longer Skirts With New Draped Gowns.

The short skirt is an impossibility with the draped costume—unless all canons of grace are to be ignored. All the new draped gowns cover the feet and most of them drag on the floor, not only at the back but all the way around, so that the skirt has to be picked up when walking. This means, of course, very pretty foot-wear, for nothing is uglier, under the soft clinging draperies, than a clumsy walking boot. With all these draped costumes for afternoon wear are worn the daintiest boots having thin turned soles and, usually, very high heels, and draped gowns in the evening are accompanied by satin slippers or by high-heeled buttoned boots of satin, or kid. Afternoon boots are of satin, of bronze leather, of soft kid or of patent leather with dull kid tops and the buttons contribute to the prettiness of the boot, being of pearl, faceted crystal or of amber.

Even worsted materials are draped now and the new tailleur du ceramonte may not claim Parisian origin unless its skirt is caught up somewhere in ever so slight a draped effect. A black broadcloth altitud of this ceremonial character was noted the other day at an exhibition of paintings at a fashionable club. The coat was a pronounced cutaway model with very long tails at the back and a sloping front opening over an adorable vest of pale lilac satin brocade. A huge cluster of English violets, caught at the coat-front near the pale lilac vest made a striking color note. The skirt of this costume was very straight and slender in line and exactly at the line at back and front were two parallel lines of shirring which gathered up the material for a space of six inches. The draped effect resulting was very slight but it just saved the skirt from absolute plainness and gave it most modish lines. Six buttons were set on the lines of shirring—twenty-four buttons in all.

Charmeuse and Crepe Favored for Draped Effects.

As was to be expected, crepe de chine leapt to instant favor with the coming in of draped effects. No fabric is more beautiful than this long, familiar crepe de chine. Now that it is very easy to manage and is not beyond the reach of the average pocket-book, it is becoming to the stout as well as the slender figure and is exceedingly easy to manipulate, even by the amateur dressmaker. A charming afternoon frock of olive brown crepe de chine is illustrated. This frock shows a very simple drapery at the back of the skirt, the side gores having been cut in rather wide circular form and then drawn in, fold upon fold as the photograph shows, the drapery being held at the center back by a row of triple shirring over cords. The bodice is also very simple and crepe in surplice effect over a white satin yoke trimmed at back and front with green glass buttons. Cream lace trills edge the sleeves. The cluster of brown, gold and pale yellow velvet panicles, held in the hands, is intended for final location at the left front of the girdle and with this dainty gown will be worn buttoned boots of patent leather with tops of kid. The chiffon afternoon gown is a

COUSSEAU plans in the autumn always renew interest in lingerie belongings, and every woman, after the absorbing business of selecting the new winter wearables for outer wear, has been satisfactorily accomplished, likes to renew her stock of under wearables—or dainty "dessous" as the French woman calls them—according to latest trousseau notions.

All lingerie garments adhere to the slim, simple lines necessary under clinging gowns. Not the least suspicion of a gather is allowed at the waist and belts and buttons have long ago gone the way of flannel petticoats, knitted camisoles and other monstrosities of the past wherewith woman built out her form in the interests of a presumable protection from the cold. It has been proved that one new pattern. Embroidery trimmed petticoats are used even with dancing frocks, though the embroidery flounce is of the finest possible character and is mounted directly on the petticoat without any under-ruffle, a ribbon-threaded heading separating petticoat and flounce. Dancing petticoats have very deep flounces of exquisitely sheer embroidery, set on tops of nainsook or batiste and usually a frill of narrow lace is put under the edge of the scallops to give a very dainty look around the ankles. These deep flounces are set on without any added in the way of pin tucks. The petticoat of this sort is pictured. Flounce and batiste top are joined with seam beading and ribbon is run below this—through buttonholes when the flounce is deep. The lower edge of the flounce. Such petticoats fall to the ankle and show when the clinging dancing gown of satin is lifted; but the dainty petticoat, worn under the tailored skirt, falls no lower than the top of the buttoned walking boot and is not supposed to show at all. It has a top of cambric or fine muslin, beautifully fitted over the hips and a rather narrow embroidery flounce finishes it at the lower edge which is never more than a yard and three-quarters wide. These short petticoats do not collect the dust and mud of the pavement as longer ones used to do and because they are more practical and much more dainty than the silk petticoat which never visits the washbasin, they are being taken up again for street wear.

may be quite as warm and much more comfortable in lighter, thinner garments than were deemed possible twenty years ago and since all houses are now heated to midsummer heat and mammoth furs are the mode out of doors, there seems little reason why women should bundle themselves up as was perhaps necessary in the days when furnaces were not.

Just now embroidery trimmings are the whim of fashion and laces are used only to set off the beautiful needlework. The machine embroidered patterns, many of them done on hand looms abroad, are wonderfully beautiful, imitating the distinguished hand wrought effects with great fidelity, and some of these embroideries are distinguished in themselves, prices running up to four and five dollars, the yard for some of the exclusive

Under the petticoat is the culotte drawer which is made of soft nainsook and fits as perfectly as riding breeches; that is, there are no gathers over the hip and the lower edge is drawn in to the knee either by groups of pin tucks, or by a rubber run through beading. Ruffles do not appear on the new culotte drawer and if any trimming is used, it is an un-gathered edge of scallop and dot embroidery or a narrow bit of lace. Some women have taken up with enthusiasm the new chemise-pantalon which is made of tub material and which includes a pretty chemise and a short drawer, cut all in one garment and intended for wear beneath the corset. Others prefer to wear the drawer separately over the corset, and underneath goes a combination of glove silk or of fine silk and wool. Not one woman in ten—except those living out in country districts where the cold is intense—now wears a woolen union suit to the ankles.

The brassiere becomes more and more popular and indeed so indispensable has this little garment now become to the dainty woman's toilette, that the long-favored corsetcover and skirt combination bids fair to be ousted from favor. The new brassieres are so pretty that there is no need of donning a corsetcover over one of them, and the smart tub petticoat with its embroidery flounce reaching to the boot-top finishes out the requirement. A practical new brassiere is pictured. The trimming is dainty, yet not too dainty for everyday wear and the brassiere closes invisibly under a fold or pleat. The garment is not boned but owes its good lines to its perfect fit and its neat finish, all seams being joined with seam-beading.

Nightgowns are returning to the yoke idea and many of the new models for fall trousseaux have shaped yokes which sometimes extend out to form the sleeves. Nobody dreams of wearing plain long sleeves in a robe du nuit nowadays and some of the little sleeves are very embryonic affairs of lace or fine embroidery flouncing, held together on the outer side of the arm with ribbon. The lovely negligee pictured is a combination of embroidery and val lace. The lace panels cross a tulle and flounce of embroidery—a new sort of embroidery with pale pink flowers on a white ground, and around the hips, and just below the bust are set broad insertions of pink batiste with eyelets embroidered in white. This negligee is mounted over palest pink silk and the sash ends are of pink satin ribbon. A net cap trimmed with fine embroidery and pink ribbon matches the negligee and the buttoned walking boot of patent leather has been changed for pink beador slippers.

are two folds of tangerine net, the top of the gumpie being finished with a cream lace collar. Over the white satin gown is a tunic of Besnard chiffon which stops short at either side of the front, leaving a panel of the satin. The edges of the Besnard chiffon are finished with soutache dyed to match and formed into coiled discs on the white satin. Lastly a deep flounce of the Besnard chiffon is dropped over frock and tunic. White embroidered silk gloves meet the loose sleeves, and the hat of gold colored plush has a long white ostrich plume.

YELLOW COMPLEXION NOW.
PEACHES and cream complexions are no longer the fashion in Paris and the dead white face with burning lips has entirely gone out. Just now the olive, Oriental complexion with a red mouth and slightly shadowed eyes is the thing, and beauty experts are deriving much profit from the sale of new olive complexion specialties.

THE MISSING WITNESS IS FOUND

Mrs. Simmons Testified for the Government in the Hackett Murder Trial Today

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 26.—Mrs. Nettie Simmons, the state's witness who disappeared just before the trial of Mrs. Elsie Raymond was opened, and was located at Milford, Mass., told the jury today that she saw Mrs. Raymond wear the tan shoes between four and five o'clock the night of the murder. She also testified that Bert Raymond searched the orchard for his wife before seven o'clock, that he went back and forth over the path, which he denied yesterday he crossed that night, and finally that the Saturday after the murder Bert asked her to say that she saw Elsie sitting on a stone wall in the orchard at eight o'clock. Mrs. Simmons was asked if she was sure there was a stone wall in the orchard and she replied that she was sure and she had seen Mrs. Raymond sitting on it at other times. Foxwell Sedgely, who owned the premises and W. B. Getchell, the civil engineer who made the surveys in 1905, testified there was no stone wall there. The former, however, said there was a pile of broken rocks. Testimony was introduced showing that a four and a half shoe of a certain make such as Mrs. Raymond is claimed to have worn in 1905, would have been 9-12 inches long. The shoe she was wearing in the courtroom was removed and it measured 9-1-8 inches in length. An engineer testified that in a half-mile of the Nickerson hill there is a rise of more than 400 feet. This is the hill over which the state claims Mrs. Raymond made her way in order to commit the crime. The entire distance from the Raymond home to the place where the murder was committed is about two miles. The last testimony was presented at 12:30 o'clock and it was arranged before counsel that each side would take an hour and a half for arguments. Chief Justice Whitehouse will deliver the charge tomorrow morning and the case will go to the jury.

M'NAMICAL SAW YOUNG TRIAL OF 106 KOREANS

Latter Wanted Him to Do Charged With Conspiring Job, He Says ing to Kill Terauchi

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—Adhering to its argument that the dynamiters who already have confessed alone are responsible for explosions, the defense at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today continued its cross-examination of Orrie McManigal.

Senator John W. Kern, chief counsel for the forty-five defendants, pled McManigal with questions intended to show that the dynamite kept as sequestered as possible while on his trips of destruction.

"When I went to Boston to see Mike Young, the ironworkers' business agent, about blowing up the tower in the municipal building at Springfield in April, 1911, Young called me down," said McManigal. "He said he had told J. J. McNamara I was not to stop at Boston; that Young didn't want to be seen with me."

"Didn't McNamara tell you always to see as few people as possible and didn't you receive your instructions from McNamara alone?" asked Senator Kern.

"From McNamara and Hockin. Once when Hockin instructed me I told him if I was caught we all would be caught."

"But you never got any instructions about jobs to be blown up from anyone except McNamara?"

"I said McNamara and Hockin. Young in Boston talked to me about doing work for the local union and I told him I worked only for the International."

Olaf Tveitmo of San Francisco, a defendant who had been sitting at counsel's table since the trial began, was ordered by Judge Anderson to sit among the other defendants.

"I notice there is a perpetual smile on the face of the defendant Tveitmo while the witness is being examined," remarked Judge Anderson. "I will not permit any demonstration, either by smiling or otherwise."

NINE CHALLENGES

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The trial of Julian Hawthorne, Joseph Quincy and Albert Freeman, charged with fraudulent use of the mails in exploiting mining stocks, was continued today before Judge Hough in the United States district court. While there were 12 tentative jurors in the box the defense had nine peremptory challenges left and the prosecution six. Before any more challenges were made Judge Hough had 15 more talesmen called and they were examined for their fitness and freedom from bias. Several of the talesmen, while being questioned, said they had received some of the Hawthorne literature.

STEADY NERVES

A Priceless Possession but Impossible When the Blood Is Out of Order.

If you are nervous, always tired out and run down, impure blood is probably the cause. If you are pale, sleepless, irritable, have no ambition, suffer from headaches and backaches, you may be certain that the blood is at fault. Impure blood does more to hasten disease, unfit you for work and shorten life than anything else.

The man or woman whose blood is filled with impurities should remember that good, pure blood means health. Through the aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People health is within your reach. They go straight to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and giving it the elements which it lacks. For a good appetite, healthy color, health and strength, they have no equal. What these pills will do when given a thorough trial is shown in the case of Mr. George A. Herick, of No. 67 Clarendon street, Boston, Mass., who says: "I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People because they helped me when nothing else did. I was taken sick and called a doctor. He said I was all run down. He doctor me for six weeks or more, but I did not improve. I had no ambition or life. My appetite was poor and I was weak and could not work. I suffered from headaches, had no color and my heart action was very poor."

"I was so nervous that the slightest thing annoyed me and so cold most of the time that I almost froze. I could hardly walk down town. A friend called me to the telephone one night and asked me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Out of curiosity I bought a box. In a short time I began to improve and soon was back at work. My gain was almost beyond belief. Now I enjoy better health than I ever have and can stand exposure and hard work. I believe they are the greatest blood-builder and nerve tonic there is."

For anemia, chlorosis, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers, stomach trouble and all forms of general debility, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People should be given a thorough trial. A booklet, "Building Up the Blood," which is free upon request, will show what these pills have done.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

The executive committee of the Lowell Automobile league held a conference with Commissioner Brown of the street department and City Engineer Kearney at the rooms of the Appleton National bank yesterday afternoon. The league called the department's attention to a number of streets which contained bad spots and urged that they be repaired. Mention was also made of the dangerous condition of the Pawtucket boulevard and Commissioner Brown agreed to put it in shape by having in some orders from the pumping stations near by. This has been a treacherous spot for travelers for several months, and the league was anxious to get it repaired. Other streets were discussed and the commissioner agreed to do all he could to make them satisfactory. Signs for the street department and the league will place a number of signs at important spots with the approval of the street department. In Merrimack square it is expected that a large sign facing down Central street will be erected, indicating in bold letters the cities and towns in either direction.

This car is well known in a new creation with the Stevens-Duryea Co. as regards luxurious refinements and appointments, quietness and great power, but contains nothing of an experimental nature. Mr. Dana has demonstrated one of these cars in Lowell the past week and during that time he has inspired confidence in same. Its quiet, flexible operation, easy riding qualities, hill climbing ability and its distinctive beauty surely make for an ideal car.

When Overtaking Electric Cars in Mass. Highway, Rules State Supreme Court

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Automobiles overtaking an electric car in the middle of Massachusetts highways must pass to the left, by the decision of the state supreme court. Four of the seven justices decided in favor of this interpretation of the law today.

The minority of the court, including Chief Justice Ruger, expressed the opinion that it was not the intention of the legislature to include electric or horse cars within the law of the road and that it is impossible to comply with the law in some country towns where the tracks are on the extreme side of the highway.

The case arose over an accident in Revere. J. Sidney Foster was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas P. Curtis of Nahant. Mr. Curtis was passing an electric car to the right when his automobile struck Mr. Foster.

BASEBALL MAGNATES

Will Not Take Up the Charges of Fogel at the National League Session This Afternoon

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Magnates of the national league in session in New York, will not take up today the charges of President Fogel of the Philadelphia club involving his alleged statement that the pennant race was "fixed." This was tacitly agreed upon by the assembled club presidents in view of the death of John T. Brush. It was decided to go into session at 2 p. m. to adopt resolutions on Mr. Brush's death and adjourn until tomorrow.

Fogel said this afternoon that he did not know and had never heard of W. S. Forman, the Chicago newspaperman quoted in despatches from there today as saying that he "has Fogel's own word for it" that Fogel made the charges in order to help Murphy fight his battles in the National League.

"There is more politics than real solicitude for baseball behind this whole affair," continued Fogel. "All of these claims were started by Lynch in an effort on his part to gain sympathy for himself in his efforts for re-election as president of the national league."

SEARCHING FOR BODIES

In Ruins of Union Sulphur Works, Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Firemen and police were searching for bodies today through the smoldering ruins of the Union Sulphur Works, Brooklyn, and two adjoining blocks swept by a disastrous fire late yesterday. Eight men are reported missing and although it is believed they were merely unaccounted for in the excitement. The search is being conducted as a precautionary measure. Of the 15 removed to the hospital none had succumbed this morning.

O'Brien Needs Coaching

Young Jack O'Brien shows improvement every time he starts. In a recent ten-round bout with Young Brown, a sturdy New York scrapper, the Philadelphia gave a clever exhibition. His greatest failing is in not knowing how to protect himself at close quarters. At long range he played with Brown, but at in-fighting failed to distinguish himself. Of course, O'Brien is very young and may remedy this defect under the careful coaching of his big brother, the original Philadelphia Jack.

O'Brien wants to meet Ad Wolgast again. It will be remembered the boys boxed six rounds a few months ago, and the Quaker City scribes opined that Young Jack had the best of it. Wolgast was not in championship form by any means on that occasion, it being his second short tryout after a long spell of illness following the operation for appendicitis, and O'Brien's supporters should not bank too strongly on the result of that encounter.

MANY FOOTBALL "STARS"

Coach Says Reports to Contrary Erroneous

Coach Amos Alongo Stagg of the University of Chicago comes to the defense of the modern football player. Assertions that no longer are the "star" players are, according to the "old man," decidedly erroneous. There are more "stars" to the square mile now, he declares than ever before.

"It seems to me," he remarked recently, "there are far more good players now than ever in the history of the game, and the reason we do not hear so much about them is that newspaper writers are becoming educated to the nine points of the game and are devoting as much space and as many encomiums to the men who open the holes in the line as they do to the man who carries the ball through those holes. When football was new in the middle west the attention of the game was centered on the individual. Take the average spectator nowadays, and he will pick out one man and give him credit for winning the entire game. 'Experts,' however, are now doing something to justify the appellation and see more than the spectacular.

"I think there are just as great players now as there used to be, but because there are so many their work does not stand out the way it did formerly. Take, for instance some of the men of this year. I have none of spectacular ability on my team, but take some of the teams in the west.

"Purdue has a player in Gilphart who is as spectacular as any would want to see. No fault could be found either with Parsons of Iowa or with Curry of the same team, for they performed against Chicago in a way which brought back memories of the times when teams regularly were supposed to be built around one man. Gillette of Wisconsin is that type of star," the absence of which critics are bemoaning, while McAlmon of Minnesota is in the same class.

"Going down to Indiana, we have Des Jardien on the Chicago team, who is as flashy a center as I have seen in many years. Des Jardien's work is unpolished to a degree, but there can be no doubt that he is spectacular and conforms to what some critics seem to desire. Last year we had Scruby, while there were a number of line men on other western teams who contributed to what the critics seem to want to see."

Other critics than Coach Stagg evidently believe today's football public is better educated than that of a half dozen years ago and demands team work rather than individual stars. Just as theatrical managers are abandoning the "star system" and sending out balanced companies, so football coaches are abandoning the idea of featuring any individual player and are sending out eleven which are a unit. Team play is the slogan at all western schools this year, and the wonderful success Chicago had in the last two games of last season, when the Maroons were a well rounded team instead of featuring one player, seems to indicate the public appreciates this.

Even in the days of "old football" team play was more appreciated than individual stardom. The most famous game in Chicago was the Michigan-Chicago contest of 1905, which the Maroons won, 3 to 0. This was a game in which there were equal stars on the field and every one of these played an equal part and shared equally in the result.

There were a number of "stars" on each team, it is true, but the stars got little more credit than they did in their own games. "Stars" had appeared in previous games and have worked in later ones and done spectacular work, but none of the games ever compared with the 1905 championship contest, in the roster's opinion.

Coach Stagg is a firm believer in the new rules. He declares that from the standpoint of the spectators the rules of 1912 are the best yet devised, while from the player's viewpoint the code is in many ways superior to the one in force previous to 1906 and inferior in none. He says the experiments of the year from 1906 to 1911 have at last given the rule makers a knowledge of what they want and how to get it and that the days of experiment are done with, save in minor particulars.

A study of rosters at this year's games compared with those at the old time contests demonstrates that notwithstanding the lapse of time there has been no change in what the public wants. Although old timers declare the chief beauty of football was the old line plunging, the crowds at those contests scarcely bore out that assertion. Nothing was applauded in the old game like the sweeping end runs and the unexpected trick plays which got the runner out in the open in view of all the spectators. The rushing game, where the man in the grandstand could not see what was happening, may have been popular, but cheering at those times did not seem to indicate this.

Oldest Man in the World is to Visit Chicago---Is Indian Chief

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Chicago is soon to entertain the oldest man in the world. He is Wah-Nah-Gun-Ta, a 131 year old Blackfoot Indian. He was born in the region now known as Glacier National park in 1781, according to well authenticated tradition. His wrinkled countenance bears this out. He was the first red man in that territory to visit the great white father, and his journey to the national capital when President Jefferson was in the

Jim Barry, who recently returned from Australia, didn't enjoy his visit very much. Writes Barry: "Just a word of advice to the American boxers. The only man getting any money in Australia is Hugh C. McIntosh. He gets both ends and the middle. They regard him as a king there, and anything he does or says is law with the natives."

"At present he has Langford and McVey tied up so they cannot leave. As you perhaps know, for a colored man to enter Australia the promoter must put up a bond of $1000 for six months, and as long as he enters to renew the bond the boxer must stay there; hence the prolonged stay of Langford and McVey. McIntosh told me himself that if he ever got Johnson back there he would keep him there as long as he was able to draw a gate. I have posted Jack on his intentions, and there is not a chance of the big negro going there unless McIntosh posts his money in an American bank and also signs a contract that he can leave as soon as his three fights are over."

Johnny Coulon Will Be Busy With Kid Williams

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 26.—Johnny Coulon, holder of the bantamweight title, will be a busy little individual within the next few weeks. Johnny has agreed to tackle Kid Williams, the Baltimore star, in this city Dec. 17 in a 10 round contest. This will be the second meeting of the boys. The first battle resulted in a draw, but many experts were of the opinion that in another bout Williams would defeat Coulon. Williams is one of the best little men that ever put on a glove, and unless Coulon is in the best of shape he is likely to receive a beating. Charley Ledoux, the champion bantamweight of Europe, will be matched with the winner. The latter recently made his debut in this country against Battling Reddy and impressed the critics by his fast work. He has 54 knockouts to his credit. If Coulon can get away with these two cracks he can afford to rest. Quarterbacks Are Important Under New Gridiron Code

DEWITT, PRINCETON'S FULLBACK

With the last games at hand the importance of having a competent field general is being more and more vividly impressed upon the minds of football instructors. The quarterback position carries more prestige and is a more difficult job to fill satisfactorily this year than ever before, for the reason that under the new rules many contests are either won or lost upon his ability to choose effective formations at appropriate times, thus making a timely attack.

Since the new code affords such a varied style of offense the man who stands behind the center must use his brains continually. Success comes only after the quarter has scrupulously fixed up his opponent and then selected the formation that his coach has instructed him to use to meet that particular situation. When the game is at its height it is a very common failing for even experienced leaders to forget all about certain formations that have been gone over and over in practice. In such a case the rules seem to have made ample provisions for it is the custom of most instructors to assist their quarterbacks from the side lines by sending in suggestions by a fresh player. This means of aid is a great advantage to the field general at critical times and in many cases has had a direct result upon the outcome of the contest.

To carry on an effective attack it is essential that the field general look the situation over very thoroughly before he calls his signal, but he must be able to give on the enemy at a glance, for a pair of wise defensive tactics can easily discern which way the play is going to be directed by the leader hesitating to look at the spot at which the attack is to be driven.

For instance, if the defensive halves are playing deep, tackle smashers and end runs are almost bound to prove ground gainers, as the opposing line is sure to be weakened by the absence of these two players. Fake backs and split formations may also be used to advantage under such circumstances. On the other hand, if the opponents are using a single line of defense, then is the most effective time to operate the forward pass, with the receiver of the ball running wide, so that he will make the catch before the defensive fullback has a chance to intercept.

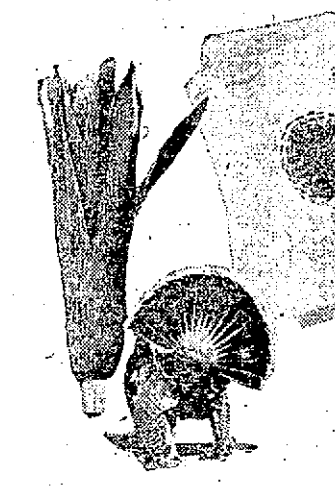

Before going into a contest the quarter should have his mind clearly made up as to what plays he is going to use to start the combat. This does not mean it is necessary to lay out a plan for the whole game. Such an idea is impracticable, as no one can tell beforehand what will be the circumstances. At the showing of a team for the first few moments is mighty important, the leader should so drive his men that his eleven will get the jump

Although degenerate modern digestive machinery has brought about a curtailment of the Thanksgiving feast, it is a question whether it has improved the quality. Certain it is that while the housekeeper of today has less to prepare to meet the critical twentieth century appetite each course must be a gustatory gem in a fit setting, and, with the high cost of living rising to alarming heights every day, this is no easy task.

The usual dishes present no difficulties to the good cook. Practice has made perfection in these long ago, but there are many little ways of making them more attractive and many little ailments of which she may be unaware.

Cider jelly is a new way of offering apple juice, which is considered by many housewives an indispensable item of the Thanksgiving menu. Take a quart of cider, but be sure it is quite fresh. Then add a teaspoonful of lemon juice, enough sugar to make it agreeably sweet and heat it in a skillet. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in a little cold water and pour the hot cider upon it. Stir thoroughly and strain through a cloth, then chill in the refrigerator. It is pretty if molded in a design of cars of corn or other seasonal emblem and served on a platter encircled by a ring of spiced pears.

A delicious salad which is good to serve when the main course is turkey is dressed on individual plates as follows: A bed of lettuce is arranged on a plate, and on this is a slice of Bermuda onion, with green sweet peppers, tomato and cucumber. French dressing is the proper accompaniment.

To serve with the turkey or to follow closely upon it try cranberry water iced. Pick over a quart of fine plump cranberries and pour on them a quart of hot water. Cook until soft and reduce to one-half its original quantity and allow it to cool. Add the juice of a good sized lemon, a slurp made of a quart of boiling water and two cupfuls of granulated sugar cooked until it thickens. Stir well and freeze to the consistency of water iced. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Here is a form of houllet that will

on the enemy right at the start. If he is so fortunate the chances for victory are greatly in his favor.

Supposing a team receives the kickoff at the opening of a contest, it is invariably a wise play to punt the ball at once. The idea of this is to get the oval deep into the opponents' territory. The kicking should not be kicked across the goal on such an occasion, thus giving the opposing team a chance to scrimmage on or kick from their 20-yard line. If the distance to the line is short, let the ball be punted out of bounds on the five or ten-yard line. Right here is where many contests are won, for the offense should be coached after getting their opponents down in the ditch, to smash in, blow the out of danger kick and recover the oval, which in most cases means a sure touchdown. A score at the outset of a big game is a great advantage and is something for which every field general should strive.

In a number of games already played the quarterback has called for plays straight through the line. As a rule, this is a grave mistake, and the coaches should impress the necessity of hitting on or off tackle with a hard driving back whenever the ball lies inside of the ten-yard mark. It might be said here, that when the line is as near to the goal as the one yard line many teams have been scoring by using a play where the ball is passed to the quarter, and he, with the center opening up a hole, forces himself unaided across the goal line. The policy of taking advantage of the sending a play over him the instant he reaches his position is one of the best signals to call when a necessary gain is to be made.

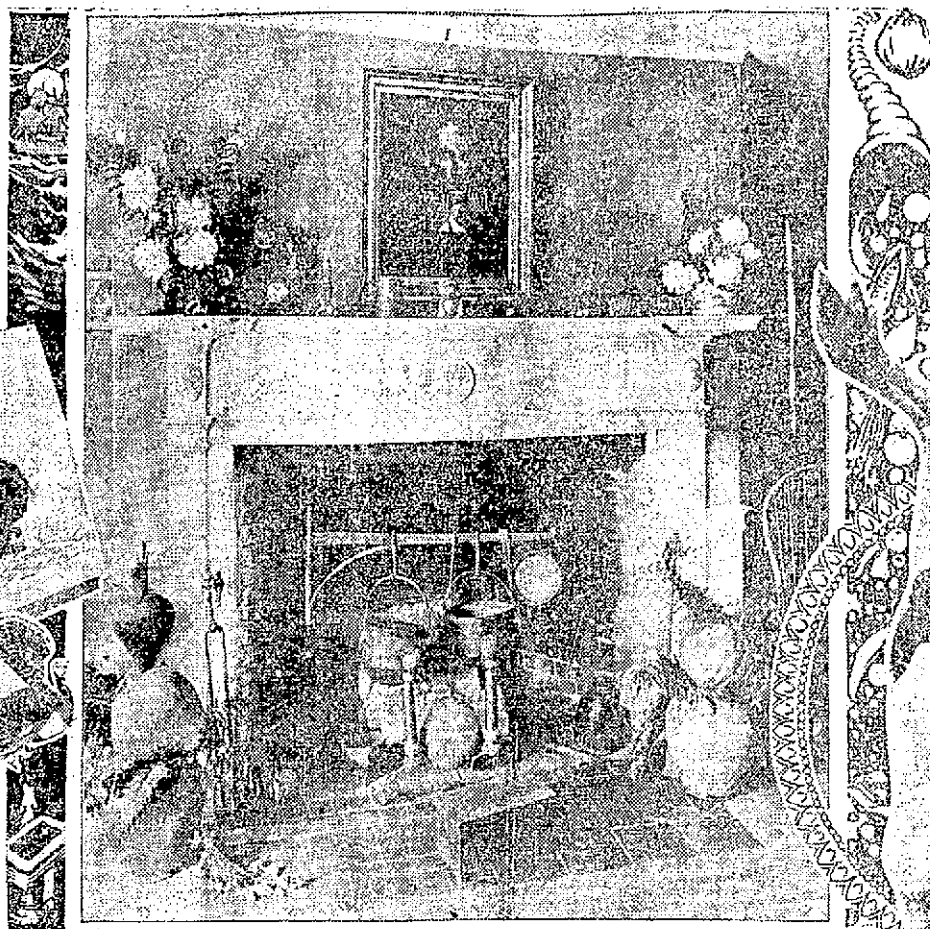

The split interference formations, concentrated smashes off tackle with a man shifted and an occasional end run for the purpose of variation are the methods of advance which the most successful field generals are calling for.

BIG CLASS INITIATION

Great Event for the Odd Fellows on Dec. 7

The class initiation which will be held in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street, Saturday, Dec. 7, by the local lodges in Lowell and North Billerica of the Manchester Unity, Independent Order of Odd Fellows will go down in history as the greatest event in the order and ought to bring out many members. The returns that are coming in show a goodly number of candidates from all the lodges and there will, without doubt, be the biggest body of Odd Fellows on that night ever gathered in one building in this city. The committee in charge of the several departments is working hard to make this initiation a grand success. The committee on arrangements met last night in Elks hall and completed all arrangements. As there are five lodges taking part, there should be at least 100 candidates. The object of this affair is to increase the membership in this part of the district and every member is striving to bring in a candidate. Through the chairman, John Bennett of Waverly lodge, Mr. Frost of the Odd Fellows building will present a silver cup to the lodge who has the most candidates be new to many cooks and for a soup course is good to serve, as the Thanksgiving menu is generally a rather long and hearty one. Shimmer two tablespoonfuls of tapioca in two quarts of clear beef stock until smooth. When done put in the yolks of raw eggs in the proportion of one yolk to two persons. Place the eggs in the bottom of the tureen. Now pour in the hot soup and beat until soup and eggs combine in a frothy cream.

Creamed lobster makes a delicious entree or fish course. Have ready a pint of lobster meat cut into dice and prepare the following mixture: A dozen canned mushrooms sliced thin and heated in a cup of their juice with two slices of onion. Thicken with butter and flour as usual and then brown it. Remove the onion and add a quarter pint of stock, two drops of tobacco and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Heat the lobster meat in this and serve in little individual dishes or paper cases, with a little finely minced parsley. It must be served very hot.

Here is a method of treating the national bird that is rather new to the American taste. It is turkey in the Hamburg way. Take a pound of lean beef—flank steak is the best—mince it very fine and add to it three-quarters of a pound of beef suet, a bunch of sweet herbs chopped up and a clove of garlic minced fine. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg and bind all together with three eggs. Draw and singe the turkey. Raise the skin all round the breast and back and put in the stuffing. Truss the turkey and cover with buttered paper. You may first broil the breast with fat pork. Roast it exposed to the flame in your gas oven or in the usual way in the coal range, basting well until done. One and one-half hours suffice for a young hen turkey if small and two and a half hours for a large bird. When done take off the paper and baste with butter, sprinkle with salt and dredge lightly with flour to give it the crusty brown appearance that is so good to look upon. When done place on a hot

Many housekeepers have apple pie recipes which are too sacred to admit of rivalry. Let her who is still open to conviction or who is a beginner try this excellent one: Soften a heaping

tablespoonful of butter and combine it with one pint of granulated sugar. Whip a cup of cream to a froth. Beat four eggs very lightly without separating them. Grate enough sour apples to give a pint of pulp. Mix all together. Line two deep pie plates or tins with paste and pour in the above mixture. Cover with the paste and bake until crusts look wholesomely brown. This rule gives two pies.

When there are small children in the household it is well to have on hand for Thanksgiving day a plentiful supply of nut crispies. These little cakes are delicious, as well as entirely harmless. To make them, take one tablespoonful of butter and add to it one cup of powdered sugar, next two well beaten eggs, then two and a half cups of rolled oats, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-quarter of a tablespoonful of salt and a few drops of vanilla flavoring. Drop the batter into boiling tins about a half teaspoonful for a cake, and bake in a slow oven until they are a light brown.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A regular meeting of Division 5, Ancient Order of Hibernians, was held last night in A. O. H. hall with President Kelly in the chair, and the usual routine business was transacted. There were five applications for membership received and acted upon, and two candidates were initiated. The committee on the coming social and dance of the division reported progress in the arrangements and no effort will be spared to make the event a big success in every way.

There were addresses given by President Kelly and Brothers Dorsey, Droney and Mahoney in regard to the plans of the order for the future. At the conclusion of the meeting the members went to the home of Thomas

FACTORY BUILDINGS NEEDED

One of the great needs of Lowell is factory buildings suitable for small industries that cannot afford to build for themselves. The greatest industries in the country grew from small beginnings, and the city that does not foster small industries is making a serious mistake.

The Board of Trade is active in holding out the inducements offered by Lowell to new industries; but as a rule small concerns are disregarded by some of our business men. It is a mistake to suppose that only large industries should come here or that those who promote the interests of our city should consider no others. It is good policy to foster the small as well as the large industries. The protective policy rightly applied in this country was originally intended to help our infant industries up to independence. Unfortunately, the protection was maintained in such abundance that some of the industries thus nurtured have become monsters that threaten even the government by whose generosity they were pampered. We do not favor that policy either nationally or locally; but we do believe that Lowell could greatly diversify her industries by taking care of small concerns and encouraging them by providing suitable quarters. We have waterpower that is controlled by the mills; but we have also an abundance of electrical power to run any number of small industries. It would pay any business man to invest in factory buildings for shoe shops and concerns of moderate size. No such building in any suitable location remains idle for any length of time which proves the necessity for such structures.

For the men of wealth who wish to invest their money to advantage, there is here an opportunity to help the city by furnishing suitable quarters for small but thriving enterprises that may in due time become an important part of our industrial life.

ROUND UP MEDICAL FAKERS

The United States government has made a most commendable round-up in having arrested 174 men on the charge of carrying on a secret distribution of implements and drugs for criminal medical practice. This business has been conducted extensively in this country for years past and it is alleged that vast sums have been extracted from unfortunates seeking to save themselves from scandal and disgrace. In some cases the medicines dispensed were harmless and served only to swindle the patrons out of their money; but in others the drugs and the implements were deadly and dangerous and it is the opinion of the authorities that the death of many a young girl shrouded in mystery was due to the secret advice of those who supply these drugs and implements. The guilty parties are protected by the great secrecy under which they do the business, for if the result is serious illness, the victims to avoid disgrace never reveal the cause while if it be death, they carry their secrets to the grave.

It is alleged that among the men who carry on this business the government has found doctors who bear a good reputation in the communities in which they reside. The medical profession generally, however, is not to be held responsible for the work of those ghouls who prey upon the unfortunate in the most heartless manner, offering them an alleged remedy that in unskilled hands usually results in death.

MISDIRECTED SYMPATHY

The trial of Ettore and Giovanni assumed a new phase when it was announced by a despatch from Rome that socialists would run the latter for parliament and that extremists are endeavoring to induce the Italian government to bring pressure to bear upon the American government in behalf of Ettore and Giovanni. It was announced also that if the two men were convicted a general strike would be declared throughout Italy. That shows to what an extent these men have propagated the idea of the general strike as a weapon for the coercion of government authorities, public service corporations and other employers of labor.

The United States government cannot interfere with the course of justice and there is every evidence that both men had an absolutely fair trial under the direction of Judge Quinn. By the way, if Italy is so deeply interested in these men, why does she not keep them at home or induce them to avoid running counter to the laws of this country in their burning desire to benefit labor? We cannot refrain from believing that there was fully as great a field for fighting for the rights of labor in Italy as in this country, but the tactics employed here would not be tolerated in Italy.

POLITICAL STREET BRAWLERS

"That man is a grifter, a thief, a swindler and foe of the people. That other man robbed the city and got away with it, and here's a man who wants an opportunity to rob the city."

These or similar expressions were heard on the street corners before the primaries from one of the candidates who constituted himself a street brawling critic or assessor of political candidates. According to his own word he is the only political saint in the running, the others being all turned with his black brush; and all imbued with fell designs upon the city while he single-handed and alone is trying to defend the city—if we are to believe his words. But while some of the people believed him others who know the situation denounced him as making charges to delude the people.

Now our motive for mentioning this matter is to inquire whether the same tactics, the same method of flogging the people and defaming men by false charges, will be tolerated before the city election.

THE ETOR VERDICT

The verdict in the cases of Ettore, Giovanni and Caruso for inciting to murder in Lawrence is one of acquittal as was expected. The government had no evidence to connect the defendants with the crime beyond the merest conjecture and that is not sufficient to convict in the courts of this country. To convict a man of inciting to murder in such a case as the Lawrence riot, would be quite as difficult as to prove the origin of a disease such as diphtheria or scarlet fever, the germs of which are carried in the air. It is to be regretted that the prisoners were detained so long in jail; but this, we understand, was due to the unwillingness of their counsel to go on with the cases until a substantial sum of money was put up to meet the expenses.

The result of this case should convince the I. W. W. leaders that they can rely upon receiving fair treatment in the courts and that there is no ground for the charge so often made by them, that the courts are swayed by prejudice against labor and sympathy for the corporations.

VICTORY FOR ENGINEERS

It was not to be expected that the 39,000 locomotive engineers would win their demands from fifty-two railroads under the award of the board of arbitration. The finding shows that not all of the roads can grant the increase demanded but under the idea of modern unionism the road that cannot pay union wages should go out of business. The feature of the award is, that the principle of the minimum wage scale has been introduced.

This report settles one of the most important labor disputes affecting this country since the coal strike of 1902. The result is regarded as a victory for the engineers and it is certainly better for the railroads than to take the risks of a strike and all the loss and injury that such a conflict would inflict upon the country.

The criticism of President-elect Wilson for going to Bermuda for a rest is far-fetched. Some of the newspapers say that as the United States is good enough for the president, it should also be good enough for the president-elect. That is bunkum. When Governor Wilson becomes president it will be time enough to restrict his freedom in this respect.

The state prison authorities complain of a lack of help. Owing to a reduction in the number of prisoners the box shop has been closed. Is this because there is less crime, because the courts are more lenient or because police officers are less vigilant?

Seen and Heard

A woman passenger on a trans-Atlantic liner, bothered the officers and captain annoyingly about whales. A hundred times a day she asked to be called if one was sighted.

"But madam," expostulated the captain finally, "why are you so anxious about this whale question?"

"Because," she replied, "all my life I've wanted to see a whale blubber."

Julius Kahn of San Francisco was at one time on the stage with Booth and Barrett, but later he went into politics, had himself elected to congress and defeated Ettore and Giovanni.

It was announced also that if the two men were convicted a general strike would be declared throughout Italy. That shows to what an extent these men have propagated the idea of the general strike as a weapon for the coercion of government authorities, public service corporations and other employers of labor.

The United States government cannot interfere with the course of justice and there is every evidence that both men had an absolutely fair trial under the direction of Judge Quinn. By the way, if Italy is so deeply interested in these men, why does she not keep them at home or induce them to avoid running counter to the laws of this country in their burning desire to benefit labor? We cannot refrain from believing that there was fully as great a field for fighting for the rights of labor in Italy as in this country, but the tactics employed here would not be tolerated in Italy.

Calling a waitress who passed by his table, he said:

"Who long have you been here?"

"Who long?" she asked sweetly. "I've been here three weeks."

"Then," said Kahn, "you're not the one who took my order. That one left before you came."

ELECTION DOPE CRAZE

Everybody is Doing it at City Hall

REPORTER BETS HAT WITH OFFICE HOLDER

Church Construction and Fires Discussed—More Election Accounts Filed

Have you picked the winners yet? That is the all prevailing question at city hall and there are almost as many dope sheets as there are offices in the building.

The political figures have sets of figures that would almost confound the mind of a Rex and the way those figures are picked is a caution.

"Who do you pick for the two aldermen to win at the polls?" said an office holder to a reporter.

"Commendum," smiled the reporter. "Well," said the office holder, "I have figured the thing out from a scientific standpoint and "Can you do that?" interrupted the reporter.

"Do what?" asked the office holder, with some show of annoyance.

"Figure it out scientifically," said the reporter. "Of course you can. It's the easiest thing in the world. Take the vote at the primaries and election proper last year and compare them with the vote at the primaries this year. Then make your deductions."

"Clear as mud," said the reporter. "Sure it is," replied the figure enthusiast, "and I can name the two men who are going to be elected."

"Shoot," said the reporter, but the fellow didn't shoot. He said that he had placed the names of the winners in a sealed envelope and that he had placed the envelope in a safe in another office. "I'll bet a good hat that I have named the right men," he said, and the reporter, though not a betting man, decided it was up to him to take the bet.

A little later the reporter was in the office where the envelope had been deposited in the safe and was standing in a rather obscure corner of the room when the aforementioned officeholder came in, and, looking a bit cautiously about, said, "Say, Joe, I want to change one of the names in that envelope. I bet a hat a while ago that the names of the two aldermen who would be elected were in that envelope. Since then I have done a little figuring and I want to change the names. I think I have made a mistake."

Joe was about to pass the envelope out when the reporter stepped out and cried "Halt!" "We have made the bet," he said to the officeholder, "and it is too late to change the names. If I allow you too many guesses you might possibly hit on the right names."

The situation was thoroughly explained to Joe he said that the man who would take that envelope out of the safe before the votes were counted for the city election would have to take it over his dead body. That's the kind of a huge Joe swings on, and it looks like a new tie for the reporter.

About Church Fires

A traveling man who was a caller at the city hall this forenoon joined in a discussion having to do with church fires and remarked that there was a big opportunity for improvement in church construction. "It seems strange to me," he said, "that when a church gets on fire, nine times out of ten, it burns to the ground. I think this holds good the country over. It seems to me that some change should be made in the construction of the big churches. There have been at least 15 Catholic churches, and I don't know how many churches of other denominations, destroyed in this country within the last year. It was about two weeks ago that a beautiful Catholic church was destroyed in Butte, Montana. It was the largest church in Montana and despite the best efforts of one of the best fire departments in the country the church was burned to the ground. The same trouble that you experienced here a few days ago under the roof and the firemen couldn't reach it."

Speaking of churches constructed along the lines of St. Jean Baptiste church Commissioner Barrett offers what seems to be a very good suggestion. He would lay a dry pipe between the outer and inner walls of the church and directly under the roof. The pipe would occupy the concealed space that made it so difficult in fact to locate the fire. His plan would be to perforate the pipe and arrange it so that in case of fire it could be connected, at a moment's notice, with hydrant or steamer. The volume of water that could be sent through this pipe would be sufficient to take care of any concealed fire and it would act as a mammoth automatic sprinkler.

The Painter's Brush

The lands and buildings department is doing things to the school department. It is doing nice things, too, painting the school committee room and adjoining offices and when the painters and decorators get through the school department offices will be with the street department offices. After the first of the year, it was stated today, the lands and buildings department will turn its attention to the municipal council chamber and what the department won't do to the chamber where the boss of that department looks his best, will be little.

CHECK OVERBORROWING IN BANKS

Supt. Van Tuyl Says That Credit Bureau System is Working Very Well

ALBANY, Nov. 26.—The methods by which bank examinations have been improved in this state will be outlined by Supt. George C. Van Tuyl Jr., of the state banking department, in his annual report. In a statement issued yesterday he says:

"The most important of the innovations adopted by the department was a regulation providing for the calling of meetings of directors to pass upon the loans and general condition of institutions at each examination. At every examination the directors are required to pass upon the genuineness and worth of every loan and discount in the institution. Thus the responsibility for the standing of the bank is placed squarely upon the board of directors, where it properly belongs. The comptroller of the currency has taken a similar position in the supervision of the affairs of the national banks. As a protection to banks against the overextension of credit a simultaneous examination of all banks located in certain districts is made.

"A credit bureau was established last January in the New York branch office. A record is there kept of borrowers of large amounts in state institutions, of group loans, persons borrowing by means of the use of corporate titles and trade names in order to secure extra accommodations, dummy borrowers, clerks signing notes for the benefit of others, and holding companies apparently organized for the purpose of protecting the institutions, but in many instances used for the benefit and personal profit of officers and directors.

"Records are kept by bank stock hypothecations, by which means the department is informed if the stock of the institution is lodged in strong or weak hands and also if the control of the institution is being carried on borrowed money.

"In this way the department is able to check the activities of ambitious promoters who purchase control of banking institutions in order to obtain additional facilities to further their own speculations. The operations of undesirable and irresponsible borrowers are watched.

"Some do not hesitate to cause large loans to be made to themselves and to their companies, as well as to individuals with whom they are associated, without giving proper security to the bank.

"The principal work of the credit bureau, however, is the investigation of loans to overextended borrowers. A case was found in which the borrower maintained loan accounts in 29 institutions. Again, one individual was discovered borrowing in the names of 30 different individuals and corporations. The banking department is now able, upon request from those entitled to the information, to furnish to the institutions under supervision the total of a borrower's bank loan liability and the number of state institutions lending to each borrower. However, when such information is given this department will under no circumstances reveal the names of the lending institutions.

"The effectiveness of examinations made by the banking department has been greatly increased through the friendly cooperation of the national bank examiners in this state. Conference are frequently held, information exchanged and conditions in the different districts discussed.

DIED ON A CAR

H. M. Clemence Stricken by Heart Failure Just as He Was About to Crack a Joke

WORCESTER, Nov. 26.—While cracking a joke in his usual jovial style with Dean Sawyer, a conductor on a Marlboro-Worcester car, in which he was riding from Shrewsbury to Worcester, yesterday, Henry M. Clemence, the veteran auctioneer, known all over Central Massachusetts, dropped dead of heart failure.

Mr. Clemence was in Shrewsbury on business and was returning to Worcester about 2 o'clock. He handed his fare to Conductor Sawyer and with the joke on his lips collapsed and died before a hand could be raised to help him. The body was brought to Worcester in the car and taken to the City hospital morgue.

Few men in Worcester were better known than Mr. Clemence, as there was scarcely a town in the central part of the state where he had not conducted sales for the past 40 years, his sharpness at repartee giving him a reputation that attracted to his sales many people who came more to enjoy the fun than to buy.

Helps a Judge in Bad Fix Justice Eli Cherry, of Gillis Mills, Tenn., was plainly worried. A bad sore on his leg had baffled several doctors and long resisted all remedies. He thought it was his end. He wrote, "At last I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was completely cured." Cures burns, boils, ulcers, cuts, bruises and piles. 25 cents at A. W. Dows & Co.

LAY CASE BEFORE PUBLIC

Railroads Deny Claim of Being Overpaid

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The railroads deny the postmaster general's claim that they are overpaid for handling mail. In a statement made public yesterday the railroads say they intend laying their case before the public.

"The railroads' side of the postal pay question is in the hands of the committee on railway mail pay, representing 214,275 miles of railroad in the United States, operated by 285 companies. J. Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and operation of the Union and Southern Pacific system, is chairman.

In its official statement the committee believes that the payments to the railroads for the services and facilities furnished by them to the postoffice department are, and for a long time have been, unjustly low.

Before proceeding to demonstrate their claims, the railroads say "it should be noted that railway mail pay is about to be forced still further below the level of just compensation, unless payments are promptly readjusted, on account of the additional volume of mail that will result from the inauguration.

"Congress has provided for a vast and incalculable extension of mail traffic by creating a 'Parcels Post,' to be inaugurated on Jan. 1, 1913, which, by opening the mail to many articles not previously accepted at the post-offices and by materially reducing the rates on mailed merchandise, is expected enormously to increase the volume of the shipments which it covers. "The government claims to have assumed that under existing contracts, which were made before the meaning of the word 'mail' was thus extended, the railroads can be compelled, until these contracts expire, to carry this great additional volume of mail traffic without any compensation whatever."

HOUSE BURNED

Haverhill Apparatus Responded to Call to Plaistow, N. H. and Saved Adjoining Property

HAVERHILL, Nov. 26.—A two-story house owned by John Goodreault and occupied by his son-in-law, Wilfred Courtois, on Pine street, just over the state line in Plaistow, N. H., was burned yesterday. The loss is estimated at $3000. The fire started around a chimney and the flames spread through the partitions and broke out in several places on the first floor soon after the family had arisen. Neighbors hastened to the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Courtois, and the furniture was removed from the building.

The town of Plaistow has no fire apparatus and word was telephoned to this city for assistance, the combination auto being sent by Chief Gordon. The house was doomed, however, before the firemen arrived. They made the run of four miles in 10 minutes and their arrival was greeted with cheers by those who had formed a bucket brigade and were fighting the flames. The Haverhill firemen prevented the fire from spreading to other buildings.

THREE GOOD BOUTS

A Great Treat for Pittsfield People—Alger-Woods Bout a Draw—Both Displayed Cleverness

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 26.—Three corking bouts were boxed before the members of the Pass Time A. C. last night. The main scrap was between George Alger of Cambridge and Ray Woods of Fall River, and the honors were even in every respect.

Both boys displayed considerable cleverness, but Alger was forced to do the leading. It was fast boxing from beginning to end, and the local fans never saw so much action in one night. Toward the close of the 7th round the men went at each other so hard that they smashed through the ropes in a clinch, but neither was injured and they resumed the mill as speedily as possible.

In the 8th they went against the ropes so hard that a post was pulled from its fastenings, and the ropes hung limp, the bout being stopped while repairs were made. In the 10th it was jab and swing continually by both men. Alger came out of the bout with a cut eye, otherwise both men were in good shape.

The semifinal between "Rip" O'Brien of North Adams and Hugo Kelly of Fall River went to the latter by a small margin. The preliminary between Kid Sheehan of Springfield and Young Quinlan of North Adams was a good draw.

MATRIMONIAL

Charles Breton, formerly of this city and now of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Blanche Lovell were married yesterday afternoon at St. Joseph's rectory in Merrimack street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Charles Aubert, O. M. I.

The young couple were attended by Messrs. Victor Breton and Henri Singalais, respective fathers of the bridegroom and bride. The bride was becomingly attired in white silk and carried a shower bouquet of white pinkies. At the close of the ceremony the bride party went to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henri Singalais, 172 Riverside street, where a reception was tendered them by their many friends, who assembled to congratulate them over the event of their marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Breton, who were the recipients of many useful gifts, left at 6 o'clock in the evening for Worcester, Mass., where they are to make their home. Last Friday evening over 30 of the bride's friends assembled at her home in Riverside street and presented her a number of gifts and a pleasant evening was spent.

ROUGHAN-MEAGHER

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday at the rectory of St. Margaret's church when Dr. Charles M. Roughan, and Miss Margaret Meagher, both of Lowell, were united in marriage by Rev. Patrick Meagher, pastor of the church of the Sacred Heart in Rosindale, and a brother of the bride.

The bride and groom were present. The bride was Miss Catherine Murray and she was attired in a gown of yellow chiffon over pink messaline and trimmed with gold and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The best man was Mr. John Roughan, the groom's brother.

At 7 o'clock a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. D. Regan, 26 Davenport terrace, Tyler park, at which about 30 of the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom were present. The house was prettily decorated with palms, ferns, chrysanthemums and vases of cut flowers. The temple quartet of Boston gave a pleasing musicale during the dinner and throughout the evening.

Dr. and Mrs. Roughan left on a late train for Boston on their wedding tour, upon which they will visit New York city, Washington, D. C. and Old Point Comfort, Va. On their return, they will be at home to their friends at 433 Beacon street after Jan. 1. No cards.

ROBERT KNIGHT

A Leading Cotton Manufacturer Died at His Home in Providence, R. I., Today

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 26.—Robert Knight, a leading cotton manufacturer, died at his home here today in his 87th year. He had been gradually failing for several days. He was a Rhode Islander by birth and descent.

The manufacturer was at the offices of the B. D. & R. Knight here Nov. 14. A severe cold developed from a wetting he received in a heavy rain and he had been ill since.

Mr. Knight was a native of Old Warwick. When he was eight years old he went to work in a cotton mill and was connected with the industry either as operative, manager or owner until his death. With his brother, Benjamin B. Knight, he took control of many of the mills operated by A. & W. Sprague, which failed for $25,000,000 in 1913. Since his brother's death, 15 years ago, Robert Knight came into control of 22 spinning, weaving and finishing establishments. The Knight mills are located in Providence, Worcester, Natick, Weymouth, Attleboro, Raytheon, and Jackson, R. I., Haverhill, Dodgeville, Readville and Manchester, Mass., and elsewhere.

The mills have more than a million spindles, 12,000 looms and 6,000 operatives.

POLICY OF THE STATE

On Waterways Improvements Criticised

HAVERHILL, Nov. 26.—Ex-Senator Samuel W. George, assistant appraiser at the Boston custom house, attacked the policy of the state on appropriations for waterway improvements at the hearing that was held by the Merrimack valley waterways commission in city hall yesterday morning.

He pointed out that where $300,000 has been expended in recent years on Cape Cod to benefit about 13,000 people other parts of the state had been neglected. He contended that the people in the Merrimack valley, where over $200,000,000 worth of goods is produced annually, are entitled to consideration and that the state ought to help out in furnishing adequate waterways so that water transportation could be obtained for the cities of Newburyport, Haverhill, Lawrence and Lowell and the intervening towns.

The hearing yesterday was the first one held since A. B. Sutherland of Lawrence and Lewis R. Hovey of this city, members of the board, were injured in an automobile accident when returning from the first hearing in Newburyport, Sept. 28. Judge Charles C. Fiske of the state harbor and land commission presided, being ex-officio a member of the Waterways board. Rev. Fr. James O'Doherty, William W. Emerson, Daniel N. Casey, the president and secretary of the Merrimack valley waterways commission, Arthur L. Nasau, Representative Henry G. Wells, L. H. Thayer, F. W. Jacobs and G. W. Cook were other speakers.

DAMAGE OF $15,000

Was Caused By a Fire in Maynard

MAYNARD, Nov. 26.—Fire of unknown origin today destroyed the Music hall block, causing a loss of $15,000. The blaze had considerable headway before being discovered but the firemen prevented the flames from communicating to nearby buildings. Ed Gruber owned the building, a two-story wooden structure.

In Buying Your Piano

And cold reason used in the buying of your piano is the one thing and the only thing that "cuts any ice." We don't boom any special piano and don't care what make of piano you buy. We have all makes. We would like you to use your reason in the matter of PRICE; there's where your reasoning powers will "cut ice" for you. You know, without any information from us, which are the best pianos, and you also know that the makers at their gilded stores charge you a big, fat, outrageous trust price for their instruments. Now, if you use your cold reason on PRICE, we will save you a hundred or two on the purchase of any known make of piano.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Learning to Fly, and Afterwards

A Group of Machines, Instructors and Pupils

Of the men who enter an aviation school a few are actuated by pure love of the sport, a few others are moved by a desire for notoriety, but with by far the majority the object is to qualify for money making in the exhibition field. To these last the instructors' admonitions to go slowly and to act cautiously are apt to carry little weight. The license is what the man wants, and that as quickly as possible. And as it requires but little degree of skill, and practically no technical knowledge to qualify for a pilot under the present rules of admission, the result is that scores of immature aviators are exhibiting who have never been in a trying situation and who, if they survive their first critical experience, will owe their immunity from death or injury to good luck rather than to good management.

Upon entering the school the pupil is made familiar with the mechanism of the machine. The action of the engine, the planes, the steering wheel and other parts is explained to him before he is allowed to take his place in the driver's seat. He is then sent out in the "grass cutter." This is an ordinary "aero" in which the learner's first efforts are confined to running over the ground on the wheels of the machine, and steering straight—by no means such an easy matter as may be supposed. In this stage of the instruction the pupil's experiences are very similar to those of a man learning to run an automobile. The fledgeling is now allowed to skim over the grass at a height of five or six feet, in short flights of a few yards. His progress is much the same as that of a young bird when it has first left the nest, and probably his sensations are not dissimilar. Beginners state that when they first leave the ground in these short flights there is a feeling of being out of their element and an inclination to get back to firm earth as soon as possible. This fluttering practice is continued until the pupil feels quite at home in the machine and has begun to acquire some control over the planes and steering apparatus. Occasionally a pupil is so inept and awkward that he does not get beyond the "grass cutter" stage. Just as there are some men who cannot learn to steer a bicycle or an automobile so there are some who cannot with any amount of practice be taught to run an aeroplane over the ground in a tolerably straight line. Of course it is useless for such a one to dream of controlling a machine in the air with wind currents to add to the difficulty.

By degrees the learner is permitted to extend his flights, making them longer and rising higher, gradually attaining to a distance of about one hundred feet in either direction. During this part of the instruction, and in fact throughout the course, the main object sought is to teach the young birdman to alight properly. This is the most important and the most difficult feature of flying. Anyone may be taught within an hour how to rise in an aeroplane, and it is no great task to keep one in the air, but it will require weeks, and perhaps months of practice in order to learn to alight without danger to himself or to his craft. Beginners will come to earth from an elevation of no more than a hundred feet with a jar that strains every portion of the mechanism, whilst an adept will make a swift drop of half a mile and reach the earth with no greater jolt than he would get in stepping off a soap box.

There are some few men who absolutely lack the sense of equilibrium and of course such can never become aviators. One of the most helpless but persistent pupils that ever entered an aviation school was a foreigner who had this fatal defect. His machine would wobble and tilt without his being aware of it. In a dead calm he dipped and rose like a hucking brooch or careened like a ship in a gale. Three times he undertook a flight and each time broke something. On the last occasion it was a leg and several ribs. Had he been permitted to persist, as he desired to do, there is no doubt but that he would have killed himself in short order.

This pupil labored under an additional handicap. He was more than forty years of age. Now, authorities in aviation are agreed that, with rare exceptions, a man will never become an expert pilot unless he begins in youth, or at least well before middle age. There is not a case on record of a man having entered the field when past forty who reached the first rank of airman.

In striking contrast to this disqualified foreigner, the same class included a young American whom the instructor pointed out as an excellent example of what an aviator should be. Twenty-two years of age, he has perfect health, exceptionally good eyesight, is a splendid judge of distance, has exemplary habits and in particular is an abstainer from liquor. He is enthusiastic, but self-composed, daring, but cautious; ambitious, but patient. This young man entered the school with the great advantage of being an expert mechanic and an experienced chauffeur. In his first trip into the air he displayed an intuitive knowledge of conditions and a few weeks later was handling his craft like a veteran, making perfect landings and performing the spiral glide and other difficult maneuvers. In forty days he was granted his license, but remained at the training ground to improve his knowledge and ability, although his desire and need for the emoluments of the business are as great as those of any of the men who have sought exhibition engagements almost before the ink was dry upon their certificates.

After the pupil has had sufficient practice in rising about a hundred feet in still air he is made accustomed to flying in the wind. He is sent up first in a gentle breeze and for a few minutes of time. Little by little the period of his flight is increased and he is exposed by degrees to stronger air currents, but the elevation is kept down to about one hundred feet until he has learned to handle the machine in a fairly fast wind. This stage of the tuition is maintained until the pupil displays an ability to control his craft with ease and confidence in a thirty-mile blow. This is not a difficult task, so long as the wind is steady. Puffiness is what causes the aviator's troubles and no amount of experience will render him safe under such air conditions. It was a whiff which overturned Miss Quimby's machine last June and caused her death. The fatal accident to Mrs. Julia Clarke was due to the same cause.

The pupil now begins his free flights and is practically beyond the control of the instructor. The most that the latter can do is to give him warning and advice before his ascent and to criticize his performance upon his return. Whilst in the air he must rely upon his own judgment and the self-confidence which it has been the aim of the previous instructions to instill into him. He now begins to practice the prescribed "stunt" for the pilot's test, and as soon as he thinks that he is capable of performing it applies for his license. If he acquires himself to the satisfaction of the board of inspectors he secures the coveted document, leaves the school and is free to fly when and where he pleases. Some men get through the course and secure the license in sixty days or less. In other cases it takes several months, whilst there are a few hopeless aspirants in every class who are obliged to forego their ambition on account of utter inaptitude. Occasionally pupils find that their nerves are not equal to the experience, and instructors invariably warn men who are in the least degree timid that they should not venture an ascent in an aeroplane. Defective eyesight, weak hearts and confirmed clumsiness are among the defects which bar men from becoming successful aviators.

Whether on account of their excellent system of tuition or because of the ease with which the governing body grants licenses it is impossible to say, but the American schools have attracted foreigners in large numbers in recent years. One class last winter comprised seven nationalities among its twenty-five members, including a Hindoo, a Japanese, a Chinaman and a Filipino. In several cases these foreigners have been sent by the governments of their countries to America to gain instruction in aviation.

One of the most capable instructors in this country has said: "The test is not criterion of ability. Several of our pupils have received certificates when I knew that they were unfit to handle machines under even ordinarily bad weather conditions. But we could do nothing. They qualified. The fault lies in the system of examination. Candidates should be required to know something about the science—not merely the art—of aviation; to have some technical knowledge of aerodynamics and aero-dynamics. I would allow mere flying to count for only about twenty per cent. of efficiency and would require that the rest should be made up by scientific and mechanical knowledge."

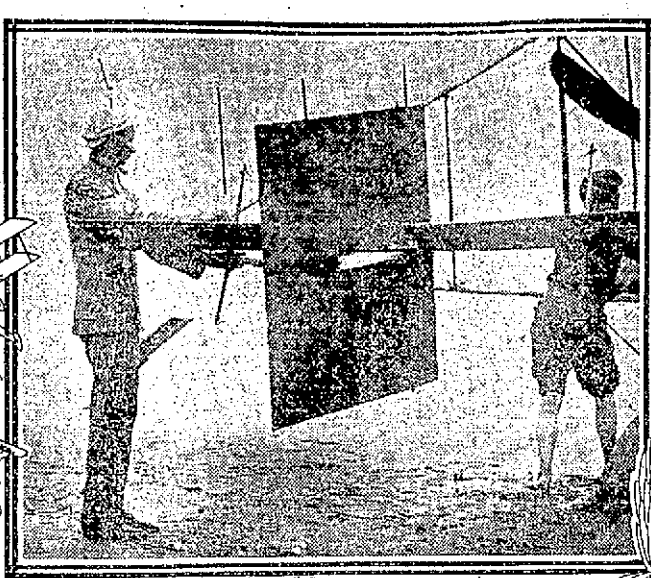

The frequency of fatal accidents to aviators justifies the popular opinion that the navigation of the air is beset with extraordinary peril. It is noteworthy, however, that veterans in the art of flying do not contribute even their fair proportion to the casualties.

This fact lends color to the contention of experienced airmen that most of the mishaps to aeroplanes are avoidable. As Glenn Curtis put it: "Under proper conditions aviation is no more dangerous than automobile driving. Eighty per cent. of the accidents in the air are due to carelessness, fifteen per cent. to ignorance and the rest to causes beyond the aviator's control."

Another important contributory cause of accidents is the public demand for spectacular and risky performances. Mere flying is no longer a novelty. People cannot be induced to pay to witness it. They demand of the exhibitor unusual "stunts" and the display of reckless daring.

The veterans, with a full knowledge of the dangers and difficulties of flight, are cautious under all circumstances and take no unnecessary risks. It is not to be inferred from this that they are in any degree less daring than the more reckless, though less skillful, aviators. When the occasion calls for the exercise of courage, the former are almost invariably equal to the demand upon them. The following incidents strikingly illustrate the difference between the two types of men.

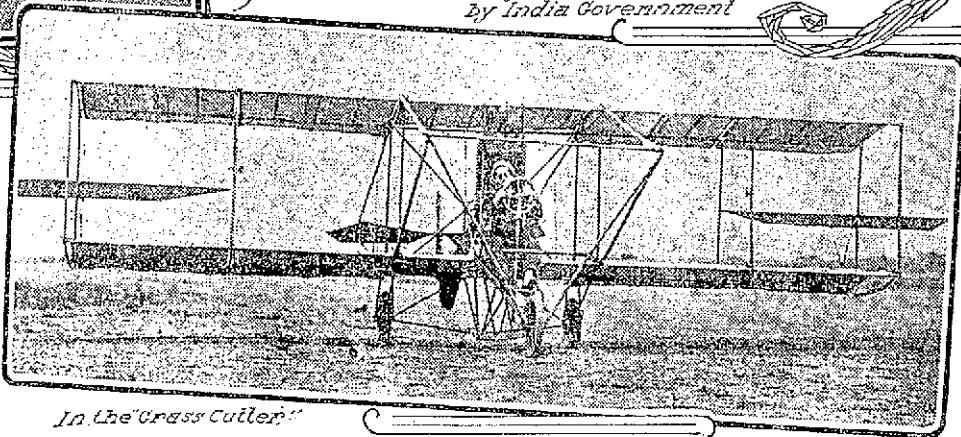

Last winter a young aviator who had just recently received his license flew across the bay from North Island in a machine with a defective angle to the Exposition Grounds in San Diego, where there was no favorable landing place. The sole purpose of this foolhardy and extremely hazardous flight was to keep a luncheon engagement with a young lady and incidentally to advertise himself. Lieutenant Ellison, the naval instructor in aviation, who witnessed this performance, said that it was one of which he would not take the risk. A few days later Ellison deliberately made a flight under the worst possible weather conditions at the risk of his life, but it was in the performance of his duty of ascertaining how a machine would act in a strong, puffy wind. The experiment resulted in his being capsize and sustaining injuries which laid him up for several weeks.

SOME favored few sportsmen of the deep hold in supreme disdain their brother sportsmen of the land, who talk about "big game hunting" in the wilds of Darkest Africa, or, in fact, any other known region where so-called "big game" exists. What do elephants, or lions, or the hard-headed "hippo," all of which may be dispatched by one properly placed rifle ball, amount to when compared with the sea monster whose expanse of flaps from tip to tip is much greater than any other animal in existence; whose weight has been reported to be ten thousand pounds or over?

What sort of feeling do you imagine would rapidly rush up your spine and settle about your "nerves" if on some dark night, while in an open boat off the southern coast of North Carolina, or Florida Gulf, your eyes should suddenly light on the dark body of a creature, twenty-five feet in width, flapping his enormous "wings" up and down near the surface of the water just ahead of your craft? Your feelings could not well be described, but more than likely terror firms would look about as pleasing to you as anything you could imagine just about that time.

Harpooning a Devil-fish.

The "Devil-fish," or "Sea-devil," as it is variously termed, belongs to the order of rays, and enjoys the distinction of being the largest member of the order. Its scientific name is Manta birostris, the latter word meaning two-horned, from which it also gets its name "Devil." The devil-fish is common in tropical American waters, and has been observed as far north as Cape May. At the time of the breeding season, when it is seen occasionally at the water's surface, it furnishes the rarest of sport for those who know how to tackle it—and "live" to fight another day.

One tale is as follows: A certain professor was very much wrapped up in his studies for the discovery of perpetual motion; he also possessed a strong desire to capture one of those devil-fishes which he had been told so much about. One fine day he quietly hired a boat and outfit, and was rowing along very peacefully some distance out from shore, when to his astonishment and delight a long-extended-for surprise was in store for him—a real, live devil-fish was sunning himself but a few yards to his "port" side as the heavy craft glided along through the quiet waters. The professor forgot all about "perpetual motion" for the time being, and with all haste made for the creature who apparently was basking in the sunny water. In a few moments his boat was sliding right on to the great fish and the athletic figure of the professor posed for a moment in the bow of the boat with harpoon raised for the drive. It was the unexpected which so often happens—for he hardly dared to imagine that he could really hit the creature—and he had the thrilling experience of seeing his harpoon strike and stick fast in the huge brown back of his victim, who immediately plunged away at great speed, carrying many feet of line out of the boat before the amazed professor realized what was happening. When he did realize the situation he quickly made fast a part of the line to a cleat in the bow. His experience was rapidly changing from one of mere interest to one of fear and appreciation of danger! The ride was much more lively than he had bargained for and his nerve was about to "go back on him" as he looked about for some other small boat within hailing distance. The amusing part of the affair was reserved for the acquaintances of Professor Jones, who had gathered on the shore to behold the sight of a boat being driven through the water at a brisk rate with no apparent means of locomotion.

The two horns attached to the head are movable, and are used as feeding arms, pressing very tightly against the mouth any object intended for "the interior department," the mouth of which, according to one writer, has a capacity capable of receiving "two innately spied in the forward part of his rapidly traveling craft. After this ignoble move, and showing of the white feather when success seemed within his grasp, he sank exhausted in the bottom of his boat, and some time after reached shore. The affair was only told to a few close friends, who were more interested in Jones' studies than any prize he might gain in the way of capturing a real devil-fish.

One illustration shows a top view of one of these "Ox-horned Rays," or devil-fishes, whose expanse of flaps from tip to tip has been known to reach from eighteen to thirty feet, and whose body thickness varies from three to five or more feet. The various weights of specimens captured have been from two to five or more tons.

The two horns attached to the head are movable, and are used as feeding arms, pressing very tightly against the mouth any object intended for "the interior department," the mouth of which, according to one writer, has a capacity capable of receiving "two over the water's surface for a hundred yards or more, when his ponderous body again plunges down into the deep with a splashing noise which may be heard for one mile away!

There are instances on record where this great fish has tackled the anchor chains of small vessels, torn them from their moorings and towed them rapidly out to sea for several miles.

Leaping Out of the Water.

and turning about has brought them back, against the tide, to about the same location from which, but a short while before, they so mysteriously departed! One may well imagine from the foregoing what it means to harpoon one of these fellows and be towed amidst the billows by such an animal! This is the precise manner in which the devil-fish is tackled and finally tired out and landed, even though several yokes of oxen are pressed into service in the landing thereof.

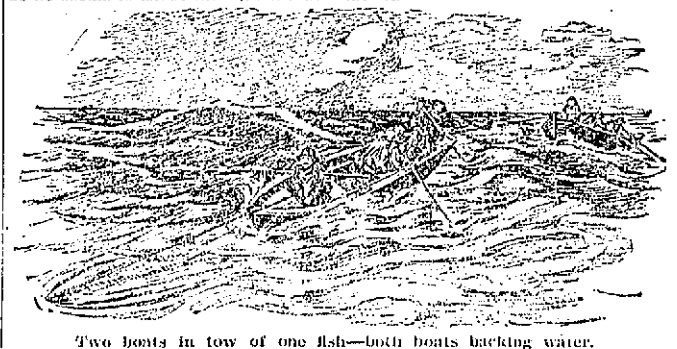

The "sport" of running down a devil-fish is undertaken in the common boat of the fishermen of the southern coasts, which is very substantially built and capable of very rough usage—which it usually gets when one of these sea-devils becomes attached to it. When the great, dark-brown back of one of these creatures is sighted by the fisherman his fellows quickly row their craft as close "alongside" as possible, and the next undertaking is to plunge the spear-pointed harpoon with terrific force into the brown body of the great animal, while the harpoonist stands in the bow of his little craft. If this "strike" is successful, attention is next given to the proper playing out of the harpoon line as the powerful victim of the sharp instrument plunges away through the water at great speed. By a great yell, or rifle shot, the notice is given to other fishermen round about who make speed to catch on to the rapidly towed boat, and sometimes one devil-fish, by the power of his flesh, is towing several boats all occupied with fishermen, at a rapid rate through the briny sea! The rope is made fast within the boat pulled by the great vampire, and her bows are plunged with almost smothering

ter as great birds of prey soar through the air. The cruel bars of the harpoon are deep in his flesh to stay—unless the heavy rope should snap or the heart of the "sportsman" become faint enough for him to sever it with his hatchet. When the great beast has tugged his death-dealing load for several miles on the open sea, and fatal exhaustion is staring him in the face, from loss of blood and great-length slackens up his race against death and slowly turns up his great, white breast toward the heavens above, from which the summer's sun is warmly beaming upon the rolling bosom of the ocean, where his piteous days have so tragically ended. The "sport" is ended, the rope slackens and the fisher boats gather about close to haul in the captured creature, which is later drawn up on the beach by help of horses or oxen. He is next photographed with one or more of the successful fishermen standing upon his back, and this picture is preserved as very good evidence of a real "fish story."

The sperm whale, and the right whale, are of course much longer than the fish described in this article, but as far as width is concerned there is no living creature which can compare with him.

The sight of such enormous sea animals, plunging out of and into the ocean on dark, quiet nights, would be plenty of foundation for the stories of "sea-serpents" which used to be current along the Southern Coast of our country. There are several other members of this tribe of fishes, but very little is known of them or their habits, as they are rarely seen. The Sting-ray is probably best known of this class of fishes. It possesses a few barbed spines at the base of the tail on the top of its back, and a tail which terminates in a sharp spine. In attacking an enemy it curves its back up like a scorpion in its effort to sting its victim and drive its sharp spikes into it.

Two boats in tow of one fish—both boats backing water.

Ettor and Companions Not Guilty

ACTION ON LIGHTING CONTRACT

Postponed for One Week Because of Absence of Commissioner Cummings

Because of the absence of Commissioner Cummings action on the lighting contract, which was to have come before the municipal council this afternoon for final ratification, was postponed for one week.

Mayor O'Donnell called to order at 2.30. The first business before the meeting was the petition of the Lowell Electric Light Co. for a pole location in Third and Fremont streets. Mr.
William D. Brown appeared in favor of the petition and there were no respondents. Mr. Brown, too, filed his objections to the compensatory fee as voted by the city council. He looked upon the compensatory fee as a double taxation.

No action was taken on the petition.
Several other minor petitions for street improvements, pole locations, street lights, wire attachments, etc., were properly referred.

An order calling meetings of the voters for the city election Dec. 10 was adopted.

The petition of John A. Bateman, surveyor, and John Reiter and John P.
Quinn, wood dealers, that the fees in future for surveyor of lumber shall be the same as in section 15 of chapter 50 revised laws, and the fee for surveyor of lumber on cars on board be fixed at five cents per cord, was referred to the city solicitor.

The report of the commissioner of streets and highways recommending the petition of the Postal Telegraph
Co. for conduits in Lawrence, Church, George, Hurd and Central streets, was read and the order accompanying the report was adopted.

The mayor read a communication from Chief Forester Kane relative to carrying out the work of suppressing gypsy and brown-tail moths, and it was accepted and placed on file. The amount the city may be required to expend in this work before receiving reimbursement from the state is $5,000.

Mayor O'Donnell read a communication from John Maguire, a young man employed in Boston, asking that the council "get busy" and have the 3 o'clock a. m. train from Boston restored. The train was discontinued some time ago. Mr. Maguire contended that the discontinuance of the train worked a hardship to Lowell men working nights in Boston.

Alderman Brown moved that the mayor be authorized by the municipal council to confer with Mr. Mellen of the N. Y. N. H. & H. relative to the matter, and it was so voted.

Another communication was from President Grace Ward of the Middlesex Women's club, inviting the municipal council to attend the opening night of the Pure Food Exhibition. The letter:

To His Honor, the Mayor and the City Commissioners, Lowell, Mass.:

Under the direction of the science and sociology departments of the Middlesex Women's club and under the supervision of Companies C, K and M, M. V. M., a domestic science and pure food exposition is to be conducted in the state armory, Dec. 4 to 14, inclusive.

The exposition is designed to awaken interest in the movement for a pure food supply which is making rapid progress in all parts of the country.
Only meritorious articles, approved by an expert, will be exhibited, and there will be a daily demonstration in chemical food analysis.

It seems fitting that such an exposition affecting the welfare of the entire community should be formally recognized by the city officials on the opening day.

In behalf of the committees in charge, I take pleasure in inviting Your Honor and the city commissioners to be present on the opening night, Dec. 4, and to formally open the exposition. Very respectfully, yours, Grace Ward, President.

Lowell, Nov. 21, 1912.

The communication was accepted and placed on file and the council voted to attend the opening of the fair.

Eight-Hour Question

The petition of John J. Mahoney et al. that there be placed upon the official ballot, at the next annual city election, the question as to whether or not the provision of section 42, chapter 51A, Acts of 1909, constituting eight hours a day's work for all laborers, shall be accepted by the city of Lowell, was given its final reading and it was vol-ed to place it on the ballot.

An order for the relaxing of an old sewer in Police street for a distance of about 100 feet was adopted. City Engineer Kearney was present at the meeting and explained that in excavating for the comfort station there was unearthed some pipe that had been laid in 1853 and it was in bad shape.
Adjourned.

Damage to Property

Mayor O'Donnell, Aldermen Barrett and Donnelly and Engineer Kearney visited the premises of Joanna C.
Brown, corner Inland and Chelmsford streets, this forenoon, to determine the amount of damage to her property by the cutting of Inland street down

LITHUANIAN CHURCH

WORK ON REPAIRING THE BURNED
TEMPLE PROGRESSING

Building May Not Be Opened Until Late in the Spring—Considerable to Be Done on Edifice

Work on repairing the Catholic Lithuanian church in Rogers street which was destroyed by fire some time ago, is progressing rapidly. Contractor E. J. Twohey was awarded the contract for the repairs and he has a shift of men daily on the job. According to those employed there the job is undertaken is far larger than if the building had been torn down and built over again, for the work of demolishing the burned portions of the structure is very slow and costly.

The edifice will be rebuilt practically on the original plans with the exception of the roof which will be of the gable style. The cupola just over the main entrance which was practically destroyed by the flames will be rebuilt but towered about five feet.

It will be at least four weeks before the roof is set in and services may not be held in the temple before the latter part of spring. The rear end of the church is a total wreck and the reconstruction of that part alone means considerable work. Now steel rods across the building will have to be set in as well as new trusses.

The interior of the church will be finished with steel sheathing and new pews will probably be installed. The floor, however, is in fair condition and may not be removed. Although work is being pushed rapidly it will be several months before the church is opened for worship.

The Three Defendants Thank the Court for Impartial Conduct of Trial—A Big Demonstration in Their Honor in Lawrence is Planned for Thursday

SALEM, Nov. 26.—"Not guilty" is the verdict of the jury in the case of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso for the murder of Anna Lopizzo, who was killed in a Lawrence textile strike riot last winter.

When the three men had heard the words freeing them from the charge they embraced and kissed each other in the prisoners' cage.
Giovannitti then sprang to his feet and said:

"Gentlemen of the jury"—his face beaming with joy—"in the name of justice, truth and civilization I thank you."

As he sat down the court interpreter, Alfred Sacco, rose for Caruso and said: "Mr. Caruso desires me to say that he wants to thank you all and now that he is free he says that he was innocent of the crime."

Ettor, the leader of the strike at Lawrence and chief center of interest that has aroused world wide attention addressed the jury.

"May it please the court, I thank you not only for myself but in the name of my companions. I also feel compelled to thank the court for the fair manner in which this trial has been conducted.
The thanks we offer is not only ours but thanks in the name of the working class."

The jury entered the courtroom at 8.30. Immediately thereafter the prisoners, each wearing a red carnation, were brought to the cage in the center of the room. All were smiling, even Caruso. At this hour the courtroom was not half crowded. Judge

THE WATERWAY BOARD

To Give Hearing Here
Next Monday

The Merrimack Valley Waterway
Board, recently appointed by Governor Foss will hold a hearing in the Lowell city hall on December 2, in regard to the deepening of the channel of the Merrimack river. The chairman of this board is Charles C. Payne, who also is chairman of the rivers and harbors commission of this state. The other members are Andrew B. Southerland, president of the Lawrence board of trade, and Louis R. Hovey, owner of the Haverhill Gazette.

The Lowell board of trade and the city will have several speakers at this hearing, and in all probability the list will include Mayor James E. O'Donnell and Secretary John H. Murphy of the board of trade. At the hearing in Lawrence several weeks ago in regard to making the Merrimack river navigable, a list of questions in regard to the terminal resources, costs, and former projects of the kind were passed around among the delegates. At the meeting on December 2, the Lowell speakers will endeavor to answer some of these, especially the questions which have a direct bearing on this city.

The fact that the hearing is to take place in Lowell will give interested parties an opportunity of learning more about the project. At the last hearing in Lawrence there were comparatively few representatives from this city and very little interest was manifested.

Mr. Payne will preside over the hearing and the gathering will be called to order about ten o'clock in the morning.

Elks' Memorial

The Lowell lodge of Elks will observe their annual memorial day with appropriate exercises at the Lowell Opera House on next Sunday afternoon. The committee in charge of the services has secured Dennis E. Cullahan of Lawrence to deliver the eulogy.
A musical program will be given and the music will be furnished by the Elks' orchestra, Emil Borjes, director.
The exercises are free and the public is invited to attend.

business, try The Sun "Want" column.

Mohicans' Social

The second social of the Mohicans was held at the home of Mr. Claude Taisey of Chelmsford Centre on Sunday and all members of the organization were present. A sumptuous repast was served and an excellent enertainment program given. Selections on the organ were played by Frank De Roehn and Harry J. Cluin. Many invited guests were present, including Miss Mabel Birkenhead of Lawrence,
Miss Landerville of Malone, N. Y., Mr.
Charles McQuinn of Billerica, Mr.
Frank Williams of Chelsea, and several other friends of the members of the club. During the winter months several other socials will be held under the auspices of the Mohicans.

Mrs. Mary E. McDonald of 22 Albion street has returned to this city after spending several months at Salem, Mass.

MacLEOD PROTEST

Against Granting Rights in New Haven Road Unless the Small Towns Benefit

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—A protest against any measure that would permit the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad to control proposed trolley lines west of the Connecticut river unless it could be shown that the small towns would benefit, which is investigating the western trolley situation. Mr. MacLeod said that if the New Haven road was permitted to build the lines he thought that the state should have some part in their management. Freedom Hall of Monson

INVESTIGATING CHURCH FIRES

State Marshal Rice in Lowell for That Purpose This Afternoon

State Fire Marshal Rice came to Lowell today to conduct a thorough investigation of the recent church fires. This morning Mr. Rice was at St. Peter's and conferred with Rev.
Dr. Keleher in regard to the particulars of the recent dangerous blaze which was discovered when rapidly gaining headway in a room in the rear of the altar of St. Peter's big edifice on Gorham street.

This afternoon it was the intention of Mr. Rice to visit the church of St.
Jean Baptiste which a few days ago suffered great losses through a disastrous conflagration. The state marshal gave out no statement in regard to his business in this city. He was accompanied on his tour of inspection by District Chief Edward Saunders.

NUMEROUS EXPRESSIONS OF LOVE

Contained in Letters Read at the Revel-Vien Case on Trial in Superior Court Today

The case of Laurent Revel against Mrs. Cordelia Vien, which was opened before Judge Pratt in the jury waived session of the superior court yesterday, was resumed this morning. Mr. Revel is seeking to recover on seven promissory notes, for money which he claims to have loaned Mrs. Vien at different times.

Mr. Revel was on the witness stand during the entire morning and was put through a rigid cross-examination by Lawyer John J. Hogan. Several letters written by the plaintiff to the defendant when he was in Paris in 1907 were read.

In answer to questions asked by Lawyer Hogan, Mr. Revel said:

"On Dec. 22, 1910, I was making preparations to go to Paris. Prior to that I had purchased 40 shares of stock in La Protection Co. of Canada, an insurance company. The stock was listed at $35 per share. I paid $35 down and on Dec. 22, 1910, I gave $100 additional as security on the stock. A check for $300 was given me by Mrs.
Vien, for money I had loaned to her;
I had the other $100 myself."

"Did Mrs. Vien on that same day give you $200 cash in addition to the check?" asked Mr. Hogan.

"No, sir."

"Did she let you have any cash that day?"

"No, sir."

Witness said that as a general rule
Mrs. Vien gave him a promissory note whenever he loaned her money.

Relative to the payment of $400 on the stock in La Protection Co. witness said he knew that he would have to make a payment before the 31st of the month. He admitted when he came to Lowell from Canada he had $3000 in cash in a money belt and when asked why he did not pay some of that money on the stock when he was in Canada instead of asking Mrs. Vien for money, he said: "I had lost enough of money on stocks and wanted to investigate La Protection before putting in any more cash."

Mr. Revel testified to giving Mrs.
Vien $1100 on Dec. 22, 1910, and gave her $300 a few days previous.

"When did you leave for Paris?"
asked Mr. Hogan.

"On the evening of Dec. 22, 1910," answered the witness.

"Did you carry any money over with you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much?"

"About $1100."

"Was that money in bills?"

"Yes, sir."

"You also carried over two checks for $200 each?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you carry any money over with you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much?"

"About $1100."

"Was that money in bills?"

"Yes, sir."

"You also carried over two checks
for $200 each?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you carry any money over with you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much?"

"About $1100."

"Was that money in bills?"

"Yes, sir."

"You also carried over two checks
for $200 each?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you carry any money over with you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much?"

"About $1100."

"Was that money in bills?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long did you stay in Europe?"

"Four and one-half months."

"While you were in Europe was there another payment due La Protection?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you wrote Mrs. Vien a letter while in Paris asking her to pay $300?"

"I wrote to her not to let the date go by without paying what was due."

"At this point Lawyer Hogan read two letters written by Mr. Revel to Mrs. Vien when the plaintiff was in Paris. Both letters contained many expressions of his love for her and how he longed to be with her again referring to her as "thee," "thou" and "darling." He was glad that she had not forsaken him and that she loved him.

"I would be furious if you had banished me," wrote the plaintiff. "I will prove to thee that I have a heart for thee. After a dark night the light is bright and our happiness will soon be complete. The day is near when I shall press you against my breast."
In another letter he said that it would not be long before he would rejoin her and then he would be satisfied to remain with her forever and would be happy to see no one else but her.

Witness admitted that Mrs. Vien wrote a letter to him in which she said she owed him $200. He said she owed him $300 at that time.

Mr. Revel testified that he gave Mrs.
Vien $1800 in cash on May 22, 1911, and a week or two later she gave him a check acknowledging the amount.

The examination of Revel was resumed at the opening of the afternoon session, and the witness was put through a rigid examination by Lawyer William H. Bent and Lawyer John J. Hogan.

The plaintiff denied that he had ever borrowed money from Mrs. Vien to purchase books in France. He admitted that he had bought books while in France and had paid $400 for them, but that he used his own money.

REV. MICHEL DUBREUIL IS DEAD

He Passed Away at St. John's Hospital After Arriving From Omaha, Nebraska

Rev. Michel Dubreuil, O. M. I., former pastor of Notre Dame de Lourdes parish in this city, and who for the past few years was a resident of the western states, where he had gone for his health, died last night at St. John's hospital, this city, where he had been removed the night previous, making the long trip from Omaha, Neb.

Deceased was well known in Lowell and his demise will be keenly felt by all who knew him, especially the members of Notre Dame de Lourdes parish, who had learned to love him, as he was the first pastor in the new parish. It was mainly through his efforts and his hard work that Notre Dame de Lourdes parish was established and made such notable progress, for the reverent gentleman was an indefatigable worker.

Rev. Michel Dubreuil, O. M. I., was born at Lyons, France, in 1841, and received his early education in his native city. He was ordained a secular priest at Lyons in the year 1876, and officiated in that capacity until 1888 when he entered the Oblate order, taking the perpetual vow of the order the following year.

His first duties as an Oblate missionary were at Ceylon, India, where during his stay, he was a victim of the dreaded malaria or yellow fever which the natives of that country are subject to. He was later transferred to Paris, where he also did missionary work, later coming to America, where for two years he was professor at Ottawa university. He was later transferred to Montreal, Que., and then to Plattsburg, N. Y. and finally in 1901 he was assigned to St. Joseph's parish, this city.

In September, 1908, when Notre Dame de Lourdes parish was established, Fr. Dubreuil was appointed pastor and remained there for one year during which time he exerted himself in the parish work and was forced to leave for the western states where he expected he would recover his health. He first settled at Duck Creek, Wis., doing mission work and about 18 months ago he went to Campbell, Neb., where he joined Rev. Arthur Bernache, O. M. I., formerly of this city.

Some time ago his condition grew worse and he was removed to a hospital in Omaha, Neb., where he remained until a few days ago at which time he undertook the trip to this city, arriving here Sunday evening. His death occurred last night shortly after eight o'clock.

The body was removed to the Oblate novitiate in Tewksbury, where the funeral services will take place Thursday morning.

Three Young Men Were Fined for Assault—Large Docket in Police Court

The police court session this morning was unusually long and tiresome for there was a large array of offenders present to greet the judge.

The chief case was that of Joseph Joseph, Ebon Brennan and John Studer who were arraigned on a charge of assaulting Harold Hodgkinson, floor manager of the Bowldway skating rink.

Brennan it was claimed, was ordered from the skating rink by the manager; he remonstrated quite forcibly against the procedure, expressing verbally his unwillingness to comply with the official's request. It was shortly after 9 o'clock one night about a week or so ago, so it was claimed, during what is known as the "second session" of the skating. Afterwards, said the charge, the three defendants waited for the manager of the rink and a fight ensued in which Brennan was a prominent figure. The attorneys for the defendants were J. Joseph O'Connor and Daniel J. Donahue. Mr. Murphy appeared for the government.

The police officer who is stationed at the rink first took the stand and said first that Brennan had called the manager a vile name.

Afterward when cross examined by Lawyer Donahue, he said that he did not hear what the name was exactly but that he heard some name called. It was alleged that Brennan uttered threats to the manager when he was ejected from the floor.

Mr. Donahue got right after Edward Caldwell, who said he worked at the rink as skate mechanic. The witness said that Brennan had threatened to knock the plaintiff's head off. Mr. Donahue asked numerous questions and the while a broad smile overspread his countenance. The face of the witness, on the other hand, gradually took on a flushed appearance as he replied to the posers of the lawyer.

Joseph Caldwell next placed on the stand and he furnished the court with the information that he is a prize fighter, or at least a boxer. He said that he did not strike the defendant, but admitted helping Studer's watch on that night, just before the occurrence. He also said that he was going to "make a peek at" the complainant, but was stopped by the warning of some one who stepped in front of him.

The next witness was John Studer and he did not have a great deal to say. He gave as a reason for letting Joseph hold his watch, the fact that the manager of the rink was accompanied by a "big fellow" and that as he, Studer, had been a lifelong friend and companion of said Brennan, he did not care to see the latter become the victim of unfair play. Consequently he stood ready to interfere in such things went not well with Mr. Brennan. Studer is 19 years of age and is employed as a woodworker in the carpenter shop of the Lowell Machine Co.

Brennan when placed on the stand furnished the information that the manager had put him off the rink floor for skating too fast and that the same manager had told him to go down stairs and he would meet him there. Brennan said that he went down and bowed and hung around until shortly after 11 o'clock. Brennan said that Studer or Joseph did not strike the manager and that he was the principal of the fight.

Contrary to the accounts of these three witnesses, the court felt satisfied that there was prearrangement of the matter and that the three young men had planned to assault the plaintiff. He imposed a fine of ten dollars each, which was paid on the spot.

Case Was Discharged

George Tremblay, who was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery on a young lad named Lodieme Sevigny, was discharged after being found not guilty by Judge Enright. Mr. Tremblay works for his father, he said, as a teamster, and has occasion now and then to drive over Marshall street and in that vicinity. He said that some youngsters had thrown stones at him on that street, one of which hit a wheel of the wagon and the other the horse, causing the animal to jump and break a portion of the harness. Sevigny boy, according to Mr. Tremblay's testimony, was the one who threw the missile that struck the horse.

The young lad when on the stand denied throwing the stone but admitted cursing and using vile language at Mr. Tremblay. Mr. Tremblay told the other lad's mother, who administered her offender a "licking." The Sevigny boy on the stand testified that Tremblay had struck him on the side of the face. A woman who saw the occurrence testified in a manner which denied this statement, as did the statements of Mr. Tremblay himself.

Afterwards another stone was thrown, which struck the elder Mr. Tremblay on the hand, causing that member to swell up and become very painful. The Sevigny boy's father followed Mr. Tremblay's team, it was said, and attacked the man, after making threats to do so. The case was discharged and the judge forbade the clerk to pay the witnesses any fees.

Some Drunks

Martin Prybyla had not gotten over the effects of what must have been a big event for him and he had to be escorted downstairs to rest up and recuperate.

William J. Carney was held until Saturday, when said the judge, he will be placed on probation if his wife is willing. It was a charge of drunkenness and his wife claimed through the officer that the man did not support her.

Martin Callahan and James J. O'Neill were each fined $6 for second offenses of drunkenness. Adam Goley was badly battered up. Adam said that his wife, who by the way, was not Eve, had "licked" him. This was in reply to a statement by herself on the witness stand that she had "licked" her. He made several unsuccessful attempts to engage her in conversation after she had left the stand. He was sent to the state farm. Patrick Mc-

TO OBSERVE THANKSGIVING DAY THE FIRE DAMAGE IS $1,000,000

Amusements Scheduled

Thanksgiving day will certainly be a day of rest this year for the working people. Practically everything will be closed up tight with the exception of the drug stores and amusement places.

All of the mills will shut down for the day and practically all of them will reopen Friday morning. The stores and offices will all observe the holiday. The public schools will close Wednesday and remain closed until Monday. The textile school will close on Tuesday, giving the students one more day than they have been accustomed to having. The Normal school is to close Wednesday afternoon and reopen Monday morning. There will be only one delivery at the postoffice and that will be made Thanksgiving morning.

Proper observance of the day is to be made in all of the churches.

However, the day will be a gay one and practically everything in the amusement line will be running full blast. The Highland, York, Elks and Vesper clubs are to keep open house throughout the day. Many of the orders and lodges are to do the same. At the academy a program of sports has been arranged and the company drills suspended for the day. Bowling, rifle shooting and basketball will be among the sports that will be enjoyed by the members of the M. V. A.

The Bunting team is to play a game at the grounds in South Lowell and the High school alumni and school teams are to have a game at Washington park. Many other minor football

Fire Started in Sulphur Plant in Brooklyn—15 Persons Were Taken to Hospitals

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Brooklyn's East river water front was the scene yesterday of the most serious explosion and fire which that section has known for years. Fifteen men were taken to hospitals suffering from burns and injuries from which a number may die, and several persons on the scene at the time were missing last night. Late reports, however, discredited earlier beliefs that several lives had been lost.

The area of three blocks was swept and a loss of almost $1,000,000 caused, notwithstanding that the Brooklyn firemen were aided by New York fire boats and apparatus sent across the bridges from Manhattan.

The fire started with a series of explosions of chemicals on the ground floor of the five-story building of the Union Sulphur company, South 10th street and Kent avenue, in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn.

Workers who had escaped from other

floors, some by jumping, sought to fight their way through the billows of sulphur fumes to the rescue of their comrades and were themselves overcome, but although late last night half a dozen employees had not been accounted for, it was regarded doubtful that any had been left in the building. The explosions occurred with such force that eight firemen holding a hose upon the flames were thrown in the East river. They were picked up by a police department launch, five of them suffering severe burns from the explosion.

The flames swept down a large bay and grain warehouse of the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal company. At times the wall of flame which the wind drove before it was 200 feet square and it licked so close to the plants of the Brooklyn Gas company and the Pratt and Standard Oil companies that a series of terrible explosions was momentarily feared.

While the heat blistered the gas tanks and oil tanks and firemen were turning tons of water upon them to keep them cool, employees hurriedly set to work drawing off the great storage of gas, oil and gasoline through pipes which connected with other plants in Long Island City and Green Point.

ball games are to be played. The Opera House, Keith's, Playhouse, Academy of Music, Merrimack Square and Voyons are all staging vaudeville, moving pictures or plays. There is to be a bowling tournament at the Crescent alleys and roller skating at the Hudson street rink and the Casino. Several dances are to be run during the evening.

It can easily be seen that Thanksgiving will be a day of rest for those who desire it so and a day of festivity and amusement for those who prefer this to the rest.

THE TURKEY DINNER
Not So Costly as Was Predicted

In spite of the high cost of living a Thanksgiving dinner this year will not be a great deal more than it has been in former years. The writer made a tour of Lowell markets and grocery stores and though the prices varied in different places the average cost of the bird's that go with a Thanksgiving dinner are given below.

This report was spread that the middle classes and the poor would have to go without turkey this year as they were so scarce and the price so high that they would be obtainable only by the rich. This report has been vigorously denied by the farmers and poultry raisers and judging from the supply on hand among the local dealers and the price of turkey, this report is not so. The Vermont turkeys are considered of the best quality and there is a great demand for them. The price of turkeys is from 25 to 32 cents a pound averaging about thirty cents a pound. Ducks, geese and chickens are 28 cents a pound, four are about 24 cents a pound. Cranberries are 10 cents a quart, celery is 15 cents a bunch, lettuce 5 cents a head. Squash, pumpkins and turnips are 2 cents a pound, onions 25 cents a peck. Oranges are 25 cents a dozen and lemons 30 cents; grape fruit, 5 to 10 cents apiece; Malaga grapes, 15 cents a pound. Concord 15 cents a basket, and apples 30 cents a peck.

C. E. UNION MEETING

Held Last Night and It Was Decided to Have Three Vice Presidents Instead of One

A meeting of the Lowell Christian Endeavor Union was held last night at the First Trinitarian Congregational church, and it included the monthly business meeting and social. The attendance numbered about 150, representing more than 20 societies.

The supper was served in the vestry room of the church.

The business meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock. At the latter it was decided that the constitution be amended to allow the election of three vice presidents instead of one and that these take charge of the work which will be divided into three sections.

It was voted to contribute $15 to the State Union for the purpose of hiring a traveling secretary to inspect and address the various town and city unions and aid in their progress.

The treasurer of the society, Alexander Semple, handed in his resignation and asked that a treasurer be appointed to hold office, in his place, until the regular election of officers should be held. Walter E. Chase was appointed treasurer, pro tem.

It was announced that the annual election of officers would be held at the next meeting, at which time the three new vice presidents would be elected and the union divided into three divisions, over each of which one of the vice presidents will have supervision.

It was also announced that the monthly Junior Christian Endeavor rally will be held at the First Baptist church next Sunday afternoon, at 3.30 o'clock.

At the close of the business meeting there were interesting reports by

Frank J. Spenser, Miss Ella M. Peto, Miss Bernice Frisbee, the delegates of the society to the state convention held at Brockton, on the work accomplished by the society, and an inspiring missionary address by Rev. W. H. McLean of the Highland Methodist Episcopal church, on the subject, "The Unavoidable World Policies of Jesus."

The Chelmsford High school will close Wednesday at 2.30 p. m. as will a few of the grammar school grades. The grades not getting the required per cent. will be dismissed at 3.30 and will not return until Monday morning.

Many of the Chelmsford hunters and farmers report that pheasants are all together too destructive and thick in this section of the country. Twenty pheasants were counted in one farmer's back yard recently.

Miss Carly, recently of Bedford, now residing in the cottage vacated by Mr. Giles, is about to start her school career in Chelmsford.

Mr. Brady, the N. Y., N. H. & M. railroad crossing tender, who for the past week has been unable to attend his duties, will soon return. Mr. Brady, of Lowell, has been acting as his substitute.

Mr. William O. Tucker of the West village is entertaining Mr. William Witham of Maine, who will stay over Thanksgiving or a little longer.

Master Alky of the East Village, is all at his home.

An enjoyable evening was spent by the 50 members of the South Chelmsford Gun club who attended their year-end banquet held at Liberty hall, South Chelmsford.

The venison was furnished by some of the hunters and one of them, although shooting a monstrous buck, was not quick enough for the banquet. The supper was in charge of the South Chelmsford Christian Endeavor society, assisted by several other citizens. The committee was Messrs. Lyman Ryan, Charles Robbins and Chas. Griffin. After the banquet a very enjoyable musical and literary entertainment was held. The evening broke up with each member being more enthusiastic than ever over South village banquets.

in Chittenden county court was taken up with the statements of the prosecution and the defense. In the review of the case by the attorneys the sordid conditions existing in the neighborhood of Fort Ethan Allen were touched upon by counsel for both the state and the defendant, on one side to show that the case called for the maximum penalty, and on the other to establish a plea for leniency upon the grounds of heredity, environment and misfortune.

Her plea, guilty of murder in the second degree, was entered in court last week.

RHEUMATISM Sciatica and Neuritis

The prodding pains of rheumatism, sciatica and neuritis cannot long stand before the proof is furnished of the work being done through the country by "Nurita," the prescription in powder form which is a positive antidote for uric acid poison.

It is a physician's prescription, pharmaceutically compounded, without a trace of opiate, cocaine or any harmful drug. Reputable physicians all over the country are prescribing it as a long needed remedy and the news of their success is traveling. It was this news of the universal success of "Nurita" which induced us first to bring it to this city.

At last here is a prescription—not a patent medicine—which will positively and quickly relieve every case of rheumatism, sciatica and neuritis. It is pure negligence, entailing a continuance of your suffering, not to try it. Particularly those who may think their cases are of long standing and cannot be cured are invited to try "Nurita," with our assurance that the ingredients are absolutely harmless.

Heroics are out of fashion in football these days. The intelligent cooperation between coaches and trainer, the demands for instant if not always long sustained efficiency under the new rules and the tendency toward a cleaner game have combined to put an end to the old time displays of what was called pluck and really was foolhardiness. When men are injured nowadays they are taken out of the game, and the player is encouraged to report the slightest hurt to coach and trainer to the end that the same may be promptly attended to in the hope that the player may be saved from a long siege in the hospital. One of the best coaches in the east tells his players before the practice, as well as before the game, "When you are hurt I want you to quit and come and tell me about it. You don't have to fling, and you don't have to groan, nor do you have to be so badly hurt that you fall down several times in the attempt to get back into the lineup."

Under the modern system the men who are close to football can see nothing that approaches pluck in playing the game to a finish when the player is afflicted with a hoarse rill that may punch a hole in his lung at any minute. Time was when the men who played on uncomplainingly when they could hardly stand or see come in for more than their share of applause and the man who staggered about the field, only at last to red back into the lineup, was applauded from the stands and made as much of as the man who went through the game without injury and played his best.

The injured man is a useless factor in the present day team work and no first class eleven has any room for him. The time has gone by when a man could wear an aluminum plate over his ribs or play while suffering agonies from an ulcerated tooth, as was the case with "Bucky" Vail of Pennsylvania when the Quakers de-

Players are no longer expected to emulate Morris Ely of Yale and Sowell, the Navy quarterback, who played in their big games with fractured ribs. Both of these men, probably would have been taken out at once had there been any indication in their play that they were so seriously hurt.

In these days the injured man walks unconcernedly to the side lines, where he finds coach and trainer waiting for him, and says simply, "My knee," "My ankle" or "My neck." His hurt is dressed at once, and he has a chance to rest and recuperate, for any trainer worthy the name has a hoarse of the university hospital. Too often when the man goes to the hospital he is immediately put to bed, is compelled to go on a diet not calculated to maintain his strength and is kept there long after the active trainer would have had him out on the field again in good shape.

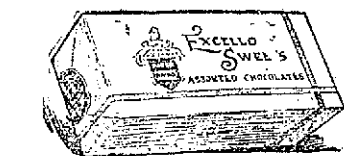

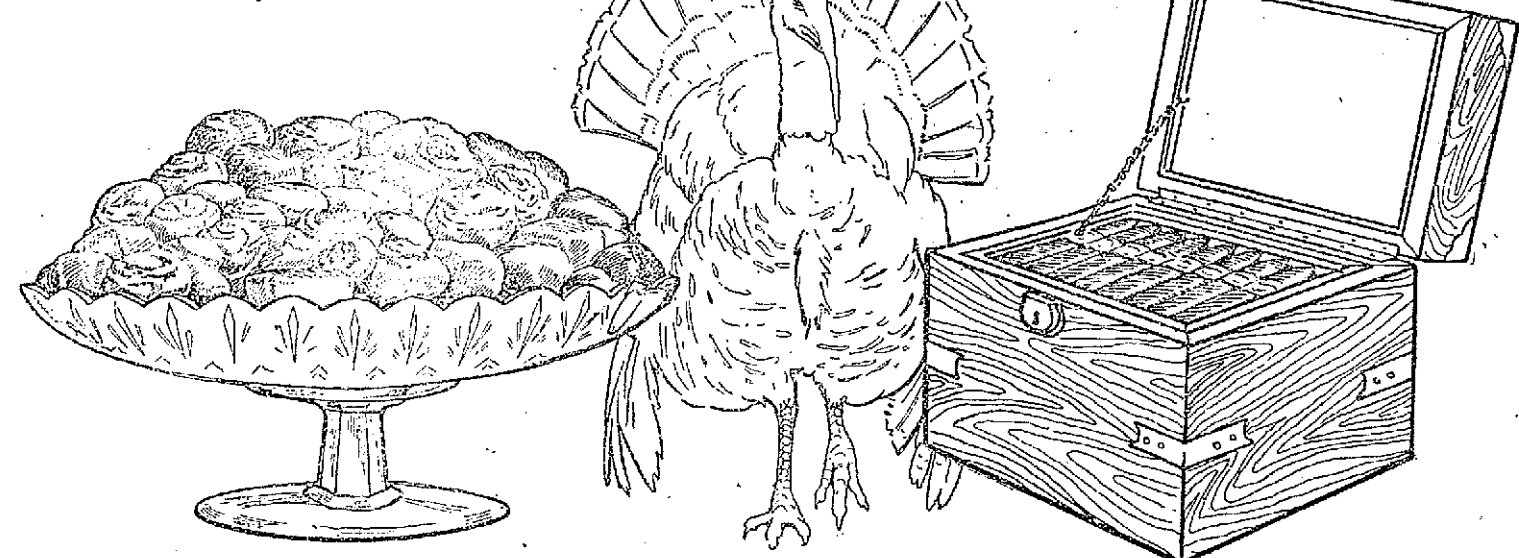

Little by little men like Mike Murphy of Pennsylvania, Johnny Munkler of Cornell, Keene Fitzpatrick of Princeton, "Punch" Donovan at Harvard and Mack of Yale have edged their way into the football councils to the extent that their reports on the condition of players have been accepted as final. There are men on the side lines at every football game these days, big or little, who under the old regime would have been on the field and in every scrimmage. The trainers are masters of the art of first aid to the injured, and they will pull a man out of the game, no matter what the score or how great the apparent need of his presence, and it is an intelligent coach who leaves this matter to the expert who has made an exhaustive study of the condition of the men and often knows more of their temperaments than the coach himself.

Time was when the trainer's chief function was to bandage injured men and send them back into the game while the play was under way or to devise intricate and complicated protective armor specially designed to cover a weak spot. Nowadays the trainer sends even the whole player into the game well protected by expert bandaging, and both trainer and coach insist upon properly placed padding that usually has to pass inspection. In the places a man supervises his own bandaging and his own padding, too often with unfortunate results. The injury to Felson, the tall end and left footed kicker of the Harvard eleven last season is a case in point. In some way the big Crimson kicker passed muster with a badly placed and insufficient hip pad and sustained an injury that kept him out of the Princeton game.

It is this matter of protective bandaging that does not include the heavy armor of five years ago that makes the work of the football trainer far more difficult than that of the man who has to look after the league baseball players. Harry Tudball, for years with the New York National baseball club and later with the Detroit Tigers, is one of the baseball trainers who have found football work to their liking and have mastered the theory and practice of protective bandaging. He is at present conditioning the West Point eleven and has achieved results. The condition of the men between the halves of the Army-Yale game was a fair sample of his work. It used to be the theory that cricket fair was as they were when the opening whistle sounded, and they sat up and talked about the game, what they had done in their first half and what they would do in the second.

Tudball had a simple test for the man who thinks he is in condition for a fast game of football. He suggests that the would be player run about half a mile and then try to whistle. It is infallible. West Point had last season a better conditioned eleven than

The trainer is often better able to find the "quitters" or lazy men in the squad than the coach. The player is apt to be less on his guard when he is being ruled down and bandaged, often a man who does not like the hard work of football is attracted by the sounds of the game—the uniform and the training table. He will do as little work as possible consistent with remaining on the squad through the season. It is this sort of man that is given to magnifying the slightest injury. Too often the coach cannot see through the sham, but the trainer is far more difficult to fool. It is no uncommon thing to hear a trainer say the strange teams. These men will return to have a deeply rooted fear of a player. "Oh, he is only faking out the team from a game on the slightest of it." The road trainer will refuse to let them out and report to the coach. The next process is to send the man to the hospital, where he will be kept in bed and starved on milk toast. This is an excellent cure for laziness. There are players, too, who, although always in the thick of the play in the practice scrimmage, are "game shy." They play brilliant football when they are facing men they know, but

An attractive showroom is one of the principal features of the automobile business and much attention has been paid to this phase of the industry by the Lowell Automobile Corporation in Appleton street. Manager Emerson, whose long experience in the trade has made him familiar with the proper background for the display of cars, has evolved a scheme of decoration which is particularly handsome and is a striking offset for the painting and finish of the Buick, Oakland and Little Four, which have been on exhibition in the spacious showrooms for the past week.

FOR SALE

1 Model K Special, Oakland car in A1 condition. Also Pierce-Arrow Limousine. A few other second hand cars, all in good running order, at bargain prices. Apply at Moody Bridge Garage. Tel. 2058.

Lowell Automobile Corporation was opened one week ago yesterday and was to have come to a close Saturday night, but while hundreds of automobile enthusiasts attended during the week there were others who were either unable to be present or else the attendance was so large that those who were desirous of learning the good qualities of the cars did not have the opportunity. Therefore, Manager Emerson has decided to continue the show during the remainder of the week, and he and his assistants, Messrs. Hale and O'Dea, will be present every day between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 10 o'clock at night to explain the details of the different cars as well as to give demonstrations. Since the opening of the show many people have signed contracts for new cars, while there are others who undoubtedly will purchase cars for delivery in the spring.

The public is cordially invited to attend the show and inspect the different models on exhibition.

Interest in the proposed highway to extend from New York to San Francisco, plans for which were outlined the little more than two weeks ago by Carl G. Fisher of Indianapolis, is now at its height. Pledges for the fund of $10,000,000 which will be necessary to defray the expenses of making the road are pouring in from all sides and professional indications are that the entire sum will be pledged by Jan. 1.

Steps will be taken shortly for the appointment and organization of a national committee which will take complete charge of the work, and just as soon as the plans of this body are completed, the entire country will be closed with the various counties through which the road will pass for the actual work of building the road. It is fully expected that by May 1, 1915, the ocean to ocean highway will be built.

"This is the biggest project ever undertaken in the automobile world," says a local supporter. "The original plans, which are the result of months of study on the part of Carl G. Fisher and James A. Allison, have been carefully examined by leading manufacturers and financiers of the country and have been endorsed by them as being safe, sound and entirely possible of execution."

"Within 30 minutes after the project was explained by Mr. Fisher at a banquet in Indianapolis recently, a sum of over $200,000 had been pledged by the automobile manufacturers and dealers of the Hoosier capital alone. Those connected with the automobile industry in other cities and states have not been slow in responding, and the temporary committee, composed by Carl G. Fisher and James A. Allison, which is now in charge of the business details of the project, reports that there is no apparent reason why the enterprise should not be carried to a successful completion. Bonded trust companies will be appointed to receive pledge payments as they are made, and not a dollar of this money is to be spent until the entire fund of $10,000,000 or more is guaranteed."

That the American woman sits in the car of final judgment when it comes to the purchase of a car is the decision that has now been reached by every progressive motor car manufacturer in America. Even the leaders are going far beyond ordinary limits to attract the attention of the woman to the car.

The demand this year, according to E. S. Jordan of the Thomas B. Jeffery Company, Kenosha, Wisconsin, is for a car that is just as near an electric as possible in comfort, equipment and convenience but which has the power and the long distance ability of the gasoline car.

To satisfy the taste of women, a new model, the Sedan, has been designed. This Sedan has all the advantages of the electric coupe without its limitations. It is equipped with the unit gasoline and electric motor which makes it possible for a woman to start the car and drive with the same comfort and ease as she formerly enjoyed in her electric.

Not only in the designing is the manufacturer catering to the woman. Some concerns are now employing women to sell. While there are but very few women who have had training in this line, if there are any today who feel that they have special ability in that line they need only convince one of the leading manufacturers of that ability and a position is open.

Various models of the Rambler are now on exhibition at the Moody Bridge garage in this city.

George Jessop, the well known racing pilot, who is now demonstrating the Oakland cars, was in Lowell last week with an Oakland Greyhound 6-60 seven passenger car, and gave demonstrations to a score of Lowell people. Artistically, the car is a beauty. The body is of a graceful design, roomy, and is sure to meet the approval of the careful buyer. Being equipped with an electric lighting and ignition system and other good qualities, it contains every necessity for the fullest enjoyment of motoring. The ten-inch upholstery makes the car luxurious for extended touring.

George A. Davis, of this city, formerly with the Knox Automobile Co. of Springfield, but now with the Packard Co., with headquarters at Hartford, Conn., visited his parents in this city Saturday night and Sunday, but returned to Hartford yesterday. George, who has made a careful study of automobile trucks, stated to the writer that the year 1913 is going to be a red letter year for trucks and he is very enthusiastic over the commercial cars being turned out by the Packard Co.

If every man who drives his car during the winter knew it, he would save himself possible bother by changing to a lighter grade of oil when the weather becomes colder.

Some motors are supposed to have a heavy grade of oil, and if the heavy grade is used, there will be some difficulty because the cold having made the oil thicker, it will not feed through the pipes as readily as when it is warm and thinner.

If the oiling system is such that all the oil is poured directly into the crankcase, or if the reservoir is right on the motor where it will be kept warm, no change is required. In the case of a motor using an oil pump and leads to the various parts, the lighter grades should be used; and the leads cleaned well when the change is made. It will be found that the motor starts more easily, too, after standing in the cold for several hours.

It's a good plan to clean out the old grease and oil in the clutch, gear box, rear axle and wheels and put in a thinner grade. This cleaning won't hurt the car after a summer's work, even though it is not considered necessary to change the lubricants.

The larceny of Contractor Edwin A. Simpson's Knox touring car from Dutton street Sunday should be a warning to automobile owners who have been in the habit of leaving their machines unattended for any length of time in the public streets for despite the efforts of the police to protect the owners it is very easy for a thief who understands the operation of a car, to steal one. Any person passing through Middle Market, Paige or John streets during the day can see scores of automobiles unattended and unless the passerby was very familiar with the various cars owners a thief might crank the engine, enter a car and drive away without the passerby knowing that a larceny was being committed. Automobile thieves have been operating in New York, Boston and other large cities but it is very rarely that cars have been stolen in Lowell. Some machines are equipped with magnetos that are locked by a key while others have various appliances to protect the owner and it would seem very advisable for

"SPECIFICATIONS" are the misleading things in automobile advertising. It is just about as fair to compare two cars having the same motor dimensions, wheel base and other identical details, as it is to compare two men wearing the same size hats—you cannot judge their efficiency by similarity of looks or size. Two motors can be alike in bore and stroke, and still differ materially in the power and efficiency. The question naturally arises: "What makes the difference?" and the answer is "The method of manufacturing and the materials used." As an example, the quality of the motor depends on the way the pistons are ground, the style of bearings used, type of gears, carburation and the method of lubrication. What is true of the motor is true of every other component part.

One advantage of being able to make immediate deliveries is that intending purchasers oftentimes make up their minds to give an order if the car that suits their fancy can be taken away the day the sale is made.

That the field of the electric car has broadened greatly in the last few years there can be no question. Nowadays, we hear of remarkable performances in the sort of work for which we have heretofore believed the electric car entirely unfit.

The business man who does not care to cover more than a three-mile zone in delivery would probably not be able to save money by substituting motor for horse haulage, but it has always seemed that the aim of any ambitious

Now when he gets outside the three-mile circle, a horse won't do his work profitably. The reason is simple enough—it is merely a matter of time. In order to determine what a horse costs to maintain, you should divide the upkeep of the animal by the number of deliveries he makes, thus arriving at the cost of delivery per package. It then becomes apparent that the maximum efficiency of the horse is obtained in a limited territory.

Against this three-mile proposition—for that is just about what it amounts to—consider what the power wagon will do. There are automobile delivery wagons and trucks, for instance, covering 50 to 60 miles a day, a zone of 15 to 20 miles and at a cost a package delivered for less than the horse confined to the three-mile zone.

It is not entirely a matter of what the motor will be able to do for you at once, but its ability to take care of an expanding business—and its influence in actually creating more trade.

"This will be a banner year for Ford cars in Lowell," said Mr. Stephen L. Nochetto of the Lowell Motor Mart in Merrimack street, to the automobile editor of The Sun yesterday. "Despite the fact that I was somewhat handicapped last year in the delivery of Ford cars, owing to the lack of freight cars to transport them eastward, thereby having to cancel many orders, there was a big demand for the popular car and the number of sales made was much greater than I had dared to anticipate. This year, if I can take the number of sales made so far as a criterion, will prove to be much better than last year. While many of the new models have been delivered a number of purchasers have signed contracts for Ford cars to be delivered early in the spring."

Cross Country

WITH GASOLINE AND ELECTRIC MOTOR

$1700

Eighty Per Cent Sales Increase

Eighty per cent more Cross Country cars were sold, delivered and paid for between July 15 and November 15 this year than were sold by the Jeffery company in the same period last year.

Four thousand six hundred and fifteen cars had been ordered from the factory and cash deposits paid on them up to November 15.

Four hundred and eight more dealers are selling the Cross Country today than sold this car a year ago.

Reasons for Success

The tremendous success of The Thomas B. Jeffery Company is due to the public appreciation of the Cross Country and its popular advantages.

These are:

- The gasoline and electric motor; the simplest and most effective starting and lighting system made. No chains, gears, belts or even an extra bearing. It operates as silently as any electric motor.
- Dignified beauty which compels you to stop, look and admire.

Coming or going the Cross Country is an aristocrat of the road. It is long, low and balanced perfectly. Finished in a rare shade of light Brewster green, this car has snap and beauty dexterously combined.

Such comfort we cannot describe. It can only be felt. The steady deliberate action of the springs gives to one that pleasurable sense of modulated motion, undisturbed by noise or jar.

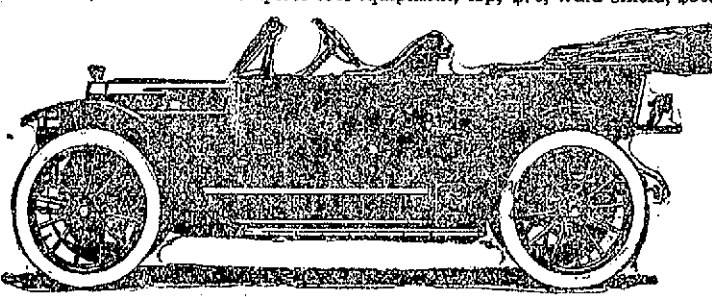

Ease of control—freedom and comfort for the man at the wheel—makes driving a positive joy. You grasp the steering wheel with a sense of mastery. It turns so easily you wonder at the lack of friction.

10,000 Mile Guarantee

Reliability vouched for by the ten thousand mile guarantee, a signed copy of which the Jeffery company will give with each car. This company makes ninety-six per cent of all parts.

Back of these things—the responsibility of The Thomas B. Jeffery Company, an independent concern which for forty years has commanded the good will and respect of the public.

Equipment: Large electric head lamps, flush electric dash lamps, electric tail lamp, extension inspection lamp, hinged robe rail, foot rest and complete tool equipment; top, $70; wind shield, $30.

MANY FOOTBALL "STARS"

Coach Says Reports to Contrary Erroneous

Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago comes to the defense of the modern football player. Assertions that no longer are there any "star" players are, according to the "old man," decidedly erroneous. There are more "stars" to the square mile now, he declares than ever before.

"It seems to me," he remarked recently, "there are far more good players now than ever in the history of the game, and the reason we do not hear so much about them is that newspaper writers are becoming educated to the fine points of the game and are devoting as much space and as many columns to the men who open the holes in the line as they do to the man who carries the ball through those holes. When football was new in the middle west the apparent in the game received all the attention. Take the average spectator nowadays and he will pick out one man and give him credit for winning the entire game. Experts, however, are now doing something to justify the application and see more than the spectacular."

"I think there are just as great players now as there used to be, but because there are so many their work does not stand out the way it did formerly. Take, for instance some of the men of this year. I have none of the spectacular ability on my team, but take some of the teams in the west."

"Purdue has a player in Oliphant who is as spectacular as one would want to see. No fault could be found either with Parsons of Iowa or with Curry of the same team, for they performed against Chicago. I have seen which brought back memories of the times when teams popularly were supposed to be built around one man. Gillette of Wisconsin is that type of 'star' (the absence of which critics are bewailing, while McClain of Minnesota is in the same class).

"Going down to Lincoln, we have Des Jarden on the Chicago team, who is as flashy a center as I have seen in many years. Des Jarden's work is unpolished to a degree, but there can be no doubt that he is spectacular and conforms to what some critics seem to desire. Last year we had Scully, while there were a number of linemen on other western teams who conformed to what the critics seem to want to see."

Other critics than Coach Stagg evidently believe today's football player is better educated than that of a half dozen years ago and demands team work rather than individual stars. Just as theatrical managers are abandoning the "star system" and sending out balanced companies, so football coaches are abandoning the idea of featuring any individual player and are sending out eleven which are a unit. Team play is the slogan at all western schools this year, and the wonderful success Chicago had in the last two games of last season, when the Maroons were a well rounded team, instead of featuring one player seems to indicate the public appreciates this.

Even in the days of "old football" team play was more appreciated than individual stardom. The most famous game in Chicago was the Michigan contest of 1905, which the Maroons won 21 to 0. This was a game in which there were 22 men on the field, and every one of these played an equal part and shared equally in the result.

There were a number of "stars" on each team, it is true, but the stars got little more credit that day than did their mates. These same "stars" had appeared in previous games and had worked in later ones and done spectacular work, but none of the games ever compared with the 1906 championship contest, in the roster's opinion.

Coach Stagg is a firm believer in the new rules. He declares that from the standpoint of the spectators the rules of 1912 are the best yet devised, while from the player's viewpoint the code is in many ways superior to the one in force previous to 1906 and inferior in some ways.

A study of rosters at this year's games compared with those at the old time contests demonstrates that nothing has changed in the lapse of time there has been no change in what the public wants. Although old timers declare the chief beauty of football was the old line plunging, the crowds at those contests scarcely bore out that assertion. Nothing was applauded in the old game like the sweeping end runs and the unexpected trick plays which got the runner out in the open in view of all the spectators. The rushing game, where the man in the grandstand could not see what was happening, may have been popular, but the cheering at those times did not seem to indicate this.

GOV. FOSS URGES ACTION

Against the Coal Dealers Who Violate Law

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Gov. Foss has advised the United Improvement Association to take action under the Massachusetts law for the suspension or revocation of the licenses of any coal dealers who have charged extortionate prices for coal or have entered into a conspiracy or unlawful combination to raise prices, according to the evidence gathered by the executive committee of the association.

"I believe that the United Improvement Association is in a position to prosecute this matter immediately and with beneficial results to the community," writes the governor in a letter addressed to the executive secretary of the association, Howard Whitmore. He asks to be informed as soon as possible what the association will do as he will govern his own action accordingly.

The governor says that in his opinion the most effective measure would be that provided for in the acts of 1906. These provide, in brief, that any justice of the superior court may suspend or revoke licenses of coal dealers upon complaint in due form for charging exorbitant prices or for conspiring or combining unlawfully with other persons. A penalty of fine and imprisonment is provided also. The governor further points out that under the general law the superior court judge may appoint a master to investigate and report to the court, which may then transmit the evidence to the attorney general for action.

"I believe, after mature deliberation," writes the governor, "that the procedure I have indicated will be quicker and more certain in its results than procedure such as you suggest under chapter 521 of the acts of 1911, being the so-called Higgin bill, for the reason that the procedure I suggest embodies the immediate opportunity to cancel the license of any coal dealer who was proved to be conducting his business in an unlawful manner, and literally to put him out of business."

Procedure under the Higgin act would result only in civil or criminal proceedings, which might be protracted over a considerable period of time."

The association in its report on hard coal prices, said that it appeared that certain of the local coal dealers were charging on all deliveries a price which was not warranted except on a small fraction of their supply, and that various increases in the price of coal seemed to be made as the result of a mutual understanding among coal dealers. One paragraph of the report reads:

"It is reported that the Boston price is determined by one man and that all other dealers follow his lead without agreement or any knowledge of what others will do."

"KING OF AUSTRALIA"

Hugh C. McIntosh is the "Big Noise"

Jim Barry, who recently returned from Australia, didn't enjoy his visit very much. Writes Barry: "Just a word of advice to the American boxers. The only man getting any money in Australia is Hugh C. McIntosh. He gets both ends and the middle. They regard him as a king there, and anything he does or says is law with the natives."

At present he has Langford and McVey tied up so they cannot leave. As you perhaps know, for a colored man to enter Australia the promoter must put up a bond of $1000 for six months, and as long as he cares to renew the bond the boxer must stay there. Hence the balance of the day, Langford and McVey, McIntosh told me himself that if he ever got Johnson back there he would keep him there as long as he was able to draw a gate. I have posted Jack on his intentions, and there is not a chance of the big negro going there unless McIntosh posts him money in an American bank and also signs a contract that he can leave as soon as his three nights are over."

COMMITTED SUICIDE

Brockton Young Man Married Secretly Six Weeks Ago and Two Weeks Later Ended His Life

BROCKTON, Nov. 25.—Married secretly six weeks ago, and three weeks later a suicide, is the pathetic story of Louis C. Simoncau of 53 Sylvester street, revealed fully in the return of a marriage license to the city clerk's office yesterday.

Simoncau a well-known man of this city, who took his own life Nov. 2 by taking carbolic acid on Monticello street, was the husband of an equally popular young lady of this city, Annie L. Flynn of 50 Forest street.

The news that they were married came to the parents of both young people yesterday like a thunderbolt. For although they had kept company for almost a year, none suspected the truth.

At his funeral services the young widow was present, and it was noticed how truly grief-stricken she was, but even then no one guessed the truth.

According to the marriage return, the couple were married in Boston Oct. 12 by a Mr. James, a justice of the peace.

DELAY ALLEGED

In the Handling of Lumber—Testimony in Support of the Charges Presented to Commissioner Prosser

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Testimony in support of the charges of delay in the handling of lumber was submitted today to Special Commissioner Prosser of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who is investigating the service on several New England roads. C. S. Wentworth of Boston produced the complaints of lumber dealers on delay trains, shortage of cars and alleged poor service. The defense introduced the evidence of six large lumber dealers attesting that the service was satisfactory. Special Commissioner Prosser remarked that the lumber dealers were entitled to the same service as the other freight.

The investigation will be resumed next Monday.

THE RUSSELL DOCUMENT

Has Been Ruled Out by the Court

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—The most important parts of Dakota Dan's application for membership in the Woodmen of the World, a piece of documentary evidence that played an important part in the former trial, were excluded from the present hearing by Master Pevey yesterday after a three-hour argument between counsel.

John T. Yates, sovereign clerk of the sovereign court of the Woodmen, the keeper of records of the order, who was brought from Omaha to put the application in evidence, admitted under the cross examination of Attorney William R. Scharton that he could not personally authenticate the document.

He was excused; but Master Pevey allowed the first page of the document to go in. It contained the signature of James D. Russell.

The excluded parts were said to be the statements in the appended application for insurance, that the applicant had three brothers and two sisters living, and other facts of personal history not in conformity with the history of Daniel Blake Russell, Dakota Dan, in cross-examination, said that after signing the application he turned it over to the solicitor, saying, "fill in whatever you want."

W. F. Buckman, historian for divison 61 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, a distant relative of Daniel Blake Russell's mother, said that the met "Dakota Dan" in 1909, the claimant showed him a scar on the back of his neck, which recalled a flailing incident of boyhood.

Benjamin B. White was recalled to complete his cross-examination. He told Atty. Nason nothing could shake his conviction. "Do you expect a reward for your evidence?" asked Mr. Nason.

"No sir, not in the least. I came all the way down from Acton, Me., to testify and I am paying my expenses," said the witness.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—Ad Wolgast, limelight champion, ruling a two to one favorite over Willie Ritchie in the betting on their 20 round bout here Thanksgiving day, did his last boxing today and is apparently supremely confident of the outcome of his fight.

Ritchie has worked out quietly and has surprised the fight followers by the ease with which he trained down to 133 pounds.

White Wolgast's manager, Tom Jones, has offered large sums at 10 to 1, Ritchie and his manager have not been in evidence in the betting ring.

THE MISSING WITNESS IS FOUND

Mrs. Simmons Testified for the Government in the Hackett Murder Trial Today

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 26.—Mrs. Nettie Simmons, the state's witness who disappeared just before the trial of Mrs. Elsie Raymond was opened, and was located at Milford, Mass., told the jury today that she saw Mrs. Raymond wear the tan shoes between four and five o'clock the night of the murder. She also testified that Bert Raymond searched the orchard for his wife before seven o'clock, that he went back and forth over the path, which he denied yesterday he crossed that night, and finally that the Saturday after the murder Bert asked her to say that she saw Elsie sitting on a stone wall in the orchard at eight o'clock. Mrs. Simmons was asked if she was sure there was a stone wall in the orchard and she replied that she was sure and she had seen Mrs. Raymond sitting on it at other times. Foxwell Sedgely, who owned the premises and W. B. Gatchell, the civil engineer who made the surveys in 1905, testified there was no stone wall there. The former, however, said there was a pile of broken rocks. Testimony was introduced showing that a four and a half shoe of a certain make such as Mrs. Raymond is claimed to have worn in 1905, would have been 9-12 inches long. The shoe she was wearing in the courtroom was removed and it measured 9-13 inches in length. An engineer testified that in a half-mile of the Nickerson hill there is a rise of more than 400 feet. This is the hill over which the state claims Mrs. Raymond made her way in order to commit the crime. The entire distance from the Raymond home to the point where the murder was committed is about two miles. The last testimony was presented at 12:30 o'clock and it was arranged before counsel that each side would take an hour and a half for arguments. Chief Justice Whitehouse will deliver the charge tomorrow morning and the case will go to the jury.

M'MANIGAL SAW YOUNG TRIAL OF 106 KOREANS

Latter Wanted Him to Do Charged With Conspiring to Kill Terauchi Job, He Says

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—Adhering to its argument that the dynamiters who already have confessed alone are responsible for explosions, the defense at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today continued its cross-examination of Orville McManigal.

Senator John W. Kern, chief counsel for the forty-five defendants, pled McManigal with questions intended to show that the dynamiter kept as secluded as possible while on his trips of destruction.

"When I went to Boston to see Mike Young, the ironworkers' business agent, about blowing up the tower in the municipal building at Springfield in April, 1911, Young called me down," said McManigal. "He said he had told J. J. McNamara I was not to stop at Boston; that Young didn't want to be seen with me."

"Didn't McNamara tell you always to see as few people as possible and didn't you receive your instructions from McNamara alone?" asked Senator Kern.

"From McNamara and Hockin. Once when Hockin instructed me I told him if I was caught we all would be caught."

"But you never got any instructions about jobs to be blown up from anyone except McNamara?"

"I said McNamara and Hockin. Young in Boston talked to me about doing work for the local union and I told him I worked only for the International."

"I am free time of San Francisco, a defendant who had been sitting at counsel's table since the trial began, was ordered by Judge Anderson to sit among the other defendants."

"I notice there is a perpetual smile on the face of the defendant Treitmeier while the witness is being examined," remarked Judge Anderson. "I will not permit any demonstration, either by smiling or otherwise."

M'MANIGAL SAW YOUNG TRIAL OF 106 KOREANS

Latter Wanted Him to Do Charged With Conspiring to Kill Terauchi Job, He Says

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 26.—The new trial on appeal began here today of the 106 Koreans charged with conspiring against the life of Count Terauchi, governor general of Korea. When proceedings opened 105 of the accused were present, the other prisoner being sick. About a dozen missionaries, a number of the prisoners' relatives and other spectators occupied the spaces outside the bar. Baron Yun Chi Ho, a foreign Korean cabinet minister, who had been sentenced to a term of ten years' imprisonment at the first trial was first examined. He explained at length the reasons for the confession made in March, 1911, before the procurator, when he admitted complicity in the conspiracy and implicated six of the leaders. He said he then believed from newspaper reports and other sources that the six men he mentioned had been already convicted. For that reason and fearing harsh treatment or torture which the police, he said, had threatened, he confessed. He argued that this was better than himself inventing a new falsehood implicating innocent people.

SENATOR JOHN W. KERN, CHIEF COUNSEL FOR THE FORTY-FIVE DEFENDANTS, PLED MCMANIGAL WITH QUESTIONS INTENDED TO SHOW THAT THE DYNAMITER KEPT AS SECLUDED AS POSSIBLE WHILE ON HIS TRIPS OF DESTRUCTION.

"When I went to Boston to see Mike Young, the ironworkers' business agent, about blowing up the tower in the municipal building at Springfield in April, 1911, Young called me down," said McManigal. "He said he had told J. J. McNamara I was not to stop at Boston; that Young didn't want to be seen with me."

"Didn't McNamara tell you always to see as few people as possible and didn't you receive your instructions from McNamara alone?" asked Senator Kern.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The trial of Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy and Albert Freeman, charged with fraudulent use of the mails in exploiting mining stocks, was continued today before Judge Hough in the United States district court. While there were 12 tentative jurors in the box the defense had nine peremptory challenges left and the prosecution six. Before any more challenges were made Judge Hough had 15 more talesmen called and they were examined for their fitness and freedom from bias. Several of the talesmen, while being questioned, said they had received some of the Hawthorne literature.

Other streets were discussed and the commissioner agreed to do all he could to make the streets safe. Signs for the streets were discussed and the league will place a number of signs at important spots with the approval of the street department. In Merrimack square it is expected that a large sign facing down Central street will be erected, indicating in bold letters the cities and towns in either direction.

STEADY NERVES

The man of woman whose blood is filled with impurities should remember that good, pure blood means health. Through the aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People health is within your reach. They go straight to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and giving it the elements which it lacks. For a good appetite, healthy color, health and strength, they have no equal. What these pills will do when given a thorough trial is shown in the case of Mr. George A. Herrick, of No. 57 Clarendon street, Boston, Mass., who says: "I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People because they helped me when nothing else did. I was taken sick and called a doctor. He said I was all run down. He doctored me for six weeks or more, but I did not improve. I had no ambition or life. My appetite was poor and I was weak and could not work. I suffered from headaches, had no color and my heart action was very poor."

"I was so nervous that the slightest thing annoyed me and so cold most of the time that I almost froze. I could hardly walk downtown. A friend called me to the telephone one night and asked me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Out of curiosity I bought a box. In a short time I began to improve and soon was back at work. My gain was almost beyond belief. Now I enjoy better health than I ever have and can stand exposure and hard work. I believe they are the greatest blood-builder and nerve tonic there is."

For anemia, chlorosis, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers, stomach trouble and all forms of general debility, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People should be given a thorough trial. A booklet, "Building Up the Blood," which is free upon request, will show what these pills have done. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

The executive committee of the Lowell Automobile league held a conference with Commissioner Brown of the street department and City Engineer Kearney at the rooms of the Appleton National bank yesterday afternoon.

The league called the department's attention to a number of streets which contained bad spots and urged that they be repaired. Mention was also made of the dangerous condition of the Pawtucket boulevard and Commissioner Brown agreed to put it in shape by hauling in some culders from the pumping stations near by. This has been a treacherous spot for travelers for several months, and the league was anxious to get it repaired.

Other streets were discussed and the commissioner agreed to do all he could to make the streets safe. Signs for the streets were discussed and the league will place a number of signs at important spots with the approval of the street department. In Merrimack square it is expected that a large sign facing down Central street will be erected, indicating in bold letters the cities and towns in either direction.

When Overtaking Electric Cars in Mass. Highway, Rules State Supreme Court

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Automobiles overtaking an electric car in the middle of Massachusetts highways must pass to the left, by the decision of the state supreme court. Four of the seven justices decided in favor of this interpretation of the law today.

The minority of the court, including Chief Justice Ruggs, expressed the opinion that it was not the intention of the legislature to include electric or horse cars within the law of the road and that it is impossible to comply with the law in some country towns where the tracks are on the extreme side of the highway.

The case arose over an accident in Revere. J. Sidney Foster was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas P. Curtis of Nahant. Mr. Curtis was passing an electric car to the right when his automobile struck Mr. Foster.

BASEBALL MAGNATES

Will Not Take Up the Charges of Fogel at the National League Session This Afternoon

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Magnates of the national league in session in New York, will not take up today the charges of President Fogel of the Philadelphia club involving his alleged statement that the pennant race was "fixed." This was tacitly agreed upon by the assembled club presidents in view of the death of John T. Brush. It was decided to go into session at 2 p. m. to adopt resolutions on Mr. Brush's death and adjourn until tomorrow.

Fogel said this afternoon that he did not know and had never heard of W. S. Forman, the Chicago newspaperman quoted in despatches from there today as saying that he "has Fogel's own word for it" that Fogel made the charges in order to help Murphy fight his battles in the National League.

"There is more politics than real goodwill for baseball behind this whole affair," continued Fogel. "All of these claims were started by Lynch in an effort on his part to gain sympathy for himself in his efforts for re-election as president of the national league."

O'Brien Needs Coaching

Young Jack O'Brien shows improvement every time he starts. In a recent ten-round bout with Young Brown, a sturdy New York scrapper, the Philadelphia gave a clever exhibition. His greatest failing is in not knowing how to protect himself at close quarters. At long range he played with Brown, but at in-fighting failed to distinguish himself. Of course, O'Brien is very young and may remedy this defect under the careful coaching of his big brother, the original Philadelphia Jack.

O'Brien wants to meet Ad Wolgast again. It will be remembered the boys boxed six rounds a few months ago, and the Quaker City scribes opined that Young Jack had the best of it. Wolgast was not in championship form by any means on that occasion, it being his second short tryout after a long spell of idleness following the operation for appendicitis, and O'Brien's supporters should not bank too strongly on the result of that encounter.

GIBSON JURY COULD NOT AGREE

After Deliberating for Fourteen Hours Jury Reported and Was Discharged

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 26.—After deliberating for more than 14 hours, the jury in the case of Burton W. Gibson, charged with the murder of his client, Mrs. Rosa Menchik Szabo, reported to Justice Tompkins shortly after one o'clock this morning that they could not agree on a verdict. They were accordingly discharged.

The difficulty the jurors encountered in making up their minds was disclosed early this morning when they filed into the courtroom and told Justice Tompkins that they could not agree.

"You will retire, gentlemen," directed the court, "and make another attempt to find a verdict."

Gibson slumped down in his seat when Foreman Hicks announced a disagreement. Mrs. Gibson buried her face in her hands and wept long after the juryroom door had closed on the jurors.

During their stay in the courtroom one juror wanted to know if they had to find that Mrs. Szabo was strangled to death in order to return a verdict of conviction. He was told yes. Another wanted the Szabo testimony. It was given him. A third wanted the letters the defendant had sent to her home in Austria, and these were given.

Mr. Elder Gibson's lawyer, was granted permission to make a motion. "I request the court to charge the jury," he said, "that they must find from all the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that this defendant strangled Mrs. Szabo to death before they can convict him of any crime."

"I have already charged the jury," Justice Tompkins said.

Gibson returned to his cell. As the night waned the discussion in the juryroom became more heated. Angry words floated out in the corridor. One was overheard to declare that he would hold out for an acquittal indefinitely. Others were equally insistent for a verdict of guilty.

Jury Discharged
"Have you reached a verdict?" asked Justice Tompkins when the jury came in at 11:20 o'clock.

"We have not," replied Foreman Hicks.

"Is there any prospect of your being able to agree?"

"We think not."

"Then," began the court, "I hereby discharge you."

Pale and haggard, Gibson rose from his chair and interrupted the court.

"Your honor," he said in a low tone, "I ask the privilege of making a statement."

"No, Mr. Gibson," replied the court. "This is not the time nor the place for that, gentlemen."

Turning again to the jury—"Gentlemen, I discharge you."

"Oh, your honor," broke in the prisoner with quivering voice—"just one word, just one word, just one word now. I have a statement to make—I want to ask you to request this jury to go back and try."

"Stop," commanded the court, raising his hand.

"Once more to reach a verdict," the prisoner concluded, "unmindful of the court's command."

"Gentlemen," said the court, ignoring the interruption, "I am sure that you have tried honestly and earnestly to reach a verdict. I thank you and hereby discharge you."

The court cautioned the discharged jurors to say nothing about their deliberations in view of the fact that the case will have to be tried again in the county.

It was reported in the courtroom that the jury had stood 11 to 1 for acquittal and that the defendant had been told that the jury had stood seven to five for conviction.

Worn by long waiting through the night, Gibson's wife was asleep when the disagreement was announced and the lawyers drew lots to determine which of them should advise her that her husband must be tried again.

URGENT DEMAND

Market Was Strong at the Close—Rate of Money Sagged Steadily Until It Touched Three Per Cent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—There was no perceptible change in the weakness which depressed stocks yesterday when trading began today. The undertone was firm and small fractional advances were in the market. Canadian Pacific was particularly strong, commanding 15 on the first sales.

The market sold off a trifle when the traders began to take profits. Subsequently the list hardened again, but trading came almost to a standstill on the advance.

Stringent money conditions eventually overcame the early improvement. Prices opened a good fraction higher in sympathy with the higher range of values abroad, but these gains and more, were lost when the money rate began to climb. Yesterday's high figure of 12 per cent was equalled before noon. The drain on the banks from sub-treasury operations so far this week has reached nearly $6,000,000, approximately the amount of the surplus reserve shown in last Saturday's bank statement.

The decline in stocks was checked when money rates yielded to 3-1/2. It was rumored that the government would relieve the stringency by depositing $20,000,000 in the market. Room traders curtailed their operations greatly in the afternoon, the stiff money rates militating against active speculative ventures. Prices scarcely moved either way but the undertone was better.

The market closed strong. Satisfaction of the urgent demand left money a virtual drug on the market and the rate sagged steadily until it touched three per cent.

THE ITALIAN PRESS PRAISES THE IMPARTIALITY OF JUDGE QUINN
ROME, Nov. 26.—The majority of the Italian press commenting on the trial at Salem, Mass., of Joseph Etor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso for the murder of Anna Lopizzo praises the impartiality of the summing up of Judge Joseph Quinn.

The agitation here in connection with the trial and the threats to declare a general strike are condemned generally, the newspapers remarking that they are indications of an attempt to substitute the people or the mob of one country for a legally empaneled jury in another.

MURPHY IS RESPONSIBLE For Story Fogel Wrote Says Forman

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Under the caption "The Story Fogel Wrote," W. B. Forman, sporting editor of the Evening Post, in a signed statement today charges Charles W. Murphy, president of the Chicago National league club, with being the instigator of the story which resulted in charges being preferred against Fogel. Mr. Forman says in New York prepared to testify before the league meeting. Mr. Forman says:

"Charles W. Murphy authorized me to tell Fogel that Murphy had suggested writing the story. On this representation Fogel wrote it and signed it. He sent it to Murphy, who read it before I ever saw it. It came to me from Murphy's office and if Murphy had not requested it it would not have been published. The man who is responsible for that article and the charges it contained is Murphy himself and I have Fogel's own word for it that he wrote it simply to help Murphy fight his battles in the National league."

LAWRENCE OPERATIVES ARE TO HOLD CELEBRATION IN HONOR OF THE THREE MEN
LAWRENCE, Nov. 26.—The news of the acquittal of Etor, Giovannitti and Caruso on charges of murder was received with delight by the thousands of foreign operatives in the big Lawrence textile mills. No early morning demonstration occurred as practically all of the members of the Industrial Workers of the World were at their places in the factories. Several of the leaders of the organization announced that the men exonerated at Salem would come to Lawrence.

The leaders further stated that there would be a celebration in honor of the three and that probably an indoor mass meeting or a street parade would be held on Thanksgiving day. Thursday was regarded as a particularly appropriate day for jubilation especially as the operatives would be idle.

William Yates, secretary and treasurer of the Industrial Workers, in an interview said: "We have had no fear of the outcome at any time since the leaders were arrested. The acquittal of the three men is a vindication of the Industrial Workers of the World. The Workers will continue their task of organizing labor for more pay and shorter hours until the full product of their toil. We ask the three men to come here on Thanksgiving day and will obtain a permit for a parade if we can."

Mr. Yates states that probably Etor and Giovannitti would go into seclusion for a day or two in order to recover from the strain of their imprisonment and trial.

The verdict spread rapidly through the city and among the mill operatives at work. Within a few minutes every person in Lawrence interested in the case had learned of the outcome of the trial.

Arrangements for two mass meetings tonight were made by the officers of the Industrial Workers when they were informed that Etor, Giovannitti and Caruso were coming to the city this afternoon. It was planned to have the meetings informal and preliminary to the proposed demonstration Thanksgiving day. Etor and Giovannitti agreed to speak at the Industrial Workers' headquarters (Lexington hall) and in Franco-Belgian hall this evening. The police officials said that they would not interfere with the Industrial Workers, so long as they did not infringe the city ordinance.

A public meeting in the interest of good citizenship has been arranged by a number of leading Lawrence residents and business men. The meeting, which is to be held Thursday in city hall, will be addressed by Samuel Elder of Boston, the street parade, Mayor Scanlon and others. The promoters say they have not designed it as a demonstration against the Industrial Workers of the World, but merely as an assembly calculated to give expression of what ideal American citizenship should be. The street parade on Thanksgiving day by the Industrial Workers has not been favored by Public Safety Commissioner Lynch. Whether the authorities would grant a permit for an outdoor procession has not been decided as yet.

Officers of the Industrial Workers all over the country were notified of the Salem verdict by Secretary-Treasurer Yates.

THE UNWRITTEN LAW
Invoked by Man Accused of Murder

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Isaac Etnyre, on trial for murdering his wife today, pleaded the unwritten law in his defense. He declared that his wife had responded to the wooing of Rayford E. Barlow, a corporal in a regiment stationed at Fort Sheridan.

"I saw Barlow and my wife sitting on the sofa embracing each other when I looked through the window," said Etnyre. "Something seemed to snap in my brain. I lost my reason, ran into the house, got a revolver and fired."

A bullet struck Mrs. Etnyre in the abdomen, causing her death. Barlow was wounded in the shoulder.

Corporal Barlow denied the accusation and said he visited the Etnyres home to meet his fiancée, Elsie Bonin of Elgin, Ill.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 26.—Counsel for J. Frank Hickey, who was arrested last week at Whiting, N. J., in connection with the death of Joseph Joseph, a boy at Lackawanna, N. Y., today withdrew his application for a hearing against the extradition of Hickey and it was announced that Acting Governor Prince would sign the papers permitting the New York authorities to take the prisoner to Lackawanna.

COULON MEETS WILLIAMS
In Ten Round Bout in New Haven, Dec. 17

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 26.—Johnny Coulon, holder of the bantamweight title, will be a busy little individual within the next few weeks. Johnny has agreed to tackle Kid Williams, the Baltimore star, in this city Dec. 17 in a 10 round contest. This will be the second meeting of the boys. The first battle resulted in a draw, but many experts were of the opinion that in another bout Williams would defeat Coulon. Williams is one of the best little men that ever put on a glove, and unless Coulon is in the best of shape he is likely to receive a beating. Charles Ledoux, the champion bantamweight of Europe, will be matched with the winner. The latter recently made his debut in this country, defeating Battling Reddy and knocking the critics by his fast work. He has 54 knockouts to his credit. If Coulon can get away with these two cracks he can afford to rest up for some time to come.

COL. SMYTH RESIGNS
Maj. Hanna, U. S. A., May be His Successor

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Col. James H. Smyth, inspector general, Massachusetts Volunteer militia, has resigned and been discharged from the service. It is reported in military circles that Maj. Mark Hanna, U. S. A., who was recently added to the inspector general's department with the rank of major, will take the position thus made vacant. Col. Smyth's resignation does not come as a surprise to his many friends in the militia, it being understood that conditions surrounding his department have not been all to his liking. A month ago Col. Smyth took out resignation papers. He was induced to reconsider his determination but matters not improving he forwarded his resignation yesterday which was accepted and his discharge followed.

Col. Smyth joined the militia in the 1st regiment of Infantry, (A company) in 1896. He served his second enlistment in H company in 1899, as corporal and sergeant, and was elected 2d lieutenant the same year. In 1901 he was elected 1st lieutenant and captain of the 8th company, coast artillery corps, in 1902. He was commissioned major, inspector general, Feb. 4, 1910, and appointed lieutenant colonel June 26, 1911, and colonel and assigned to the head of the department Dec. 27, 1911. He was with the command in its Spanish war service in 1898.

Maj. Hanna who, it is rumored, is to head the department, is a major in the regular service. When he was appointed to the Massachusetts department a few months ago there was much surprise among military men, as he is a native of Ohio and the militia law calls for officers of the militia to be citizens of Massachusetts. It has been rumored that Maj. Hanna intended leaving the army but up to date he still remains in the service.

CHAS. HYDE'S CHARACTER
Witnesses Say it Was Above Reproach

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Character witnesses testified today at the trial of Charles S. Hyde, former city chamberlain, charged with bribery in connection with a loan to the defunct Carnegie Trust Co. Supreme Court Justice Muddox of Brooklyn testified that he had known the defendant for many years, and gave him a good character.

A. E. Jencks, presiding justice of the appellate division, Brooklyn, said he had known Hyde for about 13 or 20 years and that in his opinion Hyde's reputation was above reproach.

"Has it ever been stated to you that Hyde helped to elect a state senator in behalf of the racing interests?" asked Assistant Dist. Atty. Moss on cross examination.

"No, it has not," replied the justice.

Several Brooklyn business men testified as to the reputable character of the defendant. Dr. Austin Flint, the alienist, was then called by the defense in an attempt to establish the insanity of Joseph Robin, former president of the Northern bank. Robin accuses Hyde of having forced him to loan $130,000 to the Carnegie Trust Co. and has so testified. On his credibility as a witness the state's case largely rests.

Quarterbacks Are Important Under New Gridiron Code

DEWITT, PRINCETON'S FULLBACK

With the last games at hand the importance of having a competent field general is being more and more vividly impressed upon the minds of football instructors. The quarterback position carries more prestige and is a more difficult job to fill satisfactorily this year than ever before, for the reason that under the new rules many contests are either won or lost upon his ability to choose effective formations at appropriate times, thus making a timely attack.

Since the new code affords such a varied style of offense the man who stands behind the center must use his brains continually. Success comes only after the quarter has scrupulously sized up his opponent and then selected the formation that his coach has instructed him to use to meet that particular situation. When the game is at its height it is a very common failure for even experienced leaders to forget all about certain formations that have been gone over and over in practice. In such a case the rules seem to have made ample provisions for it is the custom of most instructors to assist their quarterbacks from the side lines by sending in suggestions by a fresh player. This means of aid is a great advantage to the field general at critical times and in many cases has had a direct result upon the outcome of the contest.

To carry on an effective attack it is essential that the field general look the situation over very thoroughly before he calls his signal, but he must be able to size up the enemy at a glance, for a pair of wise defensive tactics can easily discern which way the play is going to be directed by the leader hesitating to look at the spot at which the attack is to be driven.

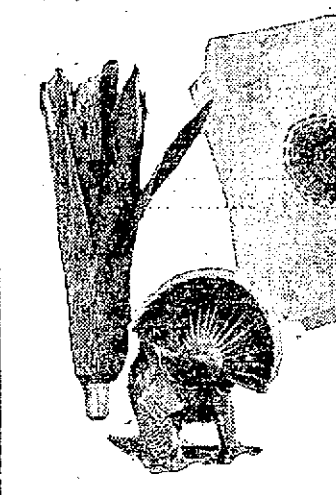

For instance, if the defensive halves are playing deep, tackle smashes and end runs are almost bound to prove proud gains, as the opposing line is sure to be weakened by the absence of those two players. Fake backs and split formations may also be used to advantage under such circumstances. On the other hand, if the opponents are using a single line of defense, then is the most effective time to create the bull running wild, so that he will make the catch before the defensive fullback has a chance to intercept. Before going into a contest the quarter should have his mind clearly made up as to what plays he is going to use to start the contest. This is not to mean it is necessary to lay out a plan for the whole game. Such an idea is impracticable, as no one can tell beforehand what will be the circumstances. As the showing of a team for the first few moments is slightly important, the leader should so drive his men that his eleven will get the jump

Although degenerate modern digestion machinery has brought about a curtailment of the Thanksgiving feast, it is a question whether it has improved the quality. Certain it is that while the housekeeper of today has less to prepare to meet the critical twentieth century appetite each course must be a gustatory gem in a fit setting, and with the high cost of living rising to alarming heights every day, this is no easy task.

The usual dishes present no difficulties to the good cook. Practice has made perfection in these long ago, but there are many little ways of making them more attractive and many little dainties of which she may be unaware.

Cider jelly is a new way of offering

apple juice, which is considered by many housewives an indispensable item of the Thanksgiving menu. Take a quart of cider, but be sure it is quite fresh. Then add a teaspoonful of lemon juice, enough sugar to make it agreeably sweet and heat it in a skillet. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in a little cold water and pour the hot cider upon it. Stir thoroughly and strain through a cloth, then chill in the refrigerator. It is pretty if molded in a design of earthenware or other suitable material and served on a platter encircled by a ring of spiced pears.

A delicious salad which is good to serve when the main course is turkey is dressed on individual plates as follows: A bed of lettuce is arranged on each plate, and on this is a slice of Bermuda onion, with green sweet peas, tomatoes and cucumber. French dressing is the proper accompaniment.

To serve with the turkey or to follow closely upon it try cranberry water ice. Pick over a quart of fine plump cranberries and pour on them a teaspoonful of red water, not boiling. Cook till soft and reduce to one-half its original quantity and allow it to cool. Add the juice of a good sized lemon, a sirup made of a quart of boiling water and two cupsful of granulated sugar cooked until it thickens. Stir well and freeze to the consistency of water ice. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Here is a form of bouillon that will be new to many cooks and for a soup course is good to serve, as the Thanksgiving menu is generally a rather long and heavy one. Simmer two tablespoonfuls of tapoca in two quarts of clear beef stock until smooth. When done put in the yolks of raw eggs in the proportion of one yolk to two portions. Place the eggs in the bottom of the turkey. Now pour in the hot soup and heat until soup and eggs combine in a frothy cream.

Creamed lobster makes a delicious entree or fish course. Have ready a pint of lobster meat cut into dice and prepare the following mixture: A dozen canned mushrooms sliced thin and heated in a cup of their juice with two slices of onion. Thicken with butter and flour as usual and then brown it. Remove the onion and add a quart pint of stock, two drops of tobacco and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Heat the lobster meat in this and serve in little individual dishes or paper cases, with a little finely minced parsley. It must be served very hot.

It is the intention to exemplify the ritual in complete form and initiate into full membership the largest body of men ever admitted to the order on any one occasion. Secretary George Emley of the committee has received word that the district officers will be in attendance. Refreshments will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock. The evening exercises will start promptly at 8 o'clock. There will be good music, great ritualistic work, good floor work and a lot of good fellows.

BIG CLASS INITIATION

Great Event for the Odd Fellows on Dec. 7

The class initiation which will be held in Odd Fellows building, Middlesex street, Saturday, Dec. 7, by the local lodges in Lowell and North Andover of the Manchester Unity, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will go down in history as the greatest event in the order and ought to bring out many members. The returns that are coming in show a ready number of candidates from all the lodges and there will without doubt be the biggest body of Odd Fellows on that night ever gathered in one building in this city. The committee in charge of the several departments is working hard to make this initiation a grand success. The committee on arrangements met last night in Elks hall and completed all arrangements. As there are five lodges taking part, there should be at least 100 candidates. The object of this affair is to increase the membership in this part of the district and every member is striving to bring in a candidate. Through the chairman, John Barrett of Varnett lodge, Mr. Crook of the Odd Fellows building will present a silver cup to the lodge who has the most candidates

GETTING READY FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

Here is a method of treating the national bird that is rather new to the American taste. It is turkey in the Hamburg way. Take a pound of lean beef—think steak is the best—mince it very fine and add to it three-quarters of a pound of beef suet, a bunch of sweet herbs chopped up and a clove of garlic minced fine. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg and bind all together with three eggs. Draw and singe the turkey. Raise the skin all round the breast and back and put in the stuffing. Truss the turkey and cover with buttered paper. You may first lard the breast with fat pork. Roast it exposed to the flame in your gas oven or in the usual way in the coal range, basting well until done. One and one-half hours suffice for a young hen turkey if small and two and a half hours for a large bird. When done take off the paper and baste with butter, sprinkle with salt and dredge lightly with flour to give it the crusty brown appearance that is so good to look upon. When done place on a hot dish with brown celery sauce under it and giblet gravy and bread sauce served in a separate sauce boat.

Many housekeepers have apple pie recipes which are too sacred to admit of rivalry. Let her who is still open to conviction or who is a beginner try this excellent one: Soften a heaping cup of powdered sugar, next two well beaten eggs, then two and a half cups of rolled oats, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-quarter of a tablespoonful of salt and a few drops of vanilla flavoring. Drop the batter into baking tins, about a half teaspoonful for a cake, and bake in a slow oven until they are a light brown.

cup of powdered sugar, next two well beaten eggs, then two and a half cups of rolled oats, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-quarter of a tablespoonful of butter and combine it with one pint of granulated sugar. Whip a cup of cream to a froth. Beat four eggs very lightly without separating them. Grate enough sour apples to give a pint of pulp. Mix all together. Line two deep pie plates or tins with paste and pour in the above mixture. Cover with the paste and bake until crusts look wholesomely brown. This rule gives two pies.

When there are small children in the household it is well to have on hand for Thanksgiving day a plentiful supply of nut crisps. These little cakes are delicious, as well as entirely harmless. To make them, take one tablespoonful of butter and add to it one

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A regular meeting of Division 3, Ancient Order of Hibernians, was held last night in A. O. H. hall with President Kelly in the chair, and the usual routine business was transacted. There were five applications for membership received and acted upon, and two candidates were initiated. The committee on the coming social and dance of the division reported progress in the arrangements and no effort will be spared to make the event a big success in every way.

There were addresses given by President Kelly and Brothers Dorsey, Droney and Mahoney in regard to the plans of the order for the future. At the conclusion of the meeting the members went to the home of Thomas

Delaney, a late brother, and prayers were offered for the repose of his soul.

Sons of St. George

Waverly lodge, Sons of St. George, held a very well attended meeting last night, with Harry L. Francis presiding. The principal business of the evening was the election of officers. The president appointed Samuel J. Furt, Albert Fielding and Thomas Gardner as tellers. The results were as follows: President, John W. Andrews; vice president, Willis H. Bowles; messenger, Arthur F. Pascall; secretary, Fred Potter; treasurer, N. W. Matthews, Jr.; assistant secretary, John Barker; pianist, Frank L. Orrell; trustee for 12 months, Frank Pascall.

The subordinate officers will be appointed by the president after his installation.

Dr. J. B. Albert Johnson was elected lodge physician for another year. The installation of the above officers will take place at the meeting on Friday, Dec. 13, and Brother Thomas Smith of Friendship lodge of Lynn, Mass. will be the installing officer.

Learning to Fly, and Afterwards

Of the men who enter an aviation school a few are actuated by pure love of the sport, a few others are moved by a desire for notoriety, but with by far the majority the object is to qualify for money making in the exhibition field. To these last the instructors' admonitions to go slowly and to act cautiously are apt to carry little weight. The license is what the man wants, and that as quickly as possible. And as it requires but little degree of skill, and practically no technical knowledge to qualify for a pilot under the present rules of admission, the result is that scores of immature aviators are exhibiting who have never been in a trying situation and who, if they survive their first critical experience, will owe their immunity from death or injury to good luck rather than to good management.

Upon entering the school the pupil is made familiar with the mechanism of the machine. The action of the engine, the planes, the steering wheel and other parts is explained to him before he is allowed to take his place in the driver's seat. He is then sent out in the "grass cutter." This is an ordinary "aero," in which the learner's first efforts are confined to running over the ground on the wheels of the machine, and steering straight—by no means such an easy matter as may be supposed. In this stage of the instruction the pupil's experiences are very similar to those of a man learning to run an automobile. The fledgling is now allowed to skim over the grass at a height of five or six feet. In shore flights of a few yards. His progress is much the same as that of a young bird when it has first left the nest, and probably his sensations are not dissimilar. Beginners state that when they first leave the ground in these short flights there is a feeling of being out of their element and an inclination to get

Occasionally a pupil is so inept and awkward that he does not get beyond the "grass cutter" stage. Just as there are some men who cannot learn to steer a bicycle or an automobile so there are some who cannot with any amount of practice be taught to run an aeroplane over the ground in a tolerably straight line. Of course it is useless for such a one to dream of controlling a machine in the air with wind currents to add to the difficulty.

By degrees the learner is permitted to extend his flights, making them longer and rising higher, gradually attaining to a distance of about one hundred feet in either direction. During this part of the instruction, and in fact throughout the course, the main object sought is to teach the young aviator to alight properly. This is the most important and the most difficult feature of flying. Anyone may be taught within an hour how to rise in an aeroplane, and it is no great task to keep one in the air, but it will require weeks, and perhaps months of practice in order to learn to alight without danger to himself or to his craft. Beginners will come to earth from an elevation of no more than a hundred feet with a jar that strains every portion of the mechanism, whilst an adept will make a swift drop of half a mile and reach the earth with no greater jolt than he would get in stepping off a soap box.

There are some few men who absolutely lack the sense of equilibrium and of course such can never become aviators. One of the most helpless but persistent pupils that ever entered an aviation school was a foreigner who had this fatal defect. His machine would wobble and tilt without his being aware of it. In a dead calm he dipped and rose like a bucking broncho or careened like a ship in a gale. Three times he undertook a flight and each time broke something. On the last occasion it was a leg and several ribs. Had he been permitted to persist, as he desired to do, there is no doubt but that he would have killed himself in short order.

This pupil labored under an additional handicap. He was more than forty years of age. Now, authorities in aviation are agreed that, with rare exceptions, a man will never become an expert pilot unless he begins in youth, or at least well before middle age. There is not a case on record of a man having entered the field when past forty who reached the first rank of aviator.

In striking contrast to this disqualified foreigner, the same class included a young American whom the instructor pointed out as an excellent example of what an aviator should be. Twenty-two years of age, he has perfect health, exceptionally good eyesight, is a splendid judge of distance, has exemplary habits and in particular is an abstemious from liquor. He is enthusiastic, but self-composed, daring, but cautious; ambitious, but patient. This young man entered the school with the great advantage of being an expert mechanic and an experienced chauffeur. In his first trip into the air he displayed an intuitive knowledge of conditions and a few weeks later was handling his craft like a veteran, making perfect landings and performing the spiral glide and other difficult maneuvers. In forty days he was granted his license, but remained at the training ground to improve his knowledge and ability, although his desire and need for the emoluments of the business are as great as those of any of the men who have sought exhibition engagements almost before the ink was dry upon their certificates.

After the pupil has had sufficient practice in rising about a hundred feet in still air he is made accustomed to flying in the wind. He is sent up first in a gentle breeze and for a few minutes of time. Little by little the period of his flight is increased and he is exposed by degrees to stronger air currents, but the elevation is kept down to about one hundred feet until he has learned to handle the machine in a fairly fast wind. This stage of the tuition is maintained until the pupil displays an ability to control his craft with ease and confidence in a thirty-mile blow. This is not a difficult task, so long as the wind is steady. Puffiness is what causes the aviator's troubles and no amount of experience will render him safe under such air conditions. It was a windcap which overturned Miss Quimby's machine last June and caused her death. The fatal accident to Mrs. Julia Clarke was due to the same cause.

The pupil now begins his free flights and is practically beyond the control of the instructor. The most that the latter can do is to give him warning and advice before his ascent and to criticize his performance upon his return. Whilst in the air he must rely upon his own judgment and the self-confidence which it has been the aim of the previous instructions to instill into him. He now begins to practice the prescribed "stunt" for the pilot's test, and as soon as he thinks that he is capable of performing it applies for his license. If he acquits himself to the satisfaction of the board of inspectors he secures the coveted document, leaves the school and is free to fly when and where he pleases.

and secure the license in sixty days or less. In other cases it takes several months, whilst there are a few hopeless aspirants in every class who are obliged to forego their ambition on account of utter inaptitude. Occasionally pupils find that their nerves are not equal to the experience, and instructors invariably warn men who are in the least degree timid that they should not venture an ascent in an aeroplane. Defective eyesight, weak hearts and confirmed clumsiness are among the defects which bar men from becoming successful aviators.

Whether on account of their excellent system of tuition or because of the ease with which the governing body grants licenses it is impossible to say, but the American schools have attracted foreigners in large numbers in recent years. One class last winter comprised seven nationalities among its twenty-five members, including a Hindoo, a Japanese, a Chinaman and a Filipino. In several cases these foreigners have been sent by the governments of their countries to America to gain instruction in aviation.

One of the most capable instructors in this country has said: "The test is not criterion of ability. Several of our pupils have received certificates when I knew that they were unfit to handle machines under even ordinary bad weather conditions. But we could do nothing. They qualified. The fault lies in the system of examination. Candidates should be required to know something about the science—not merely the art—of aviation; to have some technical knowledge of aerodynamics and aero-dynamics. I would allow more flying to count for only about twenty per cent. of efficiency and would require that the rest should be made up by scientific and mechanical knowledge."

The frequency of fatal accidents to aviators justifies the popular opinion that the navigation of the air is beset with extraordinary peril. It is noteworthy, however, that veterans in the art of flying do not contribute even their fair proportion to the casualties.

Tom Carr, now Official Aviator and Instructor to Chinese Republic

This fact lends color to the contention of experienced aviators that most of the mishaps to aeroplanes are avoidable. As Glenn Curtis put it: "Under proper conditions aviation is no more dangerous than automobilism. Eighty per cent. of the accidents in the air are due to carelessness, fifteen per cent. to ignorance and the rest to causes beyond the aviator's control."

Another important contributory cause of accidents is the public demand for spectacular and risky performances. Mere flying is no longer a novelty. People cannot be induced to pay to witness it. They demand of the exhibitor unusual "stunts" and the display of reckless daring.

The veterans, with a full knowledge of the dangers and difficulties of flight, are cautious under all circumstances and take no unnecessary risks. It is not to be inferred from this that they are in any degree less daring than the more reckless, though less skillful, aviators. When the occasion calls for the exercise of courage, the former are almost invariably equal to the demand upon them. The following incidents strikingly illustrate the difference between the two types of men.

Last winter a young aviator who had but recently received his license flew across the bay from North Island in a machine with a defective engine to the Exposition Grounds in San Diego, where there was no favorable landing place. The sole purpose of this foolhardy and extremely hazardous flight was to keep a luncheon engagement with a young lady and incidentally to advertise himself. Lieutenant Ellison, the naval instructor in aviation, who witnessed this performance, said that it was one of which he would not take the risk. A few days later Ellison deliberately made a flight under the worst possible weather conditions at the risk of his life, but it was in the performance of his duty of ascertaining how a machine would act in a strong, puffy wind. The experiment resulted in his being capsize and sustaining injuries which laid him up for several weeks.

SOME favored few sportmen of the deep hold in supreme disdain their brother sportmen of the land, who talk about "big game hunting" in the wilds of darkest Africa, or, in fact, any other known region where so-called "big game" exists. What do elephants, or lions, or the hard-billed "hippos," all of which may be dispatched by one properly placed rifle ball, amount to when compared with the sea monster whose expense of flaps from tip to tip is much greater than any other animal in existence; whose weight has been reported to be ten thousand pounds or over?

What sort of feeling do you imagine would rapidly rush up your spine and settle about your "inneries," if on some dark night, while in an open boat off the Southern Coast of North Carolina, or Florida Gulf, your eyes should suddenly light on the dark body of a creature, twenty-five feet in width, flapping his enormous "wings" up and down near the surface of the water just ahead of your craft? Your feelings could not well be described, but more than likely terra firma would look about as pleasing to you as anything you could imagine just about that time.

The enormous animal you saw, we will suppose, once provided the victim for the most exciting and dangerous "sport" which was ever entered into by man on the surface of the great waters.

The "Devil-fish," or "Sea-devil," as it is variously termed, belongs to the order of rays, and enjoys the distinction of being the largest member of the order. Its scientific name is Manta birostris, the latter word meaning two-headed, from which it also gets its name "Devil." The devil-fish is common in tropical American waters, and has been observed as far north as Cape May. At the time of the breeding season, when it is seen occasionally at the water's surface, it furnishes the rarest of sport for those who know how to tackle it—and "live" to fight another day.

One tale is as follows: A certain professor was very much wrapped up in his studies for the discovery of perpetual motion; he also possessed a strong desire to capture one of those devil-fishes which he had been told so much about. One fine day he quietly hired a boat and outfit, and was rowing along very peacefully some distance out from shore, when to his astonishment and delight a long-looked-for surprise was in store for him—a real, live devil-fish was sunning himself but a few yards to his "port" side as the heavy craft glided along through the quiet waters. The professor forgot all about "perpetual motion" for the time being and with all haste made for the creature who apparently was basking in the sunny water. In a few moments his boat was gliding right on to the great fish and the athletic figure of the professor posed for a moment in the bow of the boat with harpoon raised for the drive. It was the unexpected which so often happens—for he hardly dared to imagine that he could really hit the creature—and he had the thrilling experience of seeing his harpoon strike and stick fast in the huge brown back of his victim, who immediately plunged away at great speed, carrying many feet of line out of the boat before the amazed professor realized what was happening. When he did realize the situation he quickly made fast a part of the line to a cleat in the bow. His experience was rapidly changing from one of mere interest to one of fear and appreciation of danger! The ride was much more lively than he had bargained for and his nerve was about to "go back on him" as he looked about for some other small boat without in hailing distance. The amusing part of the affair was reserved for the acquaintances of Professor Jones, who had gathered on the shore to behold the sight of a boat being driven through the water at a brisk rate with no apparent means of locomotion.

One illustration shows a top view of one of these "Ox-horned Rays," or devil-fishes, whose expanse of flaps from tip to tip has been known to reach from eighteen to thirty feet, and whose body thickness varies from three to five or more feet. The two horns attached to the head are movable, and are used as feeding arms, pressing very tightly against the mouth any object intended for "the interior department," the mouth of which, according to one writer, has a capacity capable of receiving "two over the water's surface for a hundred yards or more, when his ponderous body again plunges down into the deep with a splashing noise which may be heard for one mile away!

is given to other fishermen round about who make speed to catch, on to the rapidly towed boat, and sometimes one devil-fish, by the spear in his flesh, is towing several boats all occupied with fishermen, at a rapid rate through the briny sea! The rope is made fast within the boat pulled by the great vampire, and her bows are plunged with almost smashing force against the great, white-capped breakers as her sturdy crew try to manage her course in this great ride of life or death. When things steady up a bit, and the great black body of the fish is seen at the surface for a moment, a few rills bullets are sent into its spine to further quiet its activities and shorten the several miles trip somewhat.

The fishermen use their oars with might and main to "back water," but they are sometimes torn from their hands by the plunging of their boat through the sea, as this great monster's powerful swimming carries it along. He has the grace of the shark as he seems to shoot through the water and turning about has brought them back, against the tide, to about the same location from which, but a short while before, they so mysteriously departed! One may well imagine from the foregoing what it means to harpoon one of these fellows and be towed amidst the billows by such an animal! This is the precise manner in which the devil-fish is tackled and finally tired out and landed, even though several yokes of oxen are pressed into service in the landing thereof.

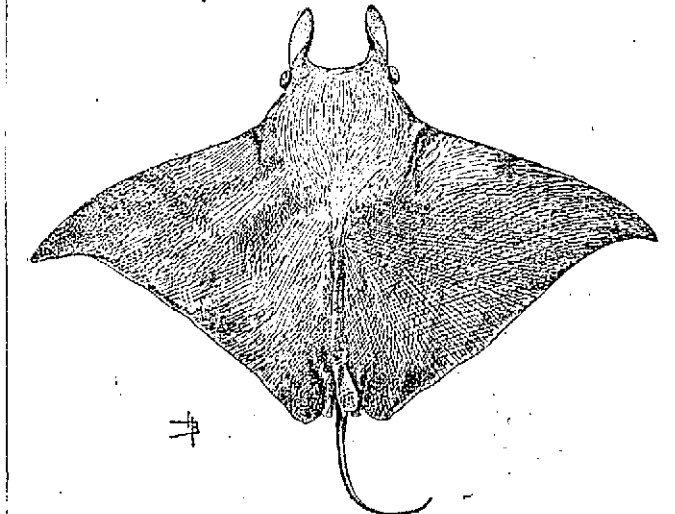

The "sport" of running down a devil-fish is undertaken in the common boat of the fishermen of the southern coasts, which is very substantially built and capable of very rough usage—which it usually gets when one of these sea-devils becomes attached to it. When the great, dark-brown back of one of these creatures is sighted by the fisherman his fellows quickly row their craft as close "alongside" as possible, and the next undertaking is to plunge the spear-pointed harpoon with terrific force into the brown body of the great animal, while the harpoonist stands in the bow of his little craft. If this "strike" is successful, attention is next given to the proper playing out of the harpoon line as the powerful victim of the sharp instrument plunges away through the water at great speed. By a great yell, or rifle shot, the notice ter as great birds of prey soar through the air. The cruel barbs of the harpoon are deep in his flesh to stay—unless the hemp rope should snap or the heart of the "sportsman" become faint enough for him to sever it with his hatchet. When the great beast has tugged his death-dealing load for several miles on the open sea, and fatal exhaustion is staring him in the face, from loss of blood and great, his greatest possible exertion, he at length slackens up his race against death and slowly turns by his great, white breast toward the heavens above, from which the summer's sun is warmly beaming upon the rolling bosom of the ocean, where his pleasant days have so tragically ended. The "sport" is ended, the rope slackens and the fisher boats gather about close to haul in the captured creature, which is later drawn up on the beach by help of horses or oxen. He is next photographed with one or more of the successful fishermen standing upon his back, and this picture is preserved as very good evidence of a real "fish story."

The sperm whale, and the right whale, are of course much longer than the fish described in this article, but as far as width is concerned there is no living creature which can compare with him.

The sight of such enormous sea animals, plunging out of and into the ocean on dark, quiet nights, would be plenty of foundation for the stories of "sea-serpents" which used to be current along the Southern Coast of our country. There are several other members of this tribe of fishes, but very little is known of them or their habits, as they are rarely seen. The Sting-ray is probably best known of this class of fishes. It possesses a few barbed spines at the base of the tail on the top of its back, and a tall which terminates in a sharp needle. In attacking an enemy it curves its back up like a scorpion in its effort to sting its victim and drive its sharp spikes into it.

The excitement on shore grew more intense when finally one friend of the professor, who was acquainted with his earnest studies of late, shouted out with great glee: "Jones has discovered perpetual motion!" The kind of motion Jones had "discovered" was at that very moment becoming so very serious to him that he ended it straightway by severing the line with a sharp hatchet, which he had for-warder men abreast."

The mouth is provided with about one hundred small, paved teeth in the lower jaw, while the upper jaw is entirely toothless.

The enormous flaps, or wings, of this gigantic animal of the sea make swimming instruments of wonderful power, and propel his huge body through the water at a furious speed, or lift him clear of his natural element and allow him to leap high in the air, or skip like a ricocheted rock
